MOVE TO BREAK SENATE JAM

REPUBLICANS WILL MEET WITH LEADER WATSON MONDAY

Strong Sentiment For Adjournment Immediately After Final Tariff Vote Met With Hoover's Warning Of Extra Session For Disposal Of Naval Treaty — Tariff Commission Issues Analysis Declaring "Agriculture Will Benefit Greatly Under New Bill."

WASHINGTON, May 24—(UP)—Republican senators were summoned by Majority Leader Watson today to confer Monday on the jam arising from the tariff and naval treaty situations.

The call followed closely upon the president's warning that he would call a special session of the senate if that body adjourned without acting on the London naval treaty. That warning, coming at the time of a heat wave here, brought home forcibly to senators the thought that a summer session would be uncomfortable and the more so since many are anxious to be home for primary and election campaigns.

Strong sentiment has been developing for adjournment immediately after the final vote on the tariff, allowing the treaty to wait until next winter. But President Hoover's warning of an extra session injects new pressure in the situation.

While protests against the tariff bill were still coming in, the United States tariff commission announced an analysis declaring "agriculture will benefit greatly by the new tariff bill."

The commission said 68 per cent

COUNTY NOT TO PICK DEFENDER

Election of Officer in Counties of 100,000 Not Until 1932.

Towle Advises Morgan Not Accept Filings For Position.

Lancaster county will not have to choose a public defender until 1932, and none can be elected until that time, County Attorney Max G. Towle ruled in a written opinion delivered Saturday afternoon to J. B. Morgan, county clerk. The clerk had made an oral request for a legal opinion on the matter from the county attorney as a basis for guidance in accepting or refusing to accept filings for the office of public defender.

State statutes provide that a public defender be elected in counties having a population greater than 100,000. They also provide for his election in 1916 and every four years thereafter. This would bring the election in 1932. The county attorney ruled that no defender could be selected until that time and that the commissioners need not appoint anyone for the position. This decision will save the county $7,200 which would have had to be expended in the next two years if a contrary ruling had been made. It will also give the next legislature a chance to increase the population figure to spare Lancaster county the expense of such an official.

Towle's Opinion.

The county attorney's opinon follows:

"You have made oral inquiry of me, that since it appears the population of Lancaster county exceeds 100,000, what

Oklahoma City Gains 91,550 in Population

Big Gain At Norman.

NORMAN, Okla., May 24—(U.P.)—The population of Norman has made a 91.78 per cent gain in the past ten years, said District Census Supervisor Aaron McDaniel tonight when he announced the city has 9,597 residents. The city population in 1920 was 5,004. The county showed a gain of 4,593.

Contracts Let For Two Liners

NEW YORK, May 24—(I. N. S.)—Contracts were let today for two of the largest liners ever built in this country.

The two ships of 30,000 gross tons each and costing $21,000,00 apiece will be built by the New York Shipbuilding company for the United States lines.

Paul W. Chapman, president of the United States Lines, signed the contracts. He announced that the two vessels will be rushed to completion in the shiyards at Newport News. One of them is expected to be launched in July, 1932, and the second four months later.

YOUTH FALLS OFF BARGE AND DROWNS

LEXINGTON, Mo., May 24—(U. P.)—Harold Lissley, 17 years old, son of Captain William Lissley, Glasgo, Mo., owner of the steamboat, Santa Fe, drowned in Missouri river here today. He fell off a barge bing towed by the government boat Will Goose. Young Lissley was employed on river work by the government. His body was recovered.

President Goes Fishing In Rain And Enjoys It

HOOVER CAMP ON RAPIDAN, Va., May 24—(INS)—President Hoover and his secretary, Lawrence Richey, spent a wet day fishing in the Rapidan today, while less hardy guests shivered around open fires after a heavy downpour of rain.

Mr. Hoover seemed to enjoy fishing in the rain, and spite of the cold, did not come into camp until about dark.

The four senators who accompanied the party here deserted the

PILOT IS KILLED WHEN BROMLEY'S PLANE CRASHES

Coast Airman's Hope Of Spanning Pacific Is Blasted Third Time.

CRAFT PLUNGES DURING A TEST

W. H. Catlin Dies of Burns and Injuries; Machine Destroyed.

LOS ANGELES, May 24—(UP)—The third attempt of Lieut. Harold Bromley to become the first aviator to span the Pacific ocean to Japan ended late today in the death of W. H. Catlin, a pilot who was testing Bromley's huge Lockheed-Sirius plane at Muroc Lake on the desert south of here.

Catlin died of burns and injuries suffered when the heavily loaded plane crashed to earth and was destroyed when its 912 gallons of gasoline caught fire.

Bromley had intended to leave on the attempted crossing of the Pacific soon after completion of the tests which were being conducted today.

Catlin had taken off with gasoline loads of 250 gallons and 600 gallons just prior to the fatal trip on which he loaded the craft with more than 900 gallons. It was to have been the final test of the day.

Bursts Into Flames.

For about a mile Catlin kept the plane about fifty feet from the ground. Observers said it then tipped, apparently from a sudden gust of wind. The flier had no time to right his plane before it sideslipped to the earth, striking wtih a roar and bursting into flames.

Catlin was found unconscious near the wreckage.

The accident was the third to interfere with Lieutenant Bromley's plans for an ocean hop from Tacoma, Wash., to Tokyo. A year ago the first plane made for the venture was demolished when it turned over as Bromley lifted it from the runway in Seattle. A second craft dropped a tail piece in a test flight over Burbank, Cal., and Lieut. Herbert Fahy, later killed near Dallas, was injured.

DEATH RATE IN STATE DECLINES

Improved Public Health Conditions Shown By Annual Report.

Good Progress Indicated In Lowering Infant Mortality.

Improved public health conditions in Nebraska during 1929 are disclosed in a report emanating Saturday from the state vital statistics office which shows that there were 298 fewer deaths in the state in that year than in 1928. Infant mortality, in line with the general trend, exhibits a decrease of 110 as compared with the previous annum.

The number of deaths recorded for Nebraska last year was 13,374, of which 1,374 were children under one years old. In the infantile section a remarkable record was made, the count being lower than in any other year since 1923. Here is the comparative report on babies who died in each year covered by the summary:

1927	1,427
1929	1,374

Director P. H. Bartholomew of the state health bureau, commenting on these figures, said the reduced infant mortality of the past several years, reaching its minimum in 1929, is evidence that parents are becoming better educated in the proper care of children and are taking more precautions than formerly against preventable diseases.

Six Injured When Explosion Blows Up 40-Foot Yacht

ITHACA, N. Y., May 24—(UP)—A backfiring engine was believed tonight to have caused the forty-foot yacht Playmate to blow up and sink, injuring its six occupants, residents of Syracuse, while lying in Cayuga inlet here today.

The blast, felt a mile and a half away, blew out the entire rear end of the craft and tossed four of those aboard to shore. They were: Capt. C. E. Brown; Mrs. N. S. Valentine; Mrs. Anthonie Weiler, and George Malor, deckhand.

Mrs. Brown, the skipper's wife and Mrs. Valentine's daughter, Mary Lee, were rescued from the water after the boat had foundered.

All but Brown, who was not seriously hurt, were taken to a hospital, Mrs. Valentine suffered fractures of both legs.

TRIED TO AVERT WHEAT DAMAGE

Swenk Says Hessian Fly Danger Foreseen Last Fall.

Declares Fields Which Appear Ruined May Produce Crops.

Probability of heavy damage from the Hessian fly in northeastern Nebraska this spring, was predicted last fall, Myron Swenk, state entomologist and chairman of the entomology department at the agricultural college, stated Saturday night after he had been informed that some Lancaster county farmers claimed the fields in which they had followed instructions of the agricultural college were most heavily infested with the fly.

Farmers who planted their wheat late last fall in accordance with advice of the agricultural college would not necessarily have fly-free fields this spring according to Mr. Swenk, in view of the generally early planting of the grain. Mr. Swenk was interviewed relative to the Hessian fly problem, which has been causing consternation among farmers in Lancaster and adjoining counties during the past week, after Guy Talbot, former living on South Fourteenth street, had reported to the county extension agent's office that fields in which

SEVEN ELECTED TO COUNCIL OF JUNIOR CHAMBER

The election of seven new members to the executive council of the junior division of the chamber of commerce was announced Saturday by Dwight Bedell, secretary. The election was by mail ballot and the count was completed Saturday morning. The new members of the board, each being elected for two years, are Harry Reed, Willis DeVriendt, Joe Iverson, W. H. Browne, Sig North, Emmett Junge and Lloyd Campbell.

These new members of the board with seven who hold over for one year will compose the council. They will meet Monday or Tuesday and elect the executive officers of the division from among their number. The result of this election will be made public Tuesday night, June 3, at the annual spring banquet of the organization.

Heiress and Former Football Star Wed

SAN MATEO, Cal., May 24—(INS)—In a brilliant society wedding, Claire Evelyn Giannini, 25, only daughter of Amadeo P. Giannini, international banker, today became the bride of Clifford "Biff" Hoffman, former Stanford football star.

The cerecony was performed at St. Matthew's church here before a large gathering of society folks of San Francisco bay region.

Archbishop Edward J. Hanna of San Francisco officiated.

Kirkwood Sues Lila Lee For a Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May [illegible]—(I. N. S.)—A film romance of seven years' standing ended today when James Kirkwood filed suit for divorce from Lila Lee, noted star of cinema productions, charging wilful desertion.

The complaint sets forth that there has been a property settlement and an agreement that custody of James Kirkwood, jr., 6, shall continue with the father, indicating there would be no contest.

IDAHO U. HEAD QUITS; ATTACKS STATE OFFICIALS

Kelly Says Board Failed to Grant Faculty Salary Increases.

ALSO CLAIMS NOT GIVEN FREE HAND

Further Charges Alumni Opposition to His Athletic Program.

MOSCOW, Ida., May 24—(UP)—Frederick James Kelly, at a special meeting of the faculty tonight, announced his resignation as president of the University of Idaho, citing failure of the state board of education to increase faculty salaries and "grant him a free hand in inaugurating his educational philosophies" at Idaho.

Dr. Kelly charged that although in his contract the state board had agreed to faculty salary increases, "to bring the best teachers possible to Idaho," that the board had vetoed all his recommendations for increases in salary, even his total appropriation being lower than last year.

Dr. Kelly said there was alumni opposition to his athletic program and charged the board of education had "listened to outside group pressure" and accepted recommendations from such sources as were incompatible with his policies.

Served Two Years.

President Kelly came to Idaho June 12, 1928, from the University of Minnesota, where he was dean of administration and leading national authority on curriculum study and college administration. He formerly was at the University of Kansas.

He told the faculty he has no plans for the immediate future, except to complete a curriculum study of the institutions of higher learning in Oregon for the Oregon state board of higher education.

DEMOS LIKELY TO MEET HERE

Choice Of Lincoln As State Convention City Probable.

Democrats Gave Capital Cold Shoulder For Past 22 Years.

For the first time in twenty-two years, the democratic party of Nebraska may hold its state platform convention for 1930 in Lincoln. During all that period the democracy of Cornhuskerdom has been a political rover, meeting around at first one place and then another, but always missing the capital city. Now its return to Lincoln, where most of the conventions were formerly held, is being planned by leading members of the party.

Antagonism to the leadership of the late William Jennings Bryan, which developed in 1910 during the bitter fight over county option, the forerunner of prohibition, took the democratic pow-wow away from Lincoln at that time. The factional feeling engendered in the contest remained alive for years and was largely the cause of the party's ultimately losing its dominant position in the state government which it gained in 1912, held for six years during the period of Woodrow Wilson's national leadership, and lost again in 1918.

Chairman T. S. Allen of the democratic state committee believes there is a good chance for Lincoln to get the convention back this year. He and other party managers realize that it is not to the best interest of their organization to turn the cold shoulder persistently and permanently to the second largest city in Nebraska, the seat of the state government and the natural center of political activities, and by so doing virtually surrender it to the republicans at every election.

Halls Available Now.

It is a mistaken notion, declares Chairman Allen, that the democrats have been deliberately boycotting

Youth Admits His Story Of Kidnaped 'Bride' Was Hoax

TURTLE CREEK, Pa., May 24—(U. P.)—G. C. Kirk, 24, who told East McKeesport police his wife had disappeared in an abandoned car on the Lincoln highway near here yesterday and claimed that he was the son of G. C. Kirk, head of the Carnation Farm company, Carnation, Wash., was arrested tonight and admitted the "whole thing" was a hoax, police said.

Police said Kirk had been docketed as living in Niagara Falls.

His arrest came when Warren, O., police claimed he resembled a man wanted there for passing bad checks.

According to police, the prisoner said he had never married and was not, as originally claimed, the son of the Washington man.

He planned the "hoax" as an easy way to forge checks, his alleged confession continued.

UNI. PROFESSORS TO GET LEAVE

Ranking Instructors Will Receive Half Pay During Year's Absence.

Establishment of a system of sabbatical leave whereby members of the faculty of the University of Nebraska may secure leave of absence for graduate study and for travel was announced Saturday afternoon by Chancellor E. A. Burnett following a meeting of the board of regents.

The adoption of a system of sabbatical leave, according to Chancellor Burnett is in accordance with the best principles and practices in the educational world and will do a great deal to raise the quality of teaching by affording professors an opportunity to refresh their subject matter and improve their methods. The system was adopted after a faculty committee had made detailed investigations of the systems in use in other colleges and unversities.

Semester on Full Pay.

Under the plan adopted yesterday, application for sabbatical leave may be made by any member of the faculty wha has been with the institution for six consecutive years, of which at least four years must have been with a rank not lower than that assistant professor. The application may ask for a year on full pay. Included in the application according to the plan adopted, must be a definite statement of in-

LOUISIANA FLOOD MENACE LESSENS

SHREVEPORT, La., May 24—(U. P.)—Threat of the Red river flood waters which menaced suburban portions of Shreveport, was lessened tonight, and observers believed the crest had been reached. The water stood within three feet of the serious flood stage.

More than 400 refugees were fed here today by relief agencies. Others were coming here from East Point, a village forty miles to the south, which was almost surrounded by water.

JEFFERSON, Tex., May 24—(U. P.)—Relief agencies tonight were ministering to several hundred persons left destitute by flood waters which inundated a third of Marion county and threatened the business district of Jefferson. A partial survey showed that ninety homes in the city limits must be rebuilt and that some eighty others need refurnishing.

15 ORCHESTRAS ENTER CONTEST

Three New Entries Are Received in National Competition.

With fifteen orchestras entered and with ticket sales successfully launched, Lincoln is prepared to be host this week to the second annual national high school orchestra contest, which according to present indications, will be the largest affair of its kind ever staged. It will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the university coliseum and Irving junior high school auditorium.

Entry of three class B orchestras last week brought the total to fifteen. They are Mt. Clemens, Mich., Lew Wallace high school of Gary, Ind., and Ida M. Fisher high school of Miami Beach, Fla. Al-

ECKENER PREPARES TO LAND BIG SHIP SUNDAY MORNING

Zeppelin Completes Third Leg Of Flight From Friedrichshafen When She Arrives Over Capital Of Brazil At 11:35 P. M., Eastern Standard Time—Commander Radioes He Will Descend About 7 A. M.—Thousands Cheer As Craft Sails Over City.

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 25—(UP)—(Sunday)—The dirigible Graf Zeppelin arrived over this city early today, completing the third leg of its flight from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to South America, the United States and return. The airship was first sighted approaching the city at 1:35 a. m. (11:35 p. m., E. S. T., Saturday).

THE WEATHER.

Weather outlook for the period May 26 to May 31, inclusive.

Upper Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys: Probably shower period first half of week and again toward close; temperature mostly near or above normal.

Nebraska—Fair, warmer in east and south portions Sunday; Monday partly cloudy to cloudy, possibly showers and cooler in west and north portions.

Kansas—Fair and warmer Sunday; Monday probably unsettled, possibly showers and cooler in northwest portion.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf, decided at the last moment not to continue his flight further south to the maritime town of Paranagua and Sao Paulo and wirelessed President Washington Luis, requesting the best hour for landing here.

The president replied that 7 a. m., was perhaps the most favorable time, whereupon Dr. Eckener radioed that he would fly over the capital and its environs until that hour.

Despite the early hour, thousands crowded the streets and the harbor sea wall and cheered as the airship, its cabin windows aglow, sailed majestically over the city.

Continues Southward.

The dirigible skirted the edge of the city and continued southward, although it had been expected to circle the capital. It was flying high.

The Graf left Pernambuco at 11:52 p. m., (9:52 p. m., E. S. T.) Friday. According to the original plans, the Graf was to fly over Sao Paulo to give the numerous Germans residing there an opportunity to see the air pride of the Vaterland. Dr. Eckener's reversal of the Man Tells Police He Killed Wife; Body Is Found

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., May 24—(UP)—Albert La Plante, 38, strolled into a police station here today, tossed a revolver on to the desk, and said, "I've just killed my wife."

He told police they would find the body in a clump of woods near the old cycledrome. Officers sent to investigate discovered the body of Mrs. Anna La Plante, 43, mother of four children. Six bullets had struck the woman.

At first the husband was quoted as saying that he killed his wife "because she asked me to." Later, however, authorities said he admitted that he and his wife had quarreled over money. When they were married two years ago, he said, he had $3,500, but his wife had spent all but $500 of it.

MEMORIAL DAY PROGRAM MADE

Observance to Begin With Parade In Morning.

Governor Will Talk At Afternoon Services At St. Paul.

Plans for the observance of Memorial day in Lincoln Friday, beginning with a parade in the morning and continuing through services at St. Paul Methodist church in the afternoon when Governor Weaver will deliver an address, were announced at a committee meeting of the patriotic societies in charge of the day's program which met at the Lindell hotel Saturday evening.

The parade, which will start at 9 o'clock, will begin at the Elks hall, Thirteenth and P streets. The line of march is west on P street to Eleventh street, south to O and thence east to Fifteenth street, where pedestrians will take cars to Wyuka cemetery.

Ask Place Cars.

The Memorial day committee has asked that all persons furnishing automobiles for the transportation of veterans to Wyuka park them south of O street on Fifteenth street, facing north. The cars will be in charge of Sheriff Claude Hensel.

PLAN IMPROVED SIGNAL SYSTEM

Change Will Be Made To Lessen Danger During Fire Alarms.

Long contemplated improvement and additions to the automatic trafic signal system in the downtown area were announced Saturday by Chief of Police Johnstone. Additional equipment, involving but a nominal outlay, has been ordered to improve the system, and will be installed shortly, the chief stated.

To lessen the danger of accidents when fire apparatus is forced to pass through the lighted area, the signal system will be changed to allow all lights to show amber with the bells ringing continuously until the apparatus is safely through the congested area. Thus a clear right of way will be open to permit safe passage of the speeding trucks.

The lights will be operated from engine house No. 1 by remote control through the master control box at Thirteenth and O streets. A certain amount of time will be allowed for traversing the congested district, at the expiration of which

As Rogers Sees It

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 24 — We finally got the real low down on the intelligence of the senate. The capitol building put in dial telephones, and out of ninety-six members only two knew enough to work 'em. And both these members were men who had been defeated at the last election, showing they knew entirely too much to be in there. Carter Glass thought it was a rat trap and baited his with cheese. So they are going to have them taken out. There is nobody to put the blame on but yourself if you get the wrong number. They want nothing connected with the senate in any way where the responsibility can't be shifted.

Yours, WILL.

P. S.: Los Angeles census is not out yet. Our surveyors are still annexing more territory. We had Mexico City, but the League of Nations made us give it back.

Student Working 70 Hours Each Week Awarded University Prize

George W. Sutterfield of Chadron has been awarded a prize of $100 as being the junior non-fraternity man who is best triumphing over heavy odds in securing an education at the state university, according to an announcement made Saturday afternoon. He is an electrical engineering student.

Sutterfield graduated from Chadron high school and attended the state teachers college at Chadron before going to the University of Nebraska. His average for the last year at the university was 89 per cent.

Employed at night by the Iowa-Nebraska Light & Power Co., Sutterfield works about seventy hours per week, carrying his school work in the mornings. The support of his mother and four younger children rests almost entirely upon him and his older brother.

The junior prize which has been awarded to Sutterfield was first made to the University trust fund in 1929, by a person who desired to be known as a friend of the university. It was presented in response to appeals for tangible awards which might be given to worthy and needy students. It was awarded for the first time a year ago.

Receipts From Fishing And Hunting Permits Show Popularity.

Expenditures of Park Board Total $176,409 For Ten Months.

Fishing and hunting is becoming more popular in Nebraska. At least more people are purchasing permits, and dollars aren't generally forked over to the state unless something is expected in return.

An audit of the records of the state game and parks commission, records, which has just been completed by State Accountant C. A. Sommer, shows that 7,000 more licenses were purchased in 1928 than in the previous year. The total number of permits taken out last year was 170,240 as compared with 163,355 in 1928. These permits netted the state a dollar each.

Other permits for trapping and raising game birds and fur bearing animals brought the total receipts up to $197,204. Another $653 worth of permits was sold but the money has not yet been collected. Some of this is due from persons authorized to sell permits but more than $400 of the mount is tied up in failed banks.

Sold Fish for $6,321.

In addition to the sale of permits, the commission derived $6,321.29 from the sale of course fish which were seined from lakes and streams and another $5,136 from the sale of confiscated guns, receipts from parks the sale of a small tract of land near Fremont, and damages assessed against game law violators for taking fish or game out of season. This latter source yielded $1,881.

The 1929 legislature appropriated $350,000 for game propagation and conservation, salaries, and the purchase and maintenance of lakes, and $37,000 for the maintenance of the state parks, all of which comes out of the receipts of the commission from its various sources.

The audit as of April 30 shows that the expenditures of the first ten months of the first year were $176,409.28, of which total amount $21,229 was used for the purchase and improvement of lakes. These include a nursery pond in Brown county, sand pits at Louisville, Cottonwood lake in Cherry county, and Long Lake in Brown county.

Other lakes and grounds which have been purchased and which will be paid for in the near future include: Memphis lake, Saunders county, $15,000; Wildcat Hills game reserve, Scotts Bluff county, $2,172; Cottonmill lake, Buffalo county, $4,000; Rowl lake, Antelope county, $1,200; a tract on the Blue river in Seward county, $2,025; and Oxford lake in Furnas county, $1,236. The cost of these new public recreation grounds was $25,633.

The state also acquired an additional 760 acres of creation grounds by gift. These were: The Pressey recreation grounds in Custer county, 80 acres; the Niobrara game reserve in Knox county, 600 acres donated by the federal government; the Massacre Canyon site, 5 acres; and the Fort Kearney park site in Buffalo county, 80 acres.

Holding Ponds Built.

The state board of agriculture gave the commission space at the fair grounds for the construction of transfer and holding ponds, which were built at a cost of $20,000. These holding ponds are used to keep fish in while being distributed in eastern Nebraska.

Of the biennium appropriation, which permits the use of not more than 10 per cent of the receipts for parks, $12,163.51 was spent for salaries, equipment and repairs.

Sommer comments on his report regarding the excellent condition of the department's records, stressing particularly the fact that the losses are so small in the sale of permits. These permits are distributed to agents all over the state, who turn in the receipts at the end of the year.

Baccalaureate For Orthopedic Nurses To Be Held Sunday

The baccalaureate service for the Nebraska orthopedic hospital school of nursing will be held at 7:45 o'clock tonight at the St. Matthew's Episcopal mission at Twenty-fourth and Sewell streets.

Commencement exercises for the two nurses who graduate will be held at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday evening in the reception room of thee orthopedic hospital. The graduates are Katherine Furry of Lexington and Ella Marion Wood of York.

WEAVER TO TAKE PART IN STATE AIRPLANE TOUR

How much time Governor Weaver will be able to spend with the All-Nebraska air tour during the week of June 23 to 28 he cannot tell definitely at this time, but he will go with the party on a part of its schedule at least. He has so informed Chairman Harry B. Sidles of Lincoln, who sent him a letter of invitation to make the tour.

For this week, the governor has a few more commencement speaking engagements to fill, besides giving an afternoon Memorial day address in Lincoln.

He and Mrs. Weaver will go by automobile to Wayne for the forenoon commencement program at the state normal school Wednesday. From there they will drive to Merriman and be overnight guests of State Senator and Mrs. Arthur Bowring. The next day they will proceed to Chadron, where the governor will be the commencement speaker at the state normal school. They will have a drive back to Lincoln in time for Mr. Weaver to make the high school commencement talk at Mead on the evening of May 30.

Mrs. Weaver has never visited Wayne or Chadron, and this will be her first visit to northwestern Nebraska.

At Pawnee City, where the governor spoke at high school graduation exercises Thursday evening, he and Mrs. Weaver with their younger children were entertained at dinner at the home of State Senator Kenneth Wherry. They drove back to Lincoln the same night.

FINANCE FIRM LOCATES HERE

Securities Investment Corp. Opens Office At 1640 O.

The Securities Investment corporation, one of the largest locally owned and operated automobile finance companies operating between Chicago and the Pacific coast and the largest Nebraska owned finance company, has opened an office at 1640 O street.

E. A. Thompson, who for many years has been associated with the company as assistant credit manager and later as assistant manager of the Sioux City branch, will manage the Lincoln office.

The Securities Investment corporation brings to Lincoln a locally owned company with adequate financial facilities to properly handle the requirements of all the better motor car dealers of Lincoln and the Lincoln trade territory.

The company has total assets in excess of $2,800,000 and transacted a volume of business last year of approximately $7,000,000. A large interest in the company is held by Lincoln business men. Numbered among its principal stockholders are John H. Agee, general manager of the Lincoln Telephone nd Telegraph company Thomas C. Woods, H. W. Potter, and Joseph Grainger.

Jackson High School Juniors Give Banquet In Honor of Seniors

Fifty-two seniors of Jackson high school were guests of the juniors at the annual junior-senior banquet held at the Cornhusker hotel Saturday evening. Tables were set to form a letter "S." Subjects for toasts in the program were inspired by the titles of popular songs, music of the various songs preceding each talk.

Margaret Medlar, a junior, was toastmistress. Hugh Foster, persident of the junior class, spoke on "Hello Seniors." Herbert Alpers, president of the seniors, spoke on "We'll Always Remember." Other toasts were given by Miss Florence Jenkins of the faculty on "Sunny Side Up"; Evelyn Weld, senior, "We're Sitting On Top of the World"; Dettajune Travis, junior, "We're Following You," and Principal R. S. Mickle, "Just a Memory."

During the program dances were given by the Misses Elizabeth Gilbertson and Dorothy MacKenzie. A group of songs were sung by Grace Kathan, "blues" singer.

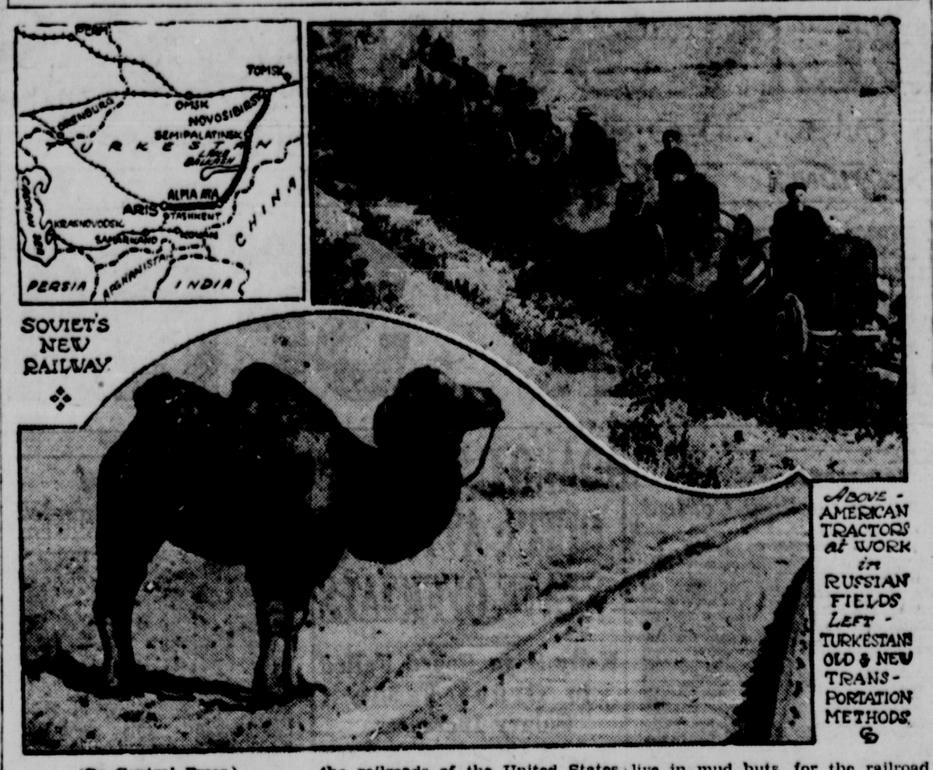

Completing the program, Miss Dorothy Wisda spoke on "The End of a Perfect Day."

The program was arranged by Clara Louise Nebe and Ida Mae Flader, junior class sponsors.

BASIL WOON ARRESTED.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 24—(I. N. S.)—Basil Woon, internationally known author, who wrote such books as "When It's Cocktail Time in Cuba" and "Paris That's Not in the Guide Book," was booked today on charges of possessing intoxicating liquor. He was arrested at his apartment by officers who said that they found Woon entertaining some friends with more than a quart and less than a gallon, and he was released on $100 bail.

Soviet Russia Hails New Railroad As Key Unlocking Untold Wealth in Central Asia

(By Central Press.)

MOSCOW, May 24—The first step in liberating the untold wealth of Central Asia, locked for centuries behind the barriers of poor transportation and primitive farming methods, has been taken by the Russian soviets with the completion of the Turkish railroad linking the Central Asia road in Turkestan with the Trans-Siberian railroad in the north.

Hailed By Soviets.

And throughout Russia the event is being hailed as the greatest single industrial achievement of the communistic government since it came into power twelve years ago. For much as DeWitt Clinton's famous ditch, the Erie canal, and the railroads of the United States tapped the natural resources of the American west, so, the soviets believe, the new railroad will release the vast natural resources of Central Asia.

The primitive and undeveloped areas of Turkestan, excellent land for cotton raising, will now be devoted to the product, the natives no longer being forced to raise their own wheat. With the opening of the new road cheaper wheat from the frain fields of Siberia can be shipped in, releasing the land for cotton planting. In terms of dollars this means much to Russia, for she imports annually some $20,000,000 in United States and Egyptian cotton.

No longer will the inhabitants of this great territory be compelled to live in mud huts, for the railroad makes available lumber from the heavily forested areas of Siberia in the north. Already more modern methods of farming are in evidence. American tractors, entire batteries of them, being on the scene, while the camel, since the day of Marco Polo the chief means of transportation, is fading from thep icture.

Ahead of Schedule.

The railroad has been completed a full year ahead of schedule and was built at a cost of $100,000,000 over a four-year period. It was built under the supervision of William Shatoff, formerly an anarchist in Chicago, who in his years of exile from czarist Russia organized strikes in Passaic and Paterson, N. J., and worked as a pick and shovel man on the Erie railroad.

FEES OF COURT EXCEED EXPENSE

$125,000 Turned Over To County Since 1908 By District Clerk.

Nearly $125,000 in fees has been turned over to general use of Lancaster county from the District court in excess of salary payments in the last twenty-two years, a review of court records completed Saturday afternoon revealed. All of the payments were made during the period J. S. Baer has been clerk of the District court. He became clerk in 1908, before which time no payments above salaries had ever been given the county from court fees. Beginning with a $5,000 payment in 1910, his administration annually turned over sums which ranged from $4,500 in the leanest years to $8,500 in 1921.

During the period from 1908 to April 1, 1927, when salaries were paid out of the fees and the remainder turned over to the county, the clerk turned over a total of $111,579.37. On April 1, 1927, salaries were no longer paid directly out of the fees, all fees being turned over to the county general fund. Salaries were then paid by warrant out of that fund.

From April 1, 1927, to January 1, 1930, the District court clerk turned over $58,197.41 to the county, of which $35,069.99 was paid back in salaries. This left an additional margin cleared from court fees and turned over to the county which amounted to $23,127.42. That made a total of $134,724.79 turned over to the county in excess of salaries during the twenty-two years of Baer's incumbency.

Interment was in Wyuke cemetery.

Politician and Former Sheriff Sent to Prison

Indiana Pair Guilty of Rum Conspiracy by Soliciting Legal Business From Bootleggers.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 24—(I. N. S.)—Federal Judge Robert C. Baltzell today imposed federal prison sentences upon Olin R. Holt, Kokomo attorney and candidate for the democratic nomination for United States senator in 1926 and for governor in 1928, and C. Ora Butler, also of Kokomo, former Howard county sheriff.

Holt was sentenced to eighteen month and Butler to one year and one day at the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kas. They were convicted of conspiring to violate the federal prohibition law.

Holt and Butler were connected with the Hoosier Protective association, according to trial evidence. Testimony was to the effect that bootleggers of Howard and nearby counties were solicited for membership in the association at the price of $3 a week. In return they were to receive the services of Holt as a lawyer when arrested for rum selling and other offenses, according to the testimony.

Butler obtained the members and Holt handled the legal defense, it was alleged.

Harmony Restored as Church Meeting Ends

Daniels Withdraws Minority Report Against Re-Election of Bishop Cannon.

DALLAS, Tex., May 24—(INS)—With harmony restored within its ranks after three weeks of bitter strife, centering principally about Bishop James Cannon, jr., of Washington, D. C., the twenty-first quadrennial conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, was brought to a close here early this afternoon.

The conference ended after a morning session that had the appearance of an old fashioned love feast and was in marked contrast to the stormy sessions of the past two weeks.

The floor of the general assembly was not more than half filled when adjournment was taken Many of the delegates and visitors having left the city after the final business program was completed last night.

Complete Report Adopted.

Peace came to the conference with the final business session when the complete report of the episcopacy committee was formally adopted.

The document, naming the members of the board, on temperance and social service with Bishop Cannon as chairman, was adopted unanimously after Josephus Daniels of North Caroina, a leader of the faction opposed to the prelate, withdrew a minority report protesting against the re-election of Bishop Cannon.

Daniels, hissed three days ago by delegates when he announced opposition to the majority report of the committee of which he was chairman, was given a great ovation as he took the floor and withdrew the minority report.

WILL OPEN NEW GARAGE MONDAY

Schoettler and LaFollette Managers of Firm At 1313 M.

The S and L garage will open for business Monday in the new building at Thirteenth and M streets which also houses the new union bus depot. C. E. Schoettler and E. U. LaFollette are managers of the garage.

Its operation will include storage, washing, polishing and greasing of cars, sale of gasoline and oil, and tire and battery service. The garage will be in no way connected with the bus depot.

The garage is located at 1313 M street and has a sixty-foot frontage on M street with a ninety-foot depth on the first floor, and the second and third floors. Two large doorways, one to be used only as an entrance and the other solely as an exit, face M street.

There is space for 400 automobiles, acording to Mr. Schoettler and Mr. LaFollette, but no more than 350 will be handled to insure protection of all cars from crowding. Fourteen men will be employed.

The firs. floor will be used for greasing, gasoline pumps, and tire and battery service; the second floor for washing and polishing; and cars will be stored on the second and third floors.

Mr. LaFollette, a World war veteran and until recently sundry buyer and sales manager for the Lincoln Drug Co. has lived in Lincoln since 1908. His home is at 2644 Ryons street.

Mr. Schoettler, who lives at 3421 Laura avenue, is a former Lincoln branch manager of the International Harvester Co. He has lived here since 1907.

STOCKS HAVE DULL WEEK

Financial Markets Are Marking Time Due to Listless Trading.

Belief Prevails Corner Has Been Turned In Business Readjustment.

BY W. S. COUSINS.

NEW YORK, May 24—(I. N. S.) There has been slight evidence in the past week of important change or improvement in the general commercial situation, as compared with conditions existent in previous periods. In important financial quarters however, the belief is prevalent that the corner has been turned, and although the process of readjustment to normalcy may be tedious and irregular, there appears to be little doubt but that the latter half of the year will witness activity in the industrial and business world on a normal basis.

The financial markets are marking time, with the dullness and listless tone of the recent trading sessions indicating the standoff attitude of prominent market interests. The more aggressive activity evidenced in the motor and railroad sections of the market has inspired greater confidence in the immediate outlook.

The failure of the bond market to respond to the ease in the credit situation has been a somewhat disquieting point in the financial situation. This has failed to develop as yet, and although the course of prices of premier obligations has tended upward, volume has been of extremely small proportions, with activity in the American Telephone & Telegraph convertibles constituting the bulk of the turnover.

Steel Output Less.

The rate of steel output has fallen a little more in the past week, being down to about 74 per cent of capacity for the industry, as a whole. A hopeful sgin is the fact that the week's fabricated structural steel awards were the largest in volume since the sceond week of February.

Freight car loadings have failed to follow the expected seasonal expansion. For the week ended May 10, loadings totaled 933,931 cars, a decrease of 8,968 cars for the previous week.

A definite turn in the commodity price situation has not yet come, there still being a preponderance of declines in wholesale quotations. In the list compiled by R. G. Dun, thirty-two of the past week's changes out of a total of fifty-two were in a downward direction.

An improvement appears this week in the insolvency record as compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., with total failures in the United States of 480, being thirty-seven less than the total a week ago.

Bank clearings are again lower, according to Bradstreet's, which finds a decline of 1.2 per cent from that of a week ago, and 13.2 per cent from the corresponding week in 1929.

Grain Market Steady.

CHICAGO, May 24 — (INS) — Trade in wheat was moderate today with outside interest still light. Scattered buying on reports of Hessian fly damage in sections of Nebraska and Kansas was responsible for steadiness shown at the close. Corn was rather heavy with favorable weather a bearish factor. Oats and rye were irregular.

Closing prices for wheat were unchange to ½c up; corn ½ to ⅞c off and oats ⅛ to 1¼c lower. Rye finished ½c off to ⅜c up.

Compared with a week ago, wheat was 1 to 1¼c lower, corn 2½ to 3⅛c down and oats 1⅜ to 2⅜c lower. Rye dropped 3¼c to 3½c.

Wheat covered a narrow range most of the week, with trade narrow. Advances were erased by lack of important support, while on decline the market easily became oversold.

Crop conditions were generally favorable both in this country and abroad. Export demand continued light. Outside markets were irregular. Farm stocks in both this country and Canada are presumably smaller than a year ago.

Further selling of Russian wheat was a factor in checking buying in the Liverpool market, which mostly was lower during the week. April exports on wheat and flour were 7,253,000 bushels, against 8,913,600 bushels a year ago.

Continued favorable weather conditions over the corn belt and lack of export business were outstanding depressing influences in corn. Weakness in wheat also tended to lower values. The cash demand was moderate. Argentine shipments are small compared to a year ago.

CHICAGO, May 24 — (INS) — Slightly increased receipts of hogs and expanding shipping outlet practically balanced one another this week, and though fluctuations were more pronounced, most classes sold steady to 10c higher than a week ago. Week's top reached $10.40.

The best light hogs available today sold at $10.30 and best heavies at $10.20. Most of the good hogs of all weights bulked at $9.75 to $10.25. Receipts for the week were 133,000 against 129,000 last week and 118,000 a year ago.

Steers advanced from 15 to 75c this week, with the maximum advance noted on medium to good steers. A better outlet for steers was in evidence owing to an absence of fat cows and heifers. Week's top was $14.35 with few grades better than $14 and most of the heavy and shipping classes at $13.00 to $14.00. Medium to good steers cashed at $11.00 to $13.00.

Cows and heifers moved up 25 to 50c in line with a limited supply. Cows brought $6.00 to $10.00, while heifers ranged from $8.00 to $10.50. Bulls sold 15 to 25c higher, with best at $7.00 to $9.00. The market for calves was elevated 50c with top at $13.00. Receipts of cattle for the week were 42,000, against 39,000 last week and 42,000 a year ago.

The general market for lambs was 50 to 75c above a week ago. Demand was broad and receipts light both locally and at outside points. Spring lambs, mostly from California, topped at $11.75. All of the lambs of the old crop received were shorn and sold at $9.00 to $10.25. Ewes averaged steady at $3.00 to $5.75. Week's receipts totalled 64,000, compared with 77,000 last week and 76,000 a year ago.

Chicago Cotton Lower.

CHICAGO, May 24—(INS)—Scattered commission house selling and lack of buying support figured in lower cotton prices today. Final prices here were off 4 to 21 points. Much colder weather was reported over most sections of the belt. May finished at 15.80; July 16.01; October 14.76 and December 14.82.

Compared with last week, values are 13 to 44 points lower, with new crop months displaying the most weakness.

The market acted nervous during the week and chiefly was influenced by crop news. The government report on acreage and yield for last year was about in line with expectations. Reports from yarn and cloth markets indicated a poor demand, with prices practically unchanged. Outside markets continued uneven.

The government weekly weather report indicated generally favorable conditions for cotton east of the Mississippi valley, but excessive rains were extremely unfavorable from valley sections westward except in more southern districts.

Further Curb on Oil Production is Urged

Plans For Curtailing Competitive Drilling Campaigns Outlined By Leaders.

TULSA, Okla., May 24—(U. P.)—The oil industry, founded upon conditions of extreme competition, may become one of the most co-operative American activities if plans of many of its leaders are adopted.

The co-operative phase of oil production was intensified this weekend at the spring meeting of the American Petroleum institute's division of production here.

In recent years, under the institute's auspices, the remedy of production curtailment was applied to unfavorable market conditions. Through its effectiveness, production has been held as low as 12 per cent of potential.

"We must continue production curtailment and we must curtail drilling operations." E. B. Reeser, president of the institute and head of the Barnsdall corporation, told the thousand oil leaders attending the divisional meeting and the midcontinent scouts and land men convention.

Reeser and William L. Davis, chairman of the institute's division of production, outlined plans for curtailing competitive drilling campaigns. The unit plan of pool operations was proposed by leaders of the institute, which came into being from the national petroleum commission of World war days.

STEADFASTNESS

This bank, during its lifetime, has seen many "bull markets" change into "bear markets," and vice versa. It has seen the nation pass through years of easy money and years of distress.

And throughout its fifty-nine years it has held steadfastly to its purpose of making sure that, come what might, every dollar entrusted to it by depositors would always be worth 100 cents.

This is still our purpose. The pendulum may swing back and forth between depression and prosperity; stocks may rise and stocks may fall; but this bank will continue to provide for the people of Lincoln and Nebraska a financial service of unchanging security—a service that remains staunchly dependable year after year.

CHARACTER

Woods Brothers 6% Convertible Preferred Shares

THE value of a man in business is measured by the strength of his character—intangible qualities, foresight, integrity, tenacity.

It is so with an investment. Its dependability, its value is based on intangible elements. The degree of its security reflects the types of business intelligence, experience and vision possessed by those who direct and dominate the enterprise back of it. If it has endured the hazards of business depression, if it has shown consistent increase in patronage, assets and earnings, if its progress has been steady and certain,—that business has character and justifies the confidence which it invariably wins.

Your attention is directed to the record of Woods Brothers Corporation, its ownership, its management, its assets, its earnings, its prospects. On that record we recommend an investment in its 6% Participating Preferred Shares. A card of inquiry will bring you complete detailed information.

TWO KILLED IN DACCA RIOTING

Fierce Outbreak Reported At Place 150 Miles From Calcutta.

Rioters Loot Shops and Set Fire to Homes Of Hindus.

LONDON, May 24—(INS)—Two natives were killed today and many injured in an outbreak of fierce rioting at Dacca, in Bengal province, 150 miles northeast of Calcutta, according to Exchange Telegraph dispatches.

The rioters, sweeping through the streets shouting their protests against imprisonment of nationalist leaders and the British government's tax on salt, looted a number of shops and set fire to many of the Hindu houses.

A call for reinforcements was sent out by Dacca authorities.

BOMBAY, May 24—(UP)—A procession and demonstration by a large section of the city was staged late today as a preliminary to a secretly planned mass attack tomorrow of the Wadala salt works.

The raid will be the greatest yet made at the works near Bombay, congress leaders said after a two-hour meeting of the war council. Despite the government's police precautions to halt the raid in the Wadala district, where 600 volunteers already have been arrested, the independence leaders were confident of wide support for their plans.

In addition to a partial hartal in Bombay which added employes of railroad work shops and mills to the ranks of demonstrators, the confidence of the leaders was increased by indications that Moslem leaders would take a leading part in the independence movement hence forth. Although many Moslems have charged that success of the movement would be detrimental to them because of the dominance of Hindus, it was arranged for forty Moslems to lead the Wadala raid.

Moslems Urged to Join.

Furthermore, eighty moslem leaders met at Karachi last night under the leadership of Moulvi Mahomed Saddis and passed a resolution urging Moslems to participate in the independence movement. They appealed to Moslems of Karachi and the Sind region—who have often clashed with Hindus in communical fighting—to follow out a program for propaganda against British rule, for picketing of liquor shops and for boycott of foreign goods, particularly foreign clothes.

The procession was held to "congratulate" the casualties in the salt raids, and the demonstrators marched through the principal streets of the native quarter to the Esplanade Maiden, where they held a meeting and heard fiery speeches, denouncing the British.

The injured volunteers — some with their eyes closed as they lay stretched in ambulances and others with garlands of flowers on their bandages—were cheered by crowds that jammed the streets and the square where the meeting was held. Leaders of the parade carried nationalist flags and representatives of the Sikhs carried their native triangular flag of yellow. There was one Turkish national flag.

All factions have been urged to unite in the Wadala raids tomorrow and arrangements were made for a temporary hospital at the home of a Hindu diamond merchant near the depot. Medical equipment was installed and Dr. Sathe was in charge.

Woman 'Lifer' Advises Her Son, Condemned to Die, Against Operation

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., May 24—(I. N. S.)—"Don't let them operate."

These words were sent today in a note to Gordon Stewart Northcott, 22, Riverside "murder farm" slayer, critically ill in the prison hospital with appendicitis, from his mother, Mrs. Louisa Northcott, a "lifer" in the women's quarters.

Northcott himself has refused to submit to an operation, ignoring the advice of Dr. F. Edwyn Van Finkle, prison physician.

"Gordon will pull through without an operation," Mrs. Northcott declared today. "I hope the warden will let me see my baby. He needs my advice even though he is old enough to be his own boss."

Northcott was to have been executed on April 15, 1929, but was granted a stay pending an appeal to the state Supreme court. He was convicted of murdering three small children.

OVER 300 BOYS NOW ENROLLED IN BAND

Rehearsals Expected to Start Soon; New Municipal Group Preparing For First Concert.

Enrollment in the Lincoln Civic Boys band, which is in course of organization by the Lincoln Musicians association had reached 310 Saturday. The time and place of the first meeting of the boys is expected to be announced this week. The classification of the boys is under way and as soon as this is completed the rehearsals will tsart. These will include not only playing, but marching, the latter under the direction of R. O. T. C. officers, and members of the association who have had army training.

Rehearsals for the first concert at Antelope park on June 1 by the Lincoln Municipal band under the direction of Arthur J. Babich, have started. The concert will be in the new bandstand, thirty-five players taking part. As soon as this concert is over the band will start rehearsing for the June 29 concert which is to be directed by Karl L. King, director of the Muncipal band at Fort Dodge, Ia. After the opening number, which will be directed by Mr. Babich, Mr. King will take the baton and direct the players in a concert of his own compositions. A delegate of Fort Dodge music enthusiasts is expected to come to Lincoln for the concert.

FIGHT TO REFER DRY LAW OPENS

Opening Gun Fired Before G.O.P. Convention in Washington State.

BELLINGHAM, Wash., May 24—(I. N. S.)—The opening gun in the fight to refer the prohibition issue to a referendum of the people was fired this afternoon in the keynote speech by Dr. John C. Siegle, temporary chairman, before the republican state convention.

Dr. Siegle charged that "prohibition has broken respect for all laws, has made criminals of many American youths and has created a groundwork for the most stupendous graft system in the history of the civilized world resulting in a government not of and by the people but by a fanatical minority.

"Men have been beaten, women shot—aye, even mothers with babes at their breasts have been thrown into jail because someone found beer in their homes, while the owners of big joints have gone unmolested," Dr. Siegle declared.

"No nation," he continued, "will long endure these conditions wherein government is transferred from the hands of the common people to the hands of the fanatics."

Dr. Siegle condemned any participation by the United States in the World court, declaring the court was a plant of internationalists and European statesmen to untie the purse strings of the United States, the world's wealthiest nation.

Future of Pacific northwest industries should be assured by a congressional consideration of a tariff on lumber, logs and shingles, Dr. Siegle said.

The speech was greeted by a wild demonstration of cheering and handclapping from the 1071 accredited delegates.

Resolution Awarding Medals to Byrd Aides Is Signed by Hoover

WASHINGTON, May 24—(I. N. S.)—The white house announced President Hoover signed early today the joint resolution authorizing special congressional medals to the officers and men of the Byrd Antarctic expedition.

Among other bills signed were:

Bill providing five-year construction and maintenance program for the bureau of fisheries; bill authorizing the postmaster general to impose demurrage charges on undelivered C. O. D., parcel post packages; bill providing patents for plans; bill providing for the lease of oil and gas deposits in or under railroads and other rights of way, and a bill granting pensions and increased pensions to certain soldiers and sailors of the regular army and navy.

Mrs. W. F. Ackerman entertained the P. E. O's at her home Tuesday evening.

BRITISHER HELD IN LIQUOR PLOT

Accused of Plan to Have Social Lights Smuggle Rum Into U. S.

Indicted in New York and Pleads Not Guilty To Conspiracy.

NEW YORK, May 24—(I. N. S.)—With the arrest of Edward Tatham of London, director of a famous British wine manufacturing firm, the federal authorities believed tonight they had nipped in the bud an alleged conspiracy to bring fine wines and liquors into the United States for a select group of wealthy and socially prominent persons.

Tatham's ambitious scheme, according to Assistant United States Attorney Robert B. Watts, was to have wealthy persons here pick up his shipments in their own yachts at sea. The yachts were either to make trips to such rum rendezvous as St. Pierre Miquelon, the Bahamas or Cuba, or to meet the rum runners beyond the twelve-mile limit.

Arrested on Train.

The swanky young Englishman, who was arrested last night in a drawing room of the Toronto Limited at Grand Central station, was arraigned today before Federal Judge Caffey on a charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws and held in $10,000 bail for further hearing on Tuesday.

Tatham was secretly indicted by the federal grand jury last Wednesday. His firm was also named in the indictment. Federal officials claimed Tatham and his associates planned to operate their own fleet of boats along the Atlantic seaboard and to spread their agents throughout the country.

The idea of utilizing private yachts for bringing in contraband liquor was inspired, it is believed, by the fact that such vessels are subjected to comparatively little supervision beyond inspection by health officials at Quarantine.

Hearing Next Tuesday.

Tatham was in a philosophical mood when arraigned. He was nattily attired. His counsel entered a plea of not guilty. The hearing was adjourned until Tuesday to allow the attorney to familiarize himself with his client's case.

Federal agents who arrested Tatham found a social register in one of his hand bags. He is said to have had a wide acquaintance with socially prominent persons and with members of yacht clubs.

It was the first time that a British company has been indicted in the courts of the United States for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

The conspiracy began in January, 1929, according to the authorities, and during the last eighteen months Tatham and his associates, British and American, have been perfecting their organization.

MERGER BIG OIL HOLDINGS LIKELY

Continental, Tidewater Interests Involve $275,000,000.

KANSAS CITY, May 24—(INS)—A merger between the Continental Oil Co., Ponca City, Okla., and the Tidewater Oil Co., Chicago, involving approximately $275,000,000 in oil properties and leases was reported as imminent in financial circles here today. The proposed consolidation to be submitted to stockholders of both companies in July.

The merger, if consummated, will place the combined corporation at the top of the heap of the independents and will be exceeded in size only by the Standard and Dutch Shell groups.

The Continental's consolidated balance sheet of March 30 this year indicates a book value of its properties of $153,358,376, including a reserve of $1,383,303 for contingencies applicable to outstanding stock equivalent to $32.33 a share.

Assets Over Hundred Million.

Total assets of Tidewater are shown in its 1928 balance sheet at $122,968,051.43.

Authorized capital stock of Continental is 6,000,000 shares of no par value, of which 4,473,103 is outstanding. The funded debt is $32,111,000.

This company, formerly the Marland Oil Co., holds leases of 2,055,163 acres of oil land for development in Oklahoma, Kansas, Texas, Colorado, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, Utah, Wyoming, Arkansas, Louisiana and California. Of this, 153,873 acres are rated as producing territory.

Lewis Seeks Women on Jury to Try Him For Julian Oil Collapse

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 24—(U. P.)—The trial of S. C. Lewis, former head of the Julian Petroleum corporation, on a charge of attempted jury bribing, will be resumed here Monday with the former oil promoter battling to secure a majority of women on the jury which will try him.

The third day of the trial was short due to the Saturday half-holiday and ended without one of the twelve talesmen permanently seated in the jury box.

During the session Lewis used eight challenges to excuse men and the state used four to exclude women.

Lewis explained his desire for women to newspapermen by saying he believed them better fitted to hear the involevd case becouse they were not as familiar with the case.

The former promoter, now on leave from McNeil island where he is serving seven years for fraudulent use of the mails in connection with the oil company collapse, is charged by the state with having attempted to bribe Moscalino Love.

BE PREPARED, SAYS IL DUCE

Italy Armed and Sure of Destiny, Mussolini Tells 100,000.

Shouts of "Down With France" Raised in Crowd of Fascists.

MILAN, Italy, May 24—(UP)—Premier Benito Mussolini climaxed a series of vigorous nationalistic speeches in Tuscany today when he summoned a crowd of 100,000 enthusiastic demonstrators to "raise your banner; raise your musket," and be prepared for the future.

"Today the Italian people are an armed people, sure of their destiny," the fascist premier shouted in the spirit of his leadership in the earlier days of the black shirt regime. "We must be prepared for any surprises of tomorrow."

Shouts of "Down with France" were raised in the crowd that stood shoulder to shoulder in the cathedral square, ignoring intermittent showers and cheering the premier.

Defends Fascist Regime.

"I am the chief and the creator," Mussolini declared in defending the fascist regime. "And I will defend it (fascism) and promote its development."

It was several minutes before he could continue as the crowd shouted "Long live Il Duce" and threw hats and papers into the air.

The premier whose recent speeches have been criticized in the French press and in other countries as "sword rattling," referred to the reaction in foreign countries and military actions in foreign countries.

He criticized Italians who still wished to be under a "prime minister who spoke at banquets, in order to rid his stomach of wind," and said the fascist regime was not born "in the decomposition of parliamentary tricks."

"It was born through the bloody efforts of black shirts in revolution which had gone through a struggle for a period of years," he said. "And we are sufficiently informed to know what they beyond our borders are prepared to do and to know what spirit dominates our neighbors."

Again the cries of "Down with France" were heard from the crowd before which the premier stood on a high, pulpit-like platform decorated with the tri-color and with fascist arms on red and gold velvet hangings.

The premier denied implications which he said were printed in the foreign press that his visit to the provinces was connected with the economic specification program.

"We cannot deceive ourselves and must not deceive the people," he continued. "We are sure of our future because of our precise will and because we prepare with all our strength so as not to be surprised by events. Raise your banner; raise your musket."

BLANTON FAILS TO TAKE OATH

Clancy Cites Technicality To Delay Swearing in Until June 20.

Michigan Representative Hits Texan's Method Campaigning.

WASHINGTON, May 24—(INS)—Thomas Blanton, the fiery Texan, will not be sworn in as a member of the house from the Seventeenth congressional district this session if Representative Clancy, republican, of Michigan, can prevent it, Clancy announced today.

Blanton appeared to take the oath but Speaker pro tem Snell refused to recognize him for that purpose.

Request that Blanton be sworn was made by Representative Garner of Texas, democratic leader, who said Blanton did not have his credentials, but that there was no question about his election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Representative Lee.

Under Texas law, acording to Clancy, a member cannot be given credentials until thirty days after election. Blanton, therefore, he said, can be kept out of the house until June 20.

Campaign Methods Attacked.

Blanton's method of campaigning, during which he is alleged to have assailed expenses of house members designated to attend funerals of deceased congressmen, is said to have aroused Clancy's ire.

"I am reliably informed that Mr. Blanton issued advertisements and press statements in Texas that if and when elected he would immediately rush to Washington and take steps to kill alleged unwise and vicious legislation which he described with intemperate language," said Clancy.

"I believe in the recent campaign that Mr. Blanton has reflected on the honor, integrity and ability of the house and that he therefore does not come with clean hands to ask unusual privileges and courtesies from the house."

Blanton Former Representative.

Blanton was a member of the house for years before he sought the democratic nomination for senate in the last campaign. He had announced his candidacy against the man who succeeded him, R. Q. Lee. When Lee died, he defeated Lee's widow for the unexpired term.

Blanton was a stormy petrel in the house for years. He frequently prevented passage of legislation on the private and consent calendars, where objection of one member is sufficient to block a bill.

In 1921 Blanton was censured by the house for inserting a letter in the Congressional Record, which, his accusers alleged, was obscene. The censure vote was 293 to 8.

"It's a Wonder I'm Alive," Says British Girl After Lone Flight to Australia

Amy Johnson Has Harrowing Experience With Jungle Men On Airplane Trip From England; Hailed As "The Girl Lindbergh."

(Copyright, 1930, by International News Service.)

PORT DARWIN, Australia, May 24.—(I. N. S.)—"Gee, I'm glad to be here. It's a wonder I'm alive."

With these words, Amy Johnson, Britain's most daring girl flier, greeted International News Service tonight at government house, where she is the lionized guest of the Australian authorities following her sensational solo flight from England to Australia in nineteen days.

Radiant and smiling, and showing traces of the ordeal of her long flight from the island kingdom to its continental possession, the 23-year-old girl flier related with modesty and enthusiasm the unusual adventures she encountered on the journey.

Her greatest scare, she said, came when she landed her second-hand Moth plane at Timor, across the Timor sea from Port Darwin.

"I brought the plane down in the dark," Miss Johnson said. "Hardly had I climbed out of the cockpit when a lot of black men, carrying knives, swords, spears and every imaginable kind of primitive weapon, dashed out of their little huts.

Quivered from Head to Foot.

"Gaping at my plane and chattering in their own incomprehensible language, their appearance so frightened me that I quivered from head to foot.

"They were good to me, however. Naturally, I couldn't speak a word of their language, and they didn't know a syllable of English, but instinctively they did the right thing.

"They led me over miles of wild country, cutting a way for me through undergrowth and protecting me on all sides with their spears and swords, until we reached a little mission church where an European pastor was stationed.

"I need hardly say I was glad to see him."

Although she has accomplished a flight which has made her the idol of the British empire, with no less a complimentary sobriquet than "the girl Lindbergh," Miss Johnson declared she has never met any of the romance aviation is supposed to hold.

"For me," she said, "aviation has meant working all day long in a stuffy office and then getting myself dirty and greasy from cleaning an airplane engine."

Failed to Break Record.

Miss Johnson left Croyden aerodrome, just outside of London, on May 5, in the hope of beating Capt. Bert Hinkler's record of fifteen days for a solo flight from England to Australia. Because of forced landings due to gasoline shortage as well as other set-backs, the flight took her nineteen days.

The aviatrix was accorded a tremendous ovation when she brought her little plane down on the Port Darwin field. Bronzed from wind and sun and exhausted after the ordeal of the flight, she was taken at once to government house, where after a brief official ceremony of reception, she was allowed to rest.

Miss Johnson plans to fly to Sydney shortly where a tremendous ovation awaits her. She hopes to be able to fly back to England, and will again attempt to lower Hinkler's record for the journey.

DEVOE AUDITOR TELEPHONE CO.

Named to Fill Vacancy Caused by Death of W. L. Lemon.

The appointment of I. J. Devoe as general auditor of the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. to fill the vacancy caused by the death of W. L. Lemon was announced Saturday by J. H. Agee, general manager of the company.

Mr. Devoe's service in the telephone industry dates back to July, 1914, when following his graduation from college, he was employed by the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. in the accounting department. Two years later he joined the Monroe Independent Telephone Co. at Albion, Neb., which operated ten exchanges, as general auditor.

In July, 1918, he was appointed telephone accountant for the Nebraska state railway commission where he had charge of the auditing and supervised the accounting practices of more than 200 telephone companies throughout the state of Nebraska. Two years later Mr. Devoe joined the Western Good Roads Service Co. of Lincoln as secretary-treasurer and auditor, where he remained until September, 1923, when he was appointed chief accountant of the state railway commission. In this position he had entire supervision over and made all investigations on behalf of the commission of all public utilities throughout the state. He also conducted the investigations for the commission following applications made by electric utilities for security issues.

On June 1, 1929, Mr. Devoe resigned his position to become assistant general auditor of the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. Mr. Devoe is well-known by telephone men over the state. He has for several years been one of the principal speakers at state and district telephone meetings. Mr. Devoe is also prominent in business and social affairs in Lincoln, and has taken an active part in civic and club affairs.

PRESENTATION OF WOODMEN TROPHY MONDAY EVENING

State of Nebraska camp No. 2266, Modern Woodmen of America, will meet Monday evening at the Knights of Pythias hall, for the presentation of the loving cup which is offered to the camp making the largest gain in the state each year. The trophy becomes the permanent property of the camp having been won three consecutive times.

Out of the many camps in the entire jurisdiction, only ten have been successful in the winning of the cup for three successive years.

The presentation will be made by F. R. Korns of Des Moines, Ia., a member of the executive council and a noted speaker.

During the evening there also will be an adoption of a class of candidatese, followed by an exhibition drill, moving pictures. The program will end with a "smoker." All Woodmen are invited to attend.

81st Birthday

William H. Hopkins, pioneer resident of Lincoln, is celebrating his eighty-first birthday anniversary today at his home, 1629 Q street. Mr. Hopkins came to Lincoln in 1871, and for many years was engaged in the lumber business where he was familiarly known to a large circle of patrons and friends as "Billy." He is a charter member of Lincoln lodge, No. 16, Knights of Pythias, and has been a member of the order since 1877.

BRITISH MEAT MART SOUGHT BY AMERICANS

LONDON, May 25—(INS)—Concern is expressed by English meat firms at the apparent determination of American meat concerns to gain control of Smithfield market, London, England's meat center.

Since Smithfield market opened 60 years ago, the foreign meat trade has expanded until now it embraces 80 per cent of the total. London requires 240,000 tons of meat a year, and the British Isles and Ireland send only 40,000 tons to the market.

American meat concerns are now busily engaged in negotiating for the purchase of the major meat businesses in the market and it is feared that the tempting prices offered will result in American ownership.

Offer of $50,000.

The most recent transaction, which is now awaiting the approval of the market committee, is an American firm's offer of $50,000 merely for the tenancy of three advantageously placed stalls. Other deals are being considered, among them an offer of $125,000 for a group of stalls.

The stalls are not leased for a number of years, but on a weekly tenancy. This means that any firm is liable to lose its tenancy on a week's notice whatever it may have paid another firm for the transfer of the stalls. It is therefore obvious that the American firms intend to push their business, otherwise they would not be prepared to pay such large prices for them at such a risk.

Expansion of American businesses on the market will lead to a freezing out of English produce, it is believed.

DISCOVERS MANY LIQUOR BARS IN NEW YORK HOMES

PARIS, May 24—That everything seems to be ready-made and every flat equipped with a cocktail bar—and what cocktails!—is what struck Canadian Jacques Dureste most on a recent visit to New York. Dureste now lives in London and has written about his journey in the continental edition of the Daily Mail.

"Most homes in New York seem utterly devoid of any personality," says Mr. Dureste. "Nothing intimate seems to be on view and there is absolutely no individuality.

'Queried about some empty bookshelves, a friend of mine replied to the effect that when he took over the apartment the outgoing tenant wanted some two hundred dollars for the books and that he could get plenty of books for twenty-five to fill up the shelves-"

The writer was amazed at the extravagant rentals for ugly, bizzarre, apartments along Park avenue and disliked the "infernal" radios playing incessantly, even on the train.

I New York he noticed that the residents were living in terror of fire and that the greatest care is exercised at all times when leaving apartments or offices to see that all cigarets are extinguished.

He found that the best motorcars in New York are taxis, but that they are too well-heated, being in fact "Turkish Baths."

Mary Lewis Reduces Weight By Thirty Pounds For Film Debut

HOLLYWOOD, May 24—(I. N. S.)—New York won't know Mary Lewis when she makes her next appearance in the Metropolitan Opera. The well-rounded prima donna who came to the film capital to face the cameras, has become a slim, willowy girl.

If you would be cold and statistical about it, Miss Lewis has reduced thirty pounds. It all came about by reason of the fact that cameras are candid, even crude, about matters of avoirdupois. Cameras have no heart. They reveal all.

So when Miss Lewis came here to make a picture, it was earnestly suggested to her that she reduce, to regain that girlish figure which alone can make an actress acceptable as a movie queen. The singer took the hint, and when she returns to the east many is the heart that should beat wildly to see the beautiful Lewis with her hair falling over her slender shoulders, playing Marguerite in "Faust."

No Double-Chinned Singers.

The film colony believes that talking pictures will toll the knell of double-chinned, heavyweight sopranos and contraltos, of obese bassos and fleshy tenors. It will come about by the employment of singers in pictures. Obesity is persona non grata in Hollywood; it is not at all necessary to have a big voice to sing in talkies. A little turn of the volume dial, and the sound engineer can make a voice boom out, or soften it until it sounds a mile away.

The cameras reveal fatness, and the film public does not care to have its heroine anything but beautiful. Public taste, in the opinion of the movie makers, will demand the same eye and ear appeal from opera singers as it does from film heroines.

Will Dieting Hurt Voice.

Of course there is still the question of whether a slender man or woman can support the voice needed in an operatic role: whether it will be possible for singers with big voices to diet and exercise until they are youthful in form, without impairing the qualities of their voices. Any size voice will do in a sound studio, but opera houses don't have "mixers" to regulate the volume.

Everett Marshall, another Metropolitan star, is of those who believe talking pictures will reform opera in regard to weight.

"Opera has become conscious of its bombast and avoirdupois, conevils in music drama," he says. sidered heretofore as necessary "Impresarios no longer can cast the obese basso profundi and multichinned prima donna in choice roles and get away with it.'

Probably we'll have to just wait and see.

Sweltering pedestrians on Michigan avenue in Chicago envied this young couple, Gladys Young and Frank J. Collins, as they displayed the latest shorts for men and women during a fashion show.

United States Army Aviators Have Odd Insignias Painted On Planes

MATHER FIELD, May 24—(I. N. S.)—Uncle Sam's daredevils of the skies, may laugh at death, but they are a superstitious lot, it would seem, down to the last man of them.

For when the army's air fleet swarmed over this field in preparation for its annual maneuvers, here are some of the strange, and sometimes weird insignias that were seen painted on tse ships of the various squadrons:

Thirteenth squadron, third attack group—A grinning skeleton, with a scythe, a death's head forming the number "13', and a bloody sword.

Grim Reapers.

They are known as the "grim reapers,' and are commanded by Major Davenport Johnson.

Ninetieth squadron, third attack group—a pair of African dominoes (dice), on the faces of which have been painted a "four" and a "three —a natural "seven."

The planes in this group are named. There is the plane of Lieutenant Hines, commander, which is known as "Tom-Jack."

Others of these swift attacking planes are named "Bertha," "There an' Back,' Red Head and and last of all "Unguluk."

Named For Eskimos.

The last one is the ship of Lieutenant Jack OConnell, who solemnly vows it is named for an Eskimo sweetheart, who still waits for him in the frozen north. He met her, he said, on a hunting trip to Alaska.

Twentieth squadron, second bombing group—A ferocious and bewhiskered gentleman of Sicilian features, hurling a Chicago pineapple (blackhand bomb). Major Hugh Kerr commands this outfit. outfit.

Ninety-sixth squadron, second bombing group—a red devil thumbhis nose forward at the enemy.

Ninety-first observation squadron, from San Francisco—An armored knight, astride a horse, in pursuit of a red devil and prodding him with a spear.

The motto is a familiar one: "While There's Life There's Hope.

The group is commanded by Captain Walter F. Kraus.

Ninety-fifth pursuit squadron, from San Diego—a grinning mule doubled up, prepared for a knockout.

Bees Double For Airplanes In Hollywood Sound Motion Pictures

HOLLYWOOD, May 24—(I. N. S.) Don't let them fool you in these talking pictures. Next time you see a movie in which there is the roar of an airplane motor, nudge your neighbor and tell him it isn't a motor at all that he is listening to, but a bee in a bottle. The chances are a hundred to one you will be correct. If it isn't a bee in a bottle, it is a handful of beans on the head of a drum.

The secret leaked out in an interview with William Dietz, the camera and sound effect magician. In filming air scenes, he said, the sound of an airplane motor would be too terrific for the sensitive microphones, so a bee acts as double for the sky ship.

One bee in a bottle sounds like one airplane motor; two bees in a bottle, like two airplane motors and so on. A hive of bees, it is assumed, would sound like a long view into the future, when there won't be any more blue sky, but just a cloud of airplanes and other gravity bafflers.

For the approaching and going-away sounds thhat airplanes make, Dietz uses a handful of beans, placed on the head of a drum. A me anyway, bees and airplanes sound so much alike the way Dietz handles them.

motor is placed within the drum. Rubber flanges on the wheel of the motor start a vibration on the drum head which causes the beans to jump around slightly on the parchment. A microphone is listening eagerly, and to hear the sound track on the film tell it, you would think you heard a flock of airplanes approaching or departing in the distance. The motor is "revved" up or down to give the effect.

Perhaps it is a little mean to disillusion you, but you won't believe

PRESS A BUTTON AND FEEL BETTER

CLEVELAND, May 24—(I. N. S.)—"How do you feel today?"

Badly."

Well then just press a button. No one on the Colorama and you will be amazed at how well you feel all of a sudden.

But first what is the Colorama? Here is how it is described. An object with wires and levers which controls your emotion by means of colored lights.

The Colorama has just been completed by F. J. Cadenas, a General Electric corporation engineer. Cadenas claims that by means of the colorama a tired business man by just pressing a button will be full of pep. If you have a fierce temper press another button and you become meek as a lamb, according to its inventor. The Colorama can be used for many other things, declared Cadenas.

The machine will be given a test soon to prove its worth.

Asks For Rebate On 40-Year-Old Tickets

DALLAS, Tex., May 24—(I. N. S.)—Forty years ago a west Texas man paid $2 for a pair of railroad tickets, which he failed to use, and now he has asked the Texas & Pacific railway here to pay back his money.

He said in December, 1892, he bought the tickets from Weatherford to Fort Worth, and while waiting he received an urgent call from the station and missed the train.

ASSERTS "FOURTH OF JULY" REALLY IS SEPTEMBER 3

CHICAGO, May 24—(I. N. S.)—The idea of a new Independence day to supplant July 4, is contained in a suggestion made here by J. Henry Smythe, Jr., of New York, in connection with Chicago's century of progress celebration to be held here in 1933.

In an interview at the Hamilton club in this city, Smythe, who established Franklin day in honor of Benjamin Franklin, suggested that the forthcoming celebration serve also to mark the 150th anniversary of the independence of the United States.

For, Smythe points out, although the Declaration of Independence was signed on July 4, 1776, it was not until September 3, 1783, that the treaty of peace with Great Britain, in which that country recognized the United States as an independent nation, was signed.

"That date," he said, referring to September 3, 1783, "might be as important today in our history as July 4, or perhaps more so, if it had received the proper backing at the start. It just happened that July 4, the day of signing the Declaration of Independence was selected as the day for celebrating our independence instead of September 3, which is just as logical a day from the standpoint of historical significance.

"Chicago could enhance its own celebration and introduce a novel idea by associating it with this important but apparently little known historical event."

Smythe has coined more than 1,000 successful patriotic and political slogans and was a leader in the fight in the Methodist church to life the church's ban on amusements.

INQUIRY SHIFTED IN CURTIS CASE

Milwaukee Men Claim Approached Regarding Postoffice Contract.

CHICAGO, May 24—(U. P.)—The inquiry into fees collected by Harry K. Curtis, son of Vice President Curtis, in connection with letting of government contracts, shifted to Milwaukee today when contractors there advised they had been approached before contracts were let on Milwaukee's new postoffice.

Curtis was questioned here a few days ago, declaring that the fees collected were for legal services. Various contractors told Patrick Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney's office, that they had paid Curtis the fees in expectation of being awarded bids on government work.

Curtis said he had received fees amounting to about $10,000, but that most of this had been returned. He denied the money was collected in return for any influence he might wield in awarding the contracts.

Three Milwaukee contractors notified Roche that they had been approached by Mike Malloy regarding the letting of contracts on the postoffice. Malloy was named by the Chicago contractors as the man who approached them, claiming to represent Curtis.

LEO RUSCHENBERG DEAD.

DENVER, May 24—(I. N. S.)—Leo Ruschenberg, 70, pioneer musician and known throughout the west as a violin maker and a friend of Buffalo Bill Cody, was dead at his home here today.

Martial Law Lifted in Town of Sherman, Tex.

Fourteen Indicted for Mob Violence; Thirteen Others Arrested by Military Court.

SHERMAN, Tex., May 24—(I. N. S.) — Martial law, in effect here since the mob violence on May 9, was lifted at noon today.

Military authorities relinquished their control after a thorough investigation into the disorders which led to the lynching of George Hughes, 41-year-old negro charged with criminal assault, and the burning of the Grayson county courthouse and some negroproperty.

As a result of the investigation, fourteen men are now under indictment on charges of rioting, arson and burglary. Their cases have been transferred to Dallas, where they will shortly face trial. Thirteen other prisoners, arrested on evidence gathered by the military court of inquiry, are still in jail here awaiting formal charges.

Restoration of civil rule was ordered by Gov. Dan Moody after local military leaders had advised him that their probe had been completed and no further disorders were expected.

Three units of national guardsmen were to entrain for home this afternoon.

Firestone brought out for automobile use:

—The first straight-side tire.

—The first rubber non-skid tread.

—The first commercial demountable rim.

—The first patented Gum-Dipping process.

—The first balloon tire.

Performance

Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires;

—hold all world's records on road and track for safety, mileage, speed and endurance.

—for ten consecutive years have won the 500 mile Indianapolis Endurance Race.

—were on winning cars in Pike's Peak Race—where a slip meant death.

—were on the Studebaker car which on a board track at Atlantic City in 1928 went 30,000 miles in 26,326 minutes.

—ran 71,351 miles on a Detroit taxicab, before the first tire was replaced.

—were on the G. M. C. truck carrying a two-ton load that hung up the Coast-to-Coast endurance record.

—for 10 years have been sold on a mileage cost basis to taxicab and bus lines in greater volume than any other tires, and now equip the world's largest taxicab fleet and the world's longest bus line.

THE FIRESTONE COMPANY gained its first success years ago by devising a rubber carriage tire and a method of attaching which was better than anything owned by the carriage tire trust. When Firestone wanted to make automobile tires, the way was barred by a trust holding the clincher patents for fastening the tire to the rim. Firestone invented a new way—which knocked the value out of the trust's patents and developed into the straight-side tire used everywhere today. Henry Ford, just starting volume production, gave the first order for them.

LATER, when all the rim patents were pooled in a trust, Firestone set up a rim factory and broke the monopoly. Still later, when an inventor asserted a basic patent on all demountable rims and the manufacturers began to pay license fees, Firestone fought the claim from a new angle and proved it fraudulent. When, just a few years ago, the British rubber planters entered into an arrangement artificially to raise the price of rubber Firestone almost alone and unaided fought the monopoly.

FIRESTONE did not fight these monopolies for the sake of fighting. They had to be fought because the Firestone policy demands that a tire price include materials, workmanship, a reasonable profit—and nothing else.

FIRESTONE has defeated every monopoly. Firestone has done all the fighting but the fruits of victory belong to everyone. They have made every tire cheaper and save the public at least fifty million dollars a year.

STANDING out against monopolies and high prices is a part of a great tradition—a tradition which has been responsible for every notable advance in tire making. It is the tradition of leadership. The pressure is always to make tires that will more than meet every need and give more value than money can be expected to buy. The obligation is absolute and admits of no compromise.

THIS policy has created great resources. The resources give further and greater force to the policy. The rubber flows in Firestone hands from the trees, the fabric travels from the cotton fields through Firestone Mills—everything meets in Firestone Factories. At every point the control is Firestone's. There are no outside profits.

NO FIRESTONE Tire is expensive. The highest priced are, in point of service, very cheap. But the objective of years has been to make a tire at a low price that would not compromise on design, material or workmanship.

THAT tire has now been made. Firestone now announces a new line of tires at prices only Firestone could make. They are Firestone Tires. They are sold as Firestone Tires. And they are sold by dealers who are trained and whose service stores are equipped to ensure that each tire bearing the name Firestone fulfills its obligation.

THESE tires are now with Firestone Dealers. Ask to see the Firestone line of Anchor Double-Breaker Gum-Dipped Balloons.

Bull Fighting Once Had Religious Significance, Declares Authority

CHICAGO, May 24.—(I. N. S.)—Bull fighting, now regarded merely as a sport, and confined largely to Mexico and Spain, once had a religious significance and was common in many parts of the world, according to Dr. Berthold Laufer, curator of anthropology at the Field Museum of Natural History here.

Among six cast brass figures from Borneo recently presented to the museum by N. H. Heeraman-tack of New York there is one that represents two fighting bulls with lowered heads, intense with motion, trying to gore each other. Standing behind each is depicted a man eagerly watching the outcome of the duel.

Agricultural Ritual.

In its origin, the custom of holding public contests between bulls, or bulls and men, formed part of a ritual in connection with agriculture, according to Dr. Laufer. The rite of the bullfight was supposed to promote the fertility of the fields or to forecast the crop output, he says. The ox, domesticated chiefly for drawing the plow and thus helping man to secure his daily bread, was regarded as sacred in all ancient civilizations of Asia, and there is evidence that ritual bullfights date back as early even as prehistoric times. Dr. Laufer says:

"In the art of ancient Crete contests between bulls and young men or women are represented. In ancient Greece 'bull-baiting,' as it was called, was held in honor of Poseidon, god of the sea. In ancient China the living ox was replaced by an earthenware image which personified the spring; it was beaten with the intention of beating the spring itself to hasten its arrival. The underlying idea was that of a struggle between man and a beast endowed with supernatural powers and put to death so that its vigor might transfuse itself into the growing crops.

Animals Carefully Selected.

"Where ritual bullfights take place, the animals are carefully selected and trained. Shortly before the combat their pugnacity is aroused by forcing potent liquors down their throats. The victor in the duel is led in triumphal procession to the accompaniment of drums and chants. He is then sacrificed to the guardian deity of the crops whose representative he is, by the chief of the tribe in his capacity as priest. No blood is allowed to flow; the animal is either clubbed to death or a spike is driven into its forehead. His flesh is then divided and solemnly consumed at a ceremonial banquet of the community that usually ends in a wild drinking orgy. Finally the horns of the slain animal are set up on a tall pole in a public place and exalted as cult objects.

"This custom is still observed by the aboriginal hill-tribes of southern China and Indo-China, in Malaysia and in Korea. At Memphis in Egypt bulls bred for the purpose were made to fight one another, the victor being awarded a prize. Bullfights are still common in all Malay states not under British rule. It is a curious fact that the Malay state of Menangkabau in Sumatra owes its name to a contest of this sort as far back as the fourteenth century, the name meaning "vanquished warabao" (water-buffalo). In Madagascar fights between bulls were the favorite sport of the former sovereigns and their courtiers, who availed themselves of such occassions for getting royally drunk."

What's Wrong With American Youth? Nothing, But Any Answer Will Do

NEW YORK, May 24.—(I. N. S.)—What's wrong with American youth? That question will produce a first class argument anywhere. At the moment, in fact, it has instituted a rather warm discussion in Gotham.

The recent "secret report" of Mlle. Marie Chaptal, president of the International Council of Nurses, to the League of Nations child welfare committee at Geneva, Switzerland, estimated that the boys and girls of New York and other cities were in a very bad way indeed. The report went so far as to characterize conditions in New York as "approaching depths, moral and physical, as would appall the most experienced social workers."

Social Workers Satisfied.

Far from being appalled, most social service and child welfare workers here contemplate the scene with positive satisfaction. A few are indignant. Mlle. Chaptal is, they say, all—well misinformed.

Says Walter T. Diack, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of New York.

"Mlle. Chaptal doesn't know what she's talking about. We have the most wonderful young people right now that this country has ever known. They are a splendid lot."

The report of Mlle. Captal had said that one of the principal dangers to girls of the working class lies in a lack of family unity and the habit of seeking recreation outside the home."

Delinquency Decreasing.

Henry L. Chute, general secretary of the National Probation association, believes that "we can be sure that delinquency has been decreasing among the young to a marked degree." Their health, he adds, is better than ever before.

Victor Manning, executive secretary of the family welfare association which is in contact with 300,000 families through the country answers that with:

"We are more and more impressed with the strength of family life."

And Miss Edith Odes, who directs a free employment bureau, adds that the vast majority of boys and girls who are forced to leave school and work, accept their burdens with a grave sense of responsibility and without damage to their moral fibre.

What has been the effect of prohibition on the younger generation?

Mlle. Chaptal reported that prohibition was responsible for an increase in juvenile delinquency. In homes where parents are inveterate drinkers, the children lose respect for all law.

Prohibition Has No Effect.

In that particular, Mlle. Chaptal found support. Presiding Justice Franklin Chase of the New York children's court reiterated his opinion of last September when he said that "prohibition has not had the slightest result in reducing delinquency." On the other hand, Justice Chase, said, on that occasion. "It is breeding a widespread disrespect for law and making it exceedingly difficult to prove to our children the wisdom of our system of government in general."

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, chairman of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, said she "was quite prepared to accept the views' of Justice Chase.

But the Salvation Army lassies stand united in the opinion expressed recently by Commander Evangeline Booth before the judiciary committee of the United States senate. On that occasion Commander Booth said that prohibition was regarded in the Salvation Army as "bringing a most important contribution toward solving the girl problem."

So it goes. Figure it out for yourself.

"The Chocolate Soldier" Among Operettas Revived On Broadway

NEW YORK, May 24.—(I. N. S.)—Broadway is having an attack of those fluffy operettas of yesteryear when Mamie was a flapper of the corset period.

"The Chocolate Soldier," blown to one side by these gusty modern musical jazzettas, is being revived.

A bespectacled, plain-looking man, Oscar Straus, the famous Viennese composer, saw his brainchild at the opening night before entraining for Hollywood.

The audience furnished its greatest tribute to the composer by spontaneously humming "My Hero" each time the melody was played.

"My Hero" Melodious Song.

There was a theme song to conjure with. In those days when only basketball players rolled their stockings, a courtship without "My Hero," was no courtship worth mentioning.

The sweet young thing would plot for weeks to lure her beau close to her piano stool where she could archly croon this melody romantic.

The he-men of the period, who meant business, would inevitably bring their "steadies" within the magical influence of this song. What girl of tender sentiments could reject a suitor under the circumstances?

The butcher, baker, confectioner, florist and parson were also hearty devotees of this plaintive tune.

"Sari" Also Appears.

Another old-fashioned hit extracted from the attic is "Sari," the Hungarian operetta. And Mitzi, the singing firefly, appears in it as flashing and vivacious as when she made it her springboard of fame.

But while Mitzi is the same spicy, piquant operetta star, the production is not unlike gingerale without the ginger.

Times have changed, as any geologist of parts will tell you. Saucy references to the tango and turkey trot, belong to that era when a radio announcer was as strange as a hip-flask. Music may be everlasting but humor is as evanescent as styles.

Which indicates that you can revive a play but you cannot resuscitate it.

Tanker's Radio Operating Again; No Mention of Injuries.

NEW YORK, May 24—(I. N. S.)—Rammed off Ambrose Light tonight, the American owned tanker W. W. Bruce was believed to be out of imminent danger of sinking despite early reports that the vessel was in serious distress, according to radio messages received by naval communications and the Mackay Radio Corporation.

Confusion reigned in radio circles here for several hours after receiving the first S. O. S., shortly after 6 o'clock. Due to garbled call letters it was first believed that the sinking boat was the Scottish Maiden. It was later said that it was the oil tanker Sabine Sun. Finally radio authorities established the fact that the damaged boat was the W. W. Bruce, which is not listed in Lloyd's.

Proceeding Under Own Power.

Despite radio reports that the decks of the W. W. Bruce were awash and that it was rapidly sinking, it was later established that the boat could proceed under its own power and consequently was not in immediate danger.

The W. W. Bruce was rammed by the British owned freighter, Scottish Maiden, radio stations here said, in a heavy fog. It was believed that no lives were lost.

Naval authorities permitted the resumption of broadcasting shortly before 9 o'clock, after it had been established that there was no further danger of the W. W. Bruce sinking.

The British owned Scottish Maiden was proceeding to Newport News, Va., where it was understood that a thorough check will be made of the damage the ship sustained in the crash. This was believed slight, however, since messages failed to mention it.

Radio Mentions No Injuries.

Drifting in a heavy sea, the American freighter slowly was carried toward the New Jersey coast after the crash. The collision occurred about ten miles off the Ambrose lightship, which marks the entrance to New York harbor. At 9 o'clock the W. W. Bruce had drifted to a point about thirteen miles south of Barnegat, N. J. At that time the ship's wireless, silenced at the time of the crash, was operating again and word was flashed that the boat was proceeding to port. No mention of injuries to those aboard was made.

FORMER ENGLISH PRIMATE DEAD

Lord Davidson Retired 1928 as Archbishop of Canterbury.

LONDON, May 25—(Sunday)—(UP)—Lord Davidson, retired Archbishop of Canterbury and primate of all England, died at 1:05 a. m., today.

Lord Davidson retired in 1928 after fifteen years as Archbishop of Canterbury and primate of all England. He was 82 years old.

The health of the former archbishop has been poor since his retirement and he had been confined to bed at intervals during the past year. A few weeks ago he became worse, and was unable to leave his bed recently.

Lord Davidson, who was created a peer upon his retirement as head of the Church of England, was the first Archbishop of Canterbury ever to retire. After a quarter of a century as head of the church he retired chiefly because of the defeat in the house of commons of the proposals for revision of the prayer book, which he had sponsored from the origin of the movement which shook the church to its foundations.

As the Rev. Randall Thomas Davidson, born in Edinburgh, the former archbishop had a rapid rise to prominence in the church and was offered the leadership of the church when not yet 50 years old. He declined then but later accepted at the age of 55 and was then the youngest ever to hold the office. He married Edith Tait, daughter of the then Archbishop of Canterbury, in 1878.

construction I place upon section 10105 of the 1922 compiled statutes of Nebraska which relates to the office of public defender and the election thereof to said office, and further, what you should do relative to the acceptance of filings for this office in case there are any.

"Let me advise that while the above section provides for the election of a public defender in counties of 100,000 or more who shall receive a salary of $3,600 per year, I desire to call your attention to that part of the section of the statute which provides that the office of public defender shall be elected at the general election in the year 1916 and every four years thereafter, which would not make the office open to such election until the year 1932. I am satisfied in my own mind that the proper construction to be placed upon that part of said section would not permit your acceptance of anyone filing for such an office until 1932, as above referred to.

No Need For Office.

"The question then might arise as to whether or not it would be encumbent upon the county commissioners to appoint a person to such an office and create the same for the time running from the present to the election in 1932. Upon that subject let me advise that it is my opinion that there is absolutely no necessity for such an office and there is no need in this county for a public defender. As you are aware, Lancaster county has spent approximately $1,000 for the defense of persons charged with a crime who were unable to provide counsel during the last four years and one of these cases was a murder case which called for an extraordinary large fee.

"It is my opinion therefore that in view of the absolute lack of need for such an office the county commissioners should make no appointment and should not create such an office.

"I trust the above and foregoing is sufficiently clear and answers your oral inquiry. "Yours truly,

"MAX G. TOWLE."
County Attorney

The county attorney is also examining the statutes relative to salary increases which are provided for in a number of offices when the county population gets over the 100,000 mark. He will probably have an opinion ready on that question early the coming week. It will determine whether salaries will be raised effective with the announcement of the census returns here or at Washington, by action of the commissioners at their leisure, the first of the year, or when new officials come into office.

Two Carloads of Rum For Chicago Seized In South

ATLANTA, May 24—(I. N. S.)—Southern port liquor operations on a gigantic scale, perhaps running into millions, were being investigated by federal authorities tonight following seizure of a train carload of liquor in Atlanta and a similar haul, valued at $250,000, in Hamlet, N. C.

The seizure in Atlanta was made by city and federal and city police as a result of an anonymous telephone call from Jacksonville, Fla., telling of a three-car shipment from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., "conveyed by Chicago gunmen."

City Detectives J. A. Allen and Eugene Head and Federal Prohibition Officer F. B. Clarke, using a federal search warrant, halted a train in the Central of Georgia yards at East Point and located one carload of the suspected shipment.

Billed as "potatoes" and consigned to a Chicago "produce firm," the car was found to contain 16,733 pints of bonded contraband, cleverly hidden under a camouflage of potatoes and beans in hampers.

A cordon of guards was thrown around the seized liquor and after removal to a sidetrack a special squad of dry men broke the bottles. The convoy of gunmen was not seen.

A similar seizure was made at Hamlet when officers found 8,000 gallons of bonded liquor in a freight car. Similarity of methods used led officers to suspect the wholesale smuggling organizations.

MEXICO PLANS TO BUILD ITS OWN AIRPLANES

MEXICO CITY, May 24—(INS)—Mexico, which to date has used airplanes manufactured in the United States, soon expects to turn to Mexican made planes. According to the department of military aeronactics, four airplane factories will be in operation in Mexico within a year.

One factory will be located at Balbuena aviation field in Mexico City. Another is being planned by the governor of Baja California. General Juan F. Azcarate has announced plans for an airplane factory here and a fourth factory expects to start production shortly at San Luis Potosi.

Motors for the planes to be made by all of the factories will be imported from the United States.

McDonald and Party of Explorers Return to Chicago After a Cruise Of Six Months to South Sea Isles

CHICAGO, May 24—(I. N. S.)—With a tale of a 20,715-mile journey to the South seas and return inscribed in her log book, the yacht Mizpah, owned by Com. Eugene F. McDonald, jr., of this city, returned to her home port today.

When the staunch yacht dropped anchor north of the navy pier late this afternoon, she claimed the distinction of having made the first complete round trip from Chicago to the South seas. She also laid claim to a record for distance covered by a Chicago-owned yacht, and to a speed mark in traveling from Chicago to New York City via the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence waterway route in eight days and two hours.

The last of these records was made through ice-filled waters last November at the outset of the voyage.

The purpose of the adventurous cruise was to explore the Galapagos islands. Accompanying Commander McDonald were Prof. Baker Brownell of Northwestern university; Dr. George Fox, curator of the Warren foundation at Three Oaks, Mich., and president of the Michigan State Archaeological society; U. G. Herrmann, Chicago theater manager; former Mayor Charles Hanna of Syracuse, N. Y., John Lock, and Rev. Father F. W. Fitzgerald of New York.

On one of the islands the exploring party found Dr. Charles Ritter and Fraulein Dore Kervin, whose recluse life they reported to the world, and provided the couple with much needed supplies. The party brought back several huge turtles, penguins and land and water iguanos to present to local museums.

The itinerary of the Mizpah included New York, Miami, Havana, the Panama canal, the Socos islands, several of the Galapagos group and the west coast of South America.

Chicago High Band National Winner

Nicholas Senn School First in Class A; Hobart, Indiana, Wins Class B; Sousa Among Judges.

FLINT, Mich., May 24—(I. N. S.)—Nicholas Senn high of Chicago won the national high school band contest here tonight when it was awarded first place in the finals of the Class A group competition. Second place was awarded to Joliet, Ill., high, thrice national champions; third to Hammond, Ind.; fourth to Central High of Flint; fifth to Glenville High of Cleveland, and sixth to West Tech of Cleveland.

Hobart Wins Class B.

Hobart, Id., high school wo the championship in the Class B division.

Second place honors went to Lansing, Mich., vocational high in this division. Other winners in this class were: third, Belvidere, Ill.; fourth, Waupun, Wis., and fifth, Moosehart, Ill.

Nicolet High Class C First.

Nicolet High of West Depere, Wis., was awarded first place honors in the Class C competition. Algoma, Wis., was second; St. Elmo, Ill., third; Andover, O., fourth; Lanark, Ill., fifth, and Hartley, Ia., sixth.

Judges in the contests were John Philip Sousa, Captain Taylor Branson, Jay W. Fay, A. Austin Harding, Edwin Frank Goldman, Harold Bachman, Victor J. Grabel and Captain Charles O'Neill.

Six Groups of Brothers and Sisters To Graduate from Burwell High School

All those pictured above are members of the senior class of Burwell high school. Those in the upper row are brothers or sisters of the ones directly in front of them. From left to right in the upper row are: Joe Rutter, William Beck, Genevieve Butterfield, Albin Gaukel, Edward Peterson and Chester Houtby. In the lower row: Marie Rutter, Guy Becker, Quida Butterfield, James Gaukel, Edith Peterson, and Helen Houtby.

The senior class of Burwell high school has something new and different to offer this year. In the class of forty graduates there are six groups of brothers and sisters, including two of brothers, one of sisters, and the other four a brother and sister each. In the latter classification is a pair of twins.

It will be noticed that the group has more boys than girls, and that is characteristic of the entire class, according to the superintendent, who says that in the class there are seventeen girls and twenty-three boys.

In this group, also, we find the youngest and the oldest in the class, Albin Gaukel, who is 20 years of age, and Chester Houtby, 16. Adding their bit of prestige are the two Gaukel boys, Albin and James, who are among the school's star athletes.

The twins are Edward and Edith Peterson.

Senate's Order to Remove Dial Phones Causes Furore; Similar Resolution Pending Before House

WASHINGTON, May 24—(INS)—To dial or not to dial is the chief question on Capitol hill.

Thursday the senate ordered the telephone company to remove all dial telephones from the senate wing of the capitol and the senate office building.

A similar resolution is pending before the house and will probably be considered the first of the week.

Telephone officials are frankly worried, especially since Senator Dill, democrat, Washington, threatened to legislate all dial telephonse from the District of Columbia. This would meon the scrapping of $4,000,000 worth of new equipment.

Such action as hinted at by Dill would have far reaching effect, as state legislators might do likewise, and thus bring the question before the courts.

Congress is the District of Columbia's "legislature." It makes all the local laws and regulates the public utilities.

President Hoover voiced the initial complaint against the dial system when he refused to use them in the white house. Then Senator Carter Glass, democrat, Virginia, introduced his resolution and it passed.

His resolution and the counterpart before the house is mandatory. It gives the company thirty days to restore manual service to the senate.

Operators at the capitol's switchboard are now offering to dial calls for senators "if they do not know how to do it."

There are 1,960 telephnes in the capitol, with twenty-eight operators working the private switchboard.

The company has replied to the charge the new system is causing operators to be discharged. Officials counted with figures to show that more operators are working today than nine years ago and that no regular operators have been dismissed.

SEE FIGHT ON JAPANESE QUOTA

Western Congressmen Differ on Johnson Immigration Plan.

Proposal Would Please Japan, But Allows Only 180 Entries.

WASHINGTON, May 24—(I. N. S.)—The proposal of Representative Johnson, republican of Washington, to give Japan its proportionate immigration quota was received with members ofthe house today, with members of the house today, wtih indications the plan will be bitterly fought if it reaches congress.

Some members believe Japan's injured pride would be assuaged while her immigration to the west coast would not be affected. Other members asserted the proposal will only revive an old controversy with consequent injury to friendly relations of the two nations.

"The Johnson proposal would not increase Japanese immigration," said Representative Crail, republican of California. "It would remove the sting of injured pride and would restore friendly relations. I am giving the proposition my sympathetic consideration.

"I feel that we should let the matter alone," said Representative Barbour, republican of California. "Our present exclusion policy was adopted after long consideration by congress and if let alone it will be accepted as a settled policy."

Lea Opposes Change.

"I regard the movement as a needless revival of old troubles," said Representative Lea, democrat, of California. "I think the best method of getting the matter settled is to leave it alone. Give it time and it will work out itself."

Representative Korell, republican, of Oregon, said:

"I think that Japan is such an important customer that we ought to give very serious consideration to her complaint of discrimination. As I understand it, the Johnson plan would not permit more Japanese to enter but would remove what they think is a slight under the exclusion law. The matter is entitled to serious consideration."

The Johnson plan, according to immigration experts, would give Japan a quota of 180. However, it would not affect other features of the 1924 act and persons of Oriental blood, ineligible to citizenship, still would be forbidden to enter.

Johnson said that he had received favorable reaction to his proposal in talks with members of the house. He received a call from Kiyoshi Kiyosawa, foreign editor of the Chugai Shogyo Shimpo, who is returning to Tokyo. The editor said the move would be well received in Japan.

MOVE TO BREAK SENATE JAM

of the increases in the new bill are on imports of agricultural raw materials and compensatory duties on industrial products made from such raw materials. The remaining one-third of the increases are on industrial products, the commission said.

Taking note of criticisms abroad that the bill would injure American foreign trade, Representative Crowther, republican, New York, told the house that Americans who criticise the tariff bill should be recalled.

Senator Johnson, republican, California, voiced the reaction of the treaty opponents to President Hoover's announcement regarding an extra session.

"Sponsors of this treaty are entirely right in rushing it through," he said. "If given an opportunity to thoroughly understand it, the American people would repudiate it."

Watson believes the tariff and the treaty may be disposed of without resort to a special session. He hopes to have the conference agree to this. It would require another month, probably.

Finishing touches were put on the tariff today by the house and senate conferees. It is now ready for submission to the senate Monday.

"I think it is a splendid bill," said Chairman Smoot of the senate conferees as he walked from the office after the final session.

"I believe it comes fully within the recommendations laid down by the president and does not exceed them in any particular."

Smoot wants to take up the report for consideration Tuesday, but he understands senators probably will seek a delay so they can study the complicated flexible tariff compromise adopted by the conferees. Debate will probably last a week, he said, but the minority leaders, Senator Pat Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, and Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, believe it may take longer.

The treaty cannot be reported until the latter part of next week. Debate on it will take two weeks or more.

Four administration senators, Allen of Kansas, Hatfield of West Virginia, Walcott of Connecticut and Goldsborough of Maryland, who accompanied President Hoover to his Rapidan fishing camp early today, returned tonight and went at once to the home of Chairman Smoot of the senate conferees for a brief conference.

Nothing was said concerning their action but it was believed the president had suggested minor corrections in the draft of the flexible provision which he wanted made before the bill went to the printers.

Such corrections necessarily would have to be minor in character as no change in content is possible unless the measure is returned to conference.

DRAG LAKE FOR THREE YOUTHS

Sloop Raised From Lake Michigan; No Clue of Crew Found.

CHICAGO, May 24—(INS)—Coast guardsmen were dragging the lake here tonight in search of the bodies of three young men who were missing after their little sloop capsized and sank.

The missing men are Cassel Bishop and Earl Shutes, commercial artists, and a companion identified as Joseph Raidoum.

The boat was raised late tonight, but no trace of the crew was found. The vessel, a 21-foot craft with sails set, was only a half mile off shore in Lake Michigan when observers saw it struck by a squall and watched it disappear beneath the surface.

Commander Eugene F. McDonald, jr., and the crew of his yacht, Mizpah, which had just returned today from a South sea voyage, aided the coast guardsmen in the search for the bodies of the men who are said to have been novice sailors.

When the vessel was raised, it was towed to the Belmont harbor docks of the Chicago Yacht club.

Carl Howard, in command of the life saving crew, ordered his boats back to the location of the sinking, when it was learned that none of the occupants of the small craft had been saved.

HOUSE TO TAKE UP SHOALS BILL

Proposal For Private Leasing of Project Likely to Be Passed.

WASHINGTON, May 24—(I. N. S.)—A deadlock between senate and house over government or private operation of the $125,000,000 Muscle Shoals hydro-electric and power project appeared likely today as house leaders announced they will force a vote on the bill next week.

The house will likely pass the re-written Norris bill providing for private leasing of the power site by a presidential commission despite stiff opposition and the bill will immediately go to conference with the senate under the present program.

The senate having already passed the bill of Senator Norris republican Nebraska for government ownership there is believed to be little chance for a conference agreement. A deadlock would delay action on the bill until the session beginning in December.

The house measure as drafted by the military affairs committee, will be called up Tuesday and a vote has been tentatively set for Wednesday.

House backers of government ownership are planning a last-ditch fight. Already they have blocked plans of leaders to consider the bill under suspension of rules whereby passage by a two-thirds vote is necessary.

Work of Renovating Second Presbyterian Church is Completed

Renovation of the Second Presbyterian church, commenced almost a year ago, is now complete, and fixtures, equipment and the entire interior have been brought into harmony with the general architecture of the building.

One of the outstanding improvements is a new acousticon system, a device which amplifies music and speech and transmits them to ten stations distributed over the auditorium.

The color scheme of the interior was changed to a light brown in three different tones. Modern lighting fixtures have been installed in the auditorium and organ loft. New floor coverings were laid throughout.

Egg-Throwing Episode Ended With Dismissal U. S. Woman Employe

WASHINGTON, May 24—(INS)—The egg-throwing episode in which Mrs. Minnie L. Ward, suspened file clerk of the federal power commission, brought charges against F. E. Bonner, executive secretary of the commission, and F. W. Griffith, chief clerk, was ended today when Secretary of the Interior Wilbur announced Mrs. Ward was "formally dismissed from the service."

This ended a case that has rocked the interior department for several weeks and would have reachd the grand jury if United States Attorney Leo Rover had not determined that there was no merit in Mrs. Ward's charges that Bonner and Griffith had concealed or destroyed, important files of the commission.

"A most careful examination made by the department of justice of the charges made by Mrs. Minnie L. Ward, file clerk, who was suspended after throwing eggs at her superior, has shown that they were absolutely without basis," Wilbur said.

"It has been a disheartening surprise to find that charges of such an irresponsible nature against F. E. Bonner and F. W. Griffith, both of whom have long and honorable records in the government service, should have been spread so broadly through the press in a manner prejudicial to their good names. Mere gossip and assertion from obscure sources have been given abnormal attention by some of the press, tending toward the destruction of good reputations and the morale of the federal power commission."

Just a little of your vacation money put into home improvement means joy the year around.

GOOD PRICE FOR TECUMSEH BONDS

(Special to The Star.)

TECUMSEH, Neb., May 24—Eight firms were bidders for the $100,000 bonds just sold by the Tecumseh school district for the erection of a new junior high school building. They are to run twenty years and were authorized at a special election held May 6. Tecumseh school district is entirely without debt and has a substantial cash balance on hand, with all expenses of the year paid.

It was expected the bonds would carry 4½ to 5 per cent interest, but they were sold for a less figure. The Omaha National company of Omaha bought them and they are to bear 4¼ per cent, the district to pay the company $350 expense.

Stella Seniors Are Designated Farmers

All Members Of Class Except One Are Children Of Parents Engaged in Agriculture.

(Special to The Star.)

STELLA, Neb., May 24—The seniors of Stella high school are known as the "Farmers' class" all of the group of fourteen being farmers' children except Marvin Goodloe, who is the son of J. M. Goodloe, a garage man of Stella, but whose boyhood was passed on a farm near here. The thirteen who are the children of farmers are: Bert Albrecht, president; Ruby Arlene Keyser, vice president; Harold Beckman, secretary-treasurer; Reva Hammontree, Nell Higgins, Harold Bourke, Alva Armstrong, Virgil Dean, Harlan Snyder, Kathryn Gilbert, Leola Hicks, Harold Ahern, Carl Morris.

The commencement Thursday evening was the first held in the new high school auditorium, built primarily as a gymnasium, and having a seating capacity of a thousand.

J. E. LeRossignol, dean of the college of business administration, University of Nebraska, was the speaker. Owen L. Donohoe presented the seniors, who were in caps and gowns. J. P. Tolly, president of the school board, presented the diplomas.

WYMORE SENIORS GIVEN DIPLOMAS

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., May 24—The final event of commencement week at the Wymore high school took place Friday evening in the auditorium, when diplomas were awarded to the 46 members of the class, Will L. Jones, president of the board of education making the presentations. A good program was staged before a house packed to standing room. As a deviation from former years, Supt. A. E. Fisher had several members of the class deliver appropriate speeches instead of securing an outside speaker. Splendid addresses were made by Miss Ruth Smith, Miss Naomi McAdams, Miss Corinne Clements, Miss Martha Pisar, Robert Dill and Reid Lacy. Price's Wymore orchestra furnished music and the class chorus rendered several vocal numbers.

Markers Bought to Decorate Graves of Civil War Veterans

One hundred markers for use in decorating graves of veterans of the Civil war have been purchased by the county and are ready for use Memorial day. The markers, a five-pointed star with the letters G. A. R. in the center, are of the type that has been used for years in marking the veterans' graves. The ones purchased this year were made in Lincoln for the first time.

Two years ago the county purchased 100 such markers. It is expecter that the present purchase will last several years. The markers have room at the back for insertion of a flag on Memorial day. It has been customary for sons and daughters of union veterans to decorate these markers with flags on Memorial day in all cemeteries in the county. The markers will be distributed for new graves and for replacement where former markers have disappeared.

RUNAWAY HORSE CAUSES $300,000 LOSS FROM FIRE

Sparks From Animal's Shoes Explode Cluster of Oil Tanks.

Part of Factory and Residential Section Burned at Ripon, Wis.

RIPON, Wis., May 24—(U. P.)—Sparks from the shoes of a runaway horse as it broke a pipe line in its flight set fire to the escaping oil today and overwhelmed the town of Ripon with flames.

Parts of Ripon's business and residential districts were destroyed and at times it seemed that the whole town would be consumed by the fire.

Total damage tonight was estimated tentatively between $300,000 and $400,000, although the chief of police said an accurate estimate was impossible.

Just three hours after the horse, like Mrs. O'Leary's cow had started a widespread conflagration, the flames were brought under control.

Virtually all of the city's 4,000 people turned out to fight the fire.

Horse is Uninjured.

The horse, frightened still more by the burning gasoline that cracked at its heels, ran out of the city into the country. He was captured uninjured after the fire was out.

Never before in the history of the summer resort and college town has there been such extreme excitement as prevailed at first notice of the fire.

Some thought there had been an earthquake. As soon as the cause of the blast was learned, the residents o fthe town that claims to be the birthplace of the republican party settled calmly to the work of fire fighting.

Starting five blocks east of the business district at the Wadham Oil Co. cluster of oil tanks, the flames raced along with the flow of oil from the shattered line, destroying homes, business houses and warehouses until a wide area of the city was afaire and the townspeople almost powerless to stem it.

Seven Oil Tanks Explode.

All seven of the Wadham company tanks exploded, and sprayed flaming oil and gasoline over the fire fighters. Five or more were injured, one of them seriously.

The horse, which will go down in the history of Ripon as the cause of the "big fire," was hitched to a load of lumber at the Acme Handle Co., next to the oil firm, about 9:30 a. m., when it became frightened and ran away. In its dash, the horse dragged the wagon over the pipe line, which gave way and released gasoline.

Sparks from the shoes of the running horse set fire to the fluid and the fire was on.

Within three hours the flames destroyed the oil company, the handle company, the Ripon Knitting Co., warehouse, two homes, a boxcar of merchandise, and damaged the railroad station.

Otoe, Sarpy Census Figures Announced

The population of Otoe county is 19,888 and of Sarpy county 10,390, according to an announcement by Harley O. Parsons, district census supervisor, Saturday.

The Sarpy figures represent a gain of 1,020 since 1920. No comparative figures for Otoe county were given out by Mr. Parsons. Included in the Otoe lists was Nebraska City whose citizens number 7,221.

Syracuse now has a total of 947, Otoe 263, Palmyra 344, Dunbar 290 and Talmage 473.

Bellevue is the largest village in Sarpy county with a present population of 1,017. Fort Crook military reserve includes 719. Gretna now has 477 inhabitants, Papillion 718 and Springfield 419.

Latest figures for state institutions in Lancaster county show an increase from 1,015 to 1,300 in the number of inmates at the asylum. The number of prisoners at the state penitentiary has increased from 380 to 778 since 1920. There was no reformatory when the 1920 census was taken, but the 1930 report shows a present total of 404 charges at that institution.

HOW FAR CAN A DOG RUN INTO THE WOODS?

A Message to Business Men

IT WAS a big room. It was a big table. They were big men—15 of them gathered there for a directors' meeting of a large prosperous company.

Most of them wore long, long faces. The meeting was called to order. One after another they got up and voiced their dire predictions. Business was going to the demnition bow-wows—that was sure!

Finally, a keen-eyed, white-haired chap at one end of the table arose, a little impatiently:

"Gentlemen," he said, "if you will kindly pardon my falling into the vernacular of the day—you fellows, with your talk of business going to the dogs, give me a pain!

"I want you to answer just one question: How far can a dog run into the woods?"

The Chairman looked non-plussed, searched the quizzical faces of his associates and was about to administer a reproof—when the speaker resumed:

"The answer is just this, gentlemen—

"When a dog has run half-way INTO the woods—from then on he is running OUT!"

When Did This Dog Start In?

What most business men don't realize is this:

The so-called business depression didn't start with the Stock Market crash in October. It started almost a year ago.

It was late in June or early in July, 1929, when this dog started into the woods.

Most of us didn't know he had gone in—but he had.

And because he started in earlier than we realized, so also he is coming out sooner than we expect.

1930 is Rewarding Workers!

This depression, in many basic ways, has been a God-send! It has put Work back on a par basis! It has emphasized the value of Planning. It has shown Management that it must go to work, too, if business is to go forward!

Men who know how to work today are too busy to howl! They're making new sales records, selling where they never sold before! Why?

Because the fear-shackled horde of sellers are so busy "selling" depression they have no time to sell goods!

Listen to this letter from a hard-hitting salesman published the other day in the New York Times!

"I am getting sick and tired of reading about the Calamity Janes blaming the lack of business on the recent Stock Exchange slump. It is not due to any such cause, but is due primarily to the lazy average salesman (?).

"Calling on a prominent concern in Hartford, Connecticut, I was told by that Calamity Jane of all Calamity Janes, the purchasing agent, that they were not buying anything.

"Told him I did not want to sell him personally anything but did want to see the superintendent to plant a few seeds.

"He said, O. K., but we are not buying anything.

"While waiting for the superintendent four salesmen (?) called on the purchasing agent and when he pulled the same wheeze on them, they gave him their cards and said, 'When you are in the market, let me know.'

"Twenty minutes later I had an order for two machines.

"Then in Providence, Rhode Island in calling on another superintendent, I had to wait while the salesman (?) ahead of me cried on the superintendent's shoulder for twenty-five minutes about how every one was complaining about no business, but not one word did he say about his goods.

"When I finally got to the superintendent at 4:55 P. M., I told him that I wanted to save him some money and not cry on his shoulder. Going back the next day I sold a machine.

"Please let me tell the manufacturers of the country two things:

1. Their purchasing agents do not save them money by merely not spending it, and
2. Give their salesmen h— and tell them to sell goods and not cry poverty.

"In this way we will have a rejuvenated country in a few weeks."

This is a Shirt-Sleeve Year

This is our advice to complaining business executives: Take off your coat! Get those fellows around you to show their shirts. Call in every man; hold a shirt-sleeve meeting; lay hard-hitting plans! Despatch definite assignments to every man.

Teach your men to use their time effectively.

Show them how to plan ahead—to know each day before they start

—where they are going
—whom they are going to see
—when they are going to see him
—what they are going to say
—how they are going to make their presentation

Constantly remind them that in the average salesman's day only seven minutes out of every hour are spent face-to-face with the prospect.

Impress upon them the need for using that precious seven minutes to the best advantage. Give them printed sales material, a hard-hitting carefully planned (not canned) sales presentation (not sales talk).

Tie your advertising into your sales work. And your selling in with your advertising.

And then—Just Go To Work!

Do this—and your sales will climb!

There's about 80% reserve power in every sales-force that the management has never even guessed at!

Crack it open—and you will get the volume you need—and more!

* * * *

And don't worry about that dog in the woods—he is already on the way out. And don't let your boss, or your salesman, or your customers or even your wife worry about him.

We repeat he is on the way out—and that means for all of us!

Hearing at Hastings— Commissioner Randall of the state railway commission will conduct a hearing at Hastings Tuesday on the application of the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph company to increase its service rates on that exchange. The application has aroused considerable opposition on the part of local business men.

Asks License Renewal—Lee A. Thornberry, 2300 Y street, filed an application with the city council Saturday morning for the renewal of his dancing academy license, the city ordinance requiring new licenses May 31 of each year. An item Saturday erroneously implied that Mr. Thornberry was opening a new academy.

Ask New Trial—A motion for a new trial of the American Automobile association's injunction suit against the American Automobile Service association was filed in District court Saturday afternoon. An injunction was issued last week against the defendant association, preventing it from using a name similar to the A. A. A.

Still Gets Checks — Although warnings have been issued by the county assessor that he is not the tax collecting agency of the county, citizens are still sending checks in with their schedule for intangible taxes. Such checks have to be returned by the assessor, the intangible taxes being collected at the same time as other personal taxes in the fall.

Elliott Brings Suit—Harry Elliott filed suit in District court Saturday against Drs. H. Winnett Orr and John E. M. Thomson, asking damages of $15,615 for alleged faulty care of a foot affection. He alleges that he suffered a bad burn on his foot as the result of negligence of an employe who failed to have electrical connections made properly.

Ask Change in Service—Supported by the approval o feighty per cent of the subscribers, the Lincoln Telephone company has petitioned the state railway commission for permission to install metallic service on its Table Rock exchange and to increase its rates. The new rates would be $3 for business service, $2 for residence service, and $1.75 for party residence service.

It was decided that each member would furnish her own utensils and provisions for club work. The next meeting of the club will be held May 29.

Boy Escapes Injury—A small boy, whose name was not learned, escaped unhurt, according to police reports, when his bicycle collided with an auto driven by Mrs. R. E. Gardner, 2445 South Fifty-second street, at the entrance to Antelope park, Twenty-seventh and C streets about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The boy rode away on his wheel, Mrs. Gardner said, before she could get his name.

Will Discuss Flood Control—Lieutenant J. M. Young, who is in charge of the government's survey of water resources and flood control in Nebraska, Kansas, and Wyoming will address the Engineers club of Lincoln at its monthly dinner Monday at the Grand hotel. Glen Mason president of the club will conduct a brief business meeting, and a genera ldiscussion of flood control will follow Lieut. Young's talk.

Asks New Trial—George S. Walker filed a motion in District court Saturday asking a new trial of his action against the American Light Sales Co. in which he sought to collect $640 alleged due him as salary for services while employed with the company. A jury in District court last week returned a verdict for the defendant. Walker claims that the instructions of the court were in error and that the evidence did not warrant the verdict rendered.

Seek Runaway Boy—A circular was received in Lincoln Saturday seeking information concerning the disappearance of Melvin Silver of Baltimore, Md, who ran away from home, May 14. According to the circular he was 14 years old; height five feet five inches, dark way hair, weight, 124 pounds. At the time of his disappearance he wore tan shoes, tan socks, knickers, a dark blue sweater over a white polo shirt. He also wears glasses at times. He was accompanied by another boy about the same size.

Sues on Insurance—Lydia Henkle filed suit in District court Saturday asking $700 of the grand lodge, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, claiming the amount is due her as the beneficiary of an insurance contract entered into by her husband, John Henkle, with the lodge in November, 1928. She alleges that it provided for her to receive $700 if her husband died or became completely disabled. She claims that on January 22, 1929, he fell ill and is permanently disabled and that she is entitled to the $700 payment of which has been refused her.

Cameron Files Appeal—Robert Cameron appealed to the Supreme court Saturday in his effort to collect $650 from Lancaster county for damage which he claims was done to his farm land when a road was graded. The district court decided the case in favor of the county. Cameron asserted in his petition that among other things a row of hedge fence posts valued at $250 had been destroyed, a strip of land valued at $150 had been appropriated, shade trees valued at $50 had been damaged, and crops valued at $50 were destroyed.

Hebron Notes.

The speaker will be Rev. Walter Hellman, of Tacoma, Wash. In the afternoon, a mass meeting will be held preceded by a band concert and selections by the A Cappella choir.

Mysterious Slayer is Suspected as Visitor at 'Bill' Hart's Ranch

SAUGUS, Cal., May 24—(INS)—The theory that the murderer of Albert Horton, wealthy rancher, was still hiding near here was developed by police officers here on information furnished them by William S. Hart, former movie star.

Hart, who lives on his ranch near here, told deputies that last Tuesday night a man answering the description of Horton's slayer visited his ranch, seeking a man whom he called "Joe." Hart's sister, who answered the man's call at the door, did not admit him, and the stranger left in an automobile containing one or two other men.

Joe Wagner, an employe on the Hart ranch, denied knowing the mysterious night visitor.

It is believed the slayer and his accomplices have been concealing themselves in the canyons nearby since Horton's slaying last Sunday, although search of the countryside immediately after the crime proved futile.

CAPONE STRIKES BACK AT MIAMI CITY OFFICIALS

Issue Warrant for Mayor Charging Illegal Arrest Conspiracy.

Public Safety Director and James E. Cox, Publisher, Also Named.

MIAMI, Fla., May 24—(I. N. S.)—Mayor C. H. Reeder and two other Miami city officials charged with conspiracy to illegally arrest Alphonse (Scarface Al) Capone, Chicago gang chieftain, spending a vacation here, late today were held under $1,000 bond each pending a preliminary hearing set for Tuesday.

Mayor Reeder, together with City Commissioner John C. Knight and Director of Public Safety S. D. McCreary, who were also named in the warrant, surrendered at 4:30 p. m., and Peace Justice Warren Newcombe immediately set their bonds. The charges against the city officials were brought by Vincent Giblin, Capone's attorney.

An absentee bond was fixed for James E. Cox, former democratic presidential candidate and owner of the Miami Daily News, also named in the warrant. Servants at the Cox home here told constables that he was in Dayton, O.

Al Arrested Again.

The warrant for the arrest of the quartet was gotten out by Giblin today following the arrest of Capone as soon as he came into Miami from his palatial Palm Island winter estate. Capone was released a short while later.

A vagrancy ordinance, designed to rid the community of the Chicago racketeer and beer baron, was passed by the city commission yesterday over the vigorous protest of organized labor representatives who claimed the law will give police ground upon which to arrest strikers and pickets in the time of labor disturbances.

The ordinance, however, cannot become effective until thirty days after its passage.

The ordinance described a vagrant as anyone who has no visible means of support, or one who is getting his means of support illegally or who is dangerous to the welfare of the community.

Held For "Investigation."

Capone has been under arrest here several times since his arrival, but was released each time on habeas corpus proceedings. On each occasion police announced they held him merely "for investigation."

He entered Florida under a Federal court order protecting him from the sheriffs of the state, who were under order from Gov. Doyle E. Carlton "to arrest Capone on sight and escort him to the border of the state."

A similar order to restrain city officers rfom molesting Capone without provocation is pending in the State courts. Hearing on the petition has been set for June 10.

damage was most severe in his neighborhood were those planted at the latest date.

Dry Weather Needed.

Heavy damage from the Hessian fly can be expected this spring, Mr. Swenk warned Saturday, although the weather in June will be the major factor in determining the extend to the damage.

If June should be hot and dry, there would be very little additional damage, according to the state entomologist. If, however, the coming month is warm and humid, it will be favorable to greatly added damage.

The fly is now in the brown or flaxseed stage, nestled at the bottom of the stalks of grani. During June a new brood of flies will emerge from this stage. It is this brood, some of which are already emerging, that would prevent the heads of the grain from filling if favorable weather permits rapid development of the fly.

Many fields that now look ruined may turn out all right, Mr. Swenk declared Saturday. He was unwilling to lay down any general advice as to whether farmers should plow up their fields or permit them to stand. "Each field is a problem in itself," he declared. He acknowledged that fields shuold be plowed in which infestation is so great as to make it obvious that damage is so severe as to make the chances of a late corn crop better than the likelihood of a small grain crop. In most cases, the solution would depend on a number of factors, determinable onl yafter a independent anaylsis of each field and its surrounding area, he stated Saturday.

Menace Predicted Last Fall.

A thorough survey of the Hessian fly situation in the state was made last October, according to Mr. Swenk. At that time, he said, the fly had been building up abundantly and serious difficulty for this spring was predicted. The wide growth of volunteer wheat in southeastern Nebraska gave opportunity for the fly to develop and spread in the late summer and early autumn, he said. The expected damage might have been to a large extent averted, he said, if there had been a generally delayed sowing. On the contrary, he pointed out, the wheat seeding last fall was generally early.

Fields planted late which may have been clear of the fly last fall might now be heavily infested as the result of the spread of the first spring brood which hatched out some time ago, laying the eggs which will soon come forth, Mr. Swenk stated. He pointed out that if two fields side by side were planted respectively on September 10 and October 1 that the chances would be that last fall the fly would have been found only in the September planting. This spring, however, he showed, the fly might have spread so that the October planting was as severely affected as the earlier seeding.

Says Every Stalk Infested.

This, he believed was the answer to the difficulty raised by Guy Talbot in the problem taken Saturday afternoon to the county extension agent's office. Talbot said that he had a 30-acre patch of wheat in which every stalk was infested by the fly, all of which was planted later than other fields of his. It was planted after Septerber 20. Other fields planted earlier were not as badly damaged, he said.

He reported at the county agent's office that a similar condition existed throughout the farming region in his vicinity both on South Fourteenth street and on South Twenty-seventh street. Many of the farmers with whom he had talked, he said, reported late seedings as being most heavily infested.

He said he recalled other years when trouble had been experienced with the Hessian fly, but never before anything as severe as this year.

Farmers from all sections of the county have been calling in person or telephoning to the county agent's office for advice in connection with handling the fly and as to the advisability of letting the wheat stand or of plowing it up and replanting the areas to corn.

Death Mystery

William Simons, prominent grain broker of Kentland, Ind., who was found shot to death near his home at Kentland. Police and officials of Newton county are making every effort to learn whether his death was due to murder or suicide. Mr. Simmons was a member of the Chicago board of trade and was at one time a business partner of ex-governor Warren T. McCray of Indiana.

GRAF ZEPPELIN ARRIVES OVER RIO JANEIRO

plans apparently was prompted by the slowness of the flight southward, occasioned by stiff head winds.

Battles Head Winds.

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 24—(I.N.S.)Tropical storms, throwing themselves repeatedly into the path of the mighty Graf Zeppelin, tonight had delayed the air liner's expected arrival over Rio de Janeiro by several hours.

Fighting gales and counter winds almost from the moment it lifted its huge blunt nose into the air at Pernambuco last night, the Graf Zeppelin at 10:30 p. m., (9:30 p. m., eastern daylight time) was slowly beating its way southward over the remaining 275 miles to Rio de Janeiro.

Radio communication with the airship was extremely poor because of unruly climatic conditions.

Speed Cut to 30 Miles.

It was estimated tonight that in the last eighteen hours the dirigible had averaged slightly more than thirty miles per hour, due no doubt to the whipping counter winds. In the latter part of the day, however, it was learned that the Graf was speeding along the Brazilian coast at an average of between forty and fifty miles per hour.

The huge gray hull was sighted last at Victoria at 5:40 p. m. (4:40 p. m., eastern daylight time).

Despite the discouraging reports of the airliner's progress, the huge crowd at the Campo Alfonso field continued to wait patiently for the Graf's arrival, eagerly receiving every radio and telegraph report flashed to the field on the air rover's position. Officials were of the opinion tonight that the dirigible would not reach this city until early Sunday morning.

Sails Over Espirito.

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 24—(U. P.)—The Graf Zeppelin left the coast line of Bahia state tonight and floated southward over the state of Espirito, passing over the town of Mucury at 6:10 p. m. (4:10 p. m., E. S. T.).

Follows Twisting Coast Line.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, May 24—(U. P.)—The dirigible Graf Zeppelin flew southward along the twisting coast line of Brazil as darkness closed in tonight, bound on a cruise down to the maritime town of Paranagua and back to Rio de Janeiro, where it is scheduled to land Sunday morning.

Dr. Hugo Eckener directed the dirigible, which left Pernambuco at 11:52 p. m., (9:52 p. m., E. S. T.) Friday on the 1,250 mile route toward Rio De Janeiro.

All day the ship sped southward toward the capital, where the commander originally had intended to land tonight.

Delay in getting tht dirigible away from Pernambuco, however, and the moderate speed of the ship along the coast prompted a change in plans and Dr. Eckener informed the Condor syndicate, local agents of the Zeppelin company, that he would fly over the capital in darkness tonight and continue to Paranagua, some 400 miles southward. He will fly back northward from the coastal town to Sao Paulo and then land at Rio de Janeiro Sunday.

Cheered By Thousands.

The dirigible's route from Pernambuco is over many towns along the coast where thousands of persons cheered it as the first airship ever to cross the Atlantic ocean to South American shores.

So leisurely was the flight of the airship that it was only half way between Pernambuco and Rio de Janerio shortly after noon and passed over Porto Seguro, some 500 miles from the capital, at 3:10 p. m., (1:10 p. m., E. S. T.) At 4:30 p. m., it flew over Caravillas.

Excitement here mounted rapidly as the dirigible flew southward and the streets and roads to Campo dos Affonso were crowded with eager thousands waiting a glimpse of the great ship's lights.

A great white arrow on a field of red cloth spread on the aviation field marked the spot where the Graf Zeppelin will land when Dr. Eckener decides to put her down here.

Prepare To Stay All Night.

Cordons of cavalry and infantry and a strong police detachment were at the field to handle the enthusiastic welcomers, many of whom planned to spend hte night there if the dirigible does not land until morning.

Elaborate arrangements for welcoming Dr. Eckener, the passengers and crew of the Graf Zeppelin were completed by city officials as the dirigible flew southward.

On direction of President Washington Luis, the city officials collaborated with Dr. Hubert Knipping, the German minoster, in making arrangements for the reception and entertainment of the dirigible's crew and passengers.

though not formally entered, entrance blanks for Central high school of Flint, Mich., in class A are expected daily, which will raise the number to sixteen. Last minute entries are expected to raise the total to twenty, according to O. H. Bimson.

Preceding the contest Wednesday night, the five men who will judge the competition will be guests of honor at a dinner in the chamber of commerce. Joseph Maddy, Ann Arbor, Mich., chairman of the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music, father of the contest, and C. M. Tremaine, New York, secretary of the bureau, will also be present at the dinner. Places will be arranged for 150, and all interested in the contest are invited. Mr. Bimson will preside.

In additnon to the cups which will be awarded winners of each division, plaques will be given second and third place winners, it is announced by contest officials. The cups are temporary property of the winning schools, which are given plaques as their permanent possession to indicate their triumph. It is hoped that some award may be presented every orchestra competing in the contest, win or lose. The trophies are to be on display at Miller & Paine's this week.

Tickets went on sale last week in the public schools. While the school children have not made their reports as yet, principals of the different buildings state that the sale is proceeding satisfactorily.

DEMOS LIKELY TO MEET HERE

Lincoln all these years, while the G. O. P. has been cultivating the city by holding all of its assemblages here. One reason why the former went elsewhere, he says, is that the only suitable place for their gatherings was the old city auditorium, and as the republicans always reserved it in advance, the other party was really crowded out.

Be that as it may, this condition no longer exists. Lincoln now has two large ground floor halls easily accessible from the hotels and the main business district, where politicians from over the state can meet and mix their medicine. If the democrats want to come here the facilities they need are at their disposal. And it is believed that a very large number of them would like to hold the biennial conclave in Lincoln this year.

Perhaps the best reason for their doing so is found in the election returns of two years ago, when Lincoln and Lancaster county gave the huge and unprecedented majority of over 20,000 to the republican presidential ticket, more than 15,000 to the G. O. P. nominee for United States senator, over 11,000 to its gubernatorial candidate (running against a Lincoln resident on the democratic ticket), and proportionate majorities for other candidates.

Such majorities as these would have been regarded not so many years ago as fairly substantial for the entire state. They registered the fact that the democratic party in Lancaster county had lost all semblance of an effective campaign organization, and that loss was due mainly to the fact that the democrats here have been deprived for more than two decades of the inspiration which would have come to them had a few state conventions of the party been held in Lincoln from time to time.

Both Conventions Same Date.

Under the laws of Nebraska, all political parties are required to hold their state conventions on the same date. The primary elections for selecting candidates come in August and the conventions will follow in September.

Should both gatherings occur in Lincoln, as now seems fairly probable, it will create more local political interest and rivalry than the capital has seen for many years. The news agencies of the state having their headquarters in Lincoln will broadcast what is done at each convention. This will start the campaign off in lively fashion and the attention of Nebraska voters will be enlisted in a greater degree than usual because of being focussed in one direction.

Neither of the two state committees has yet been called together to decide on where the conventions will be held. This will be done in June or July.

Some Fire May Fly.

Each camp has its discordant elements which may cause strife in the state conventions; but the party managers and candidates will do all they can to preserve at least the outward appearance of harmony.

The best political show Lincoln has been treated to in many years was the G. O. P. state convention in 1928, when Governor Weaver's opponents tried to force the adoption of a platform distasteful to him. Excitement ran high when Mr. Weaver met this move by intimating that he would withdraw from the ticket rather than stultify himself by running on such a platform. The outcome was a complete personal victory for him, but only after a long fight.

Nothing quite so dramatic is looked for this year; but there may be attempts to have Senator Norris in the republican convention on account of his persistent opposition to the Hoover administration; while trouble may develop among the democrats in case Dr. Jennie Callfas, who bolted the presidential nominee of her party in 1928, should win the nomination for senator on their ticket.

An official proclamation announcing the primary election to be held August 12 is due from Governor Weaver within the next two weeks or so. The law provides that it shall be issued 60 days in advance of the primaries.

UNI. PROFESSORS TO GET LEAVE

tention to devote his leave to an outlined program and to continue his service in the University of Nebraska at least one year at the same pay upon his return. The person on leave will not be privileged to accept employment or engage in professional practice during the leave in cases of a grant for research and study.

The requested leave may be granted by the regents, according to the Nebraska plan ,if they are satisfied that the University is likely to benefit from the increased efficiency acquired during the leave, and if the professor's work can be properly arranged without additional cost. Not more than one member of a department staff is to be on leave in any one year.

Number Qualified Now.

While a number of faculty members are immediately qualified for such leaves, declared Chancellor Burnett ,it is belived that personal affairs and other considerations will considerably reduce the number of applications for leave within the early years. In the past, each application for leave of absence has gone to the board of regents as a separate action, not governed by definite regulations.

Prior to being approved by the regents, the plan was unanimously approved by a faculty committee and by the university senate.

The Nebraska plan is based upon a comprehensive study of the systems of other state universities, endowed colleges and other colleges. Of the thirty-four state universities considered, twenty-two had a definite leave system ,while 102 of the 251 colleges considered at large had such a system. The plan is use at such state universities as the University of Washington, University of California, University of Minnesota, University of Michigan, University of Colorado, Oregon Agricultrual college, and the University of Illinois.

Administrative officers of the University of Nebraska feel that this plan will crystallize the best procedure for sabbatical leave as gradually developed at Nebraska and elsewhere. They feel that it will also permit present members of the faculty to build themselves up to become key men on the instructional staff.

DEATH RATE IN STATE DECLINES

else. It manifests itself in four general classes, on which the 1929 statistics are:

Common forms of heart disease, 2,038; angina pectoris, 221; arteriosclerosis, 148; acute endocarditis and myocarditis, 67; total, 2,474.

Next in numerical order of the causes of death last year were these:

Cancer (all forms), 1,347; apoplexy (cerebral hemorrhage), 1,231; pneumonia, 857; nephritis, 750; influenza, 642; tuberculosis, 425; premature birth, 402; diabetes, 301; automobile accidents, 269; appendicitis, 266; suicides, 222.

A noticeable feature of the appendicitis report is that the disease seems to affect men more than women. Of the 266 persons dying from that cause, 172 were males and only 94 females.

Smallpox claimed seven victims in 1929, where none was reported in the year preceding; only one in 129; and an average of but four in each previous year back to and including 1922. Four of those succumbing to that malady last year were under 21 years of age, indicating parental neglect of vaccination. One was 95, having escaped it until reaching that advanced age.

Total deaths from all causes were 13,374 in 1929; 13,662 in 1928; 12,369 in 1927; 12,646 in 1926; 12,475 in 1925; and 12,389 in 1924.

Accidental Fatalities.

The 269 deaths from automobile accidents which occurred last year constituted the peak record in that class. For 1928, the total under the same heading was 203; and in the six preceding years it varied from 121 to 194.

These figures do not include 30 persons killed last year in collisions between trains and automobiles, compared with 23 in 1928, 22 in 1927, and 20 in 1926.

Railroad accidents in 1929 claimed 38 lives; airplanes and balloon casualties, 15; street car accidents, three; freezing, one; and heat strokes, five.

There were 41 homicides in the state last year. One legal execution for murder committed in a previous year was carried out.

Miscellaneous Disease Data.

Here are some of the 1929 death records for minor diseases, as compiled in the vital statistics division:

Chicago Now Has 49 Foreign Consuls

CHICAGO, May 24—(I. N. S.)—Forty-nine countries are now represented by resident consuls in Chicago, according to the Chicago association of commerce. Increases in the city's consular family have been particularly marked during the last few years. The city's rapid expansion and the international importance given it by Charles G. Dawes, Melvin Traylor, and other well known figures is said to have made it one of the important points of world conta.

George Depasta, consul general for Greece, is the acknowledged dean of the consular corps in Chicago.

Countries now maintaining consular headquarters in the city are: Argentina, Austria, Belgium, Boliva, Brazil, British Empire, Chile, Columbia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Gutemala, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, Italy, Japan, Latvia, Liberia, Lithuania, Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, Mexico, Monaco, The Netherlands, Nicaragua, Norway, Panama, Paraguay, Persia, Peru, Poland, Portugal, Rumania, El Savador, Siam, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, Uruguay, Venezuela and Jugoslavia.

time, the operator will return the lights to normal operation.

This system is in vogue in a number of cities, and has proven exceptionally successful, the chief declared. Credit for its adoption is given Lieutenant of Detectives Robert Davis. Davis, an electrician, discovered the possibilities while tinkering with the master switch. It is hoped to further perfect the system so that the same safety can be afforded police cars, when they are forced to drive through the busy area.

Installation of a signal light at Twenty-seventh and O streets is also being considered, Chief Johnstone said. Since this corner is for removed from the congested area, a light independent of the downtown system operated by a motor probably will be installed there. Two of this type are in use at Beatrice, and the chief has inspected them, stating that their operation has been satisfactory. If a success at this corner, installation of others will likely follow.

'MA' TO RUN ON REFORM ISSUE

Mrs. Ferguson Would Require Texas Officials To Be Bone Dry.

Husband Ruled Out of Governorship Race; She Takes His Place.

AUSTIN, Tex., May 24—(U. P.)—Prohibition enforcement which enforces and prohibition agents who abstain is the platform on which Mrs. Miriam A. (Ma) Ferguson will seek a second term as governor of Texas.

The candidate, who, as the wife of former Gov. James A. Ferguson and as his companion in political struggles has become the Lone Star state's leading public figure among women, announced today she would campaign on the prohibition issue.

"I am sure the people are becoming sick and disgusted with officers kicking and cuffing everybody around, and, in the name of the law, raiding, searching and seizing everything and everybody to find bootlegg liquor which they themselves are drinking every day, and aiding and protecting the unlawful sale of the same," Mrs. Ferguson said.

"We can't convict cow thieves if the officers are eating part of the stolen beef."

Prohibition Oath.

An affidavit swearing to nonuse of liquor for six months before administration of the oath of office for any judge ,prosecuting attorney, sheriff or other enforcement officers would be required by Mrs. Ferguson's program.

The former woman governor announced for that office again Friday after the state Supreme court ruled her husband ineligible to compete for governor.

In stepping aside in favor of his wife's candidacy, Mr. Ferguson saw his own prohibition declarations revised in her announcement. Ferguson had said he would veto all liquor legislation whatsoever, "either pro or anti," if he were elected.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson have been in democratic retirement since she completed her term as governor in 1926.

WAGNER PLEADS FOR LABOR AID

Senator Asks Public to Support Passage of Unemployment Bills.

Calls On Hoover to Join In Effort to Enact Legislation Now.

WASHINGTON, May 24—(INS)—The public was asked to support the unemployment bills now in congress and see that they are passed before adjournment in a radio address tonight by Senator Robert F. Wagner, democrat, New York, author of the measures.

He stressed the economic loss to the country through unemployment, and of the cost of his bills, he said:

"Of course, carrying out this program will cost money. The long range plan bill authorizes an appropriation of $150,000,000 and the unemployment exchange bill $4,000,000. These are big sums of money even for a country as large as the United States. But when you stop to compare these figures with the cost of unemployment, then you become competent to judge in which way lies economy.

"In one single month last winter factory workers alone lost in wages $200,000,000. In the first three months of 1930 it has been estimated that wage earners lost no less than a billion dollars in wages. If by a little expenditure of thought and plan we can build a dam to shut off this Niagara of money losses arising out of unemployment, is it not sound economy to do so?

All Would Benefit.

"Consider what it would have meant to the farmer, to the manufacturer and in turn to the worker if this vast amount of purchasing power had not been withdrawn from the markets."

He called upon President Hoover to help the unemployed, asserting "the administration can prevent unemployment from becoming a national issue by joining in the effort to enact unemployment legislation now pending in the house of representatives."

"The president has spoken about the war against poverty," he continued. "Involuntary idleness is the greatest single cause of poverty. Will he utilize the present auspicious opportunity to deliver a body blow to the cruel figure of unemployment? Will he wait until another winter rolls around and perhaps call another conference, another festival of speech-making, or will he seize this opportunity to give the country a permanent instrumentality of progress, ever acting, ever responsible, ever watchful, to deal with unemployment before it arrives?"

Learned To Work Too Well.

"It is the literal truth that today we are suffering want in the midst of unprecedented plenty and our workers go without wages because they had learned to work too well.

"To me it seems plain that the responsibility of the federal government must not be shirked, for the prevention of unemployment is a distinctly national obligation.

The Wagner bills, already passed by the senate, provide for a bureau in the department of labor to aid unemployed in conjunction with state agencies and for the gathering of statistics on unemployment.

STATE APPEALS LAND VALUES

Contends Prices Fixed By Condemnation Too High.

For what is believed to be the first time in Nebraska history, the state Saturday appealed land values as determined in a condemnation proceeding. The appeal was from values reached by appraisers on two parcels of land needed for the projected Lincoln-Valparaiso improved highway.

The state several weeks ago instituted condemnation proceedings against three parcels of land near Raymond along the Union Pacific railway which were needed for the new highway. The state had been unable to reach an agreement as to values on two of the parcels. The third was forced into the condemnation proceedings because it belonged to the Patrick Rohan estate, some of the heirs of which were minors.

This land was one of the two parcels on which the state Saturday appealed from values set by the board of appraisers shortly after the condemnation proceedings were begun. The state had previously reached an agreement as to the value of the Rohan land needed for the highway but the appraisers set a figure several hundred dollars higher. The state is appealing to District court from this figure, hoping to secure a reduction when the matter is tried before a jury.

The other parcel of land on which the state is making its appeal belongs to A. F. DeHart. It approved the value placed on the other piece of property involved in the condemnation action. The two appeals will be made separate actions in District court in order to permit them to be heard separately.

County Judge Reid was unable Saturday to recall any previous occasion in this county and doubted if there had been any others in Nebraska in which the state had appealed from a condemnation proceedings. The usual practice for the state, counties, or municipalities when dissatisfied with values established by appraisers in condemnation proceedings, has been to let the proceedings lapse by failure to pay the money set. At a later date, new proceedings can then be started with hope that a new set of appraisers will give a lowered figure.

The fact that the state plans to construct the new highway to Valparaiso in the near future is believed to have been responsible for choosing the appeal method instead of waiting until new condemnation proceedings could be commenced.

DELEGATES OF FOREIGN FIRM VISIT PLANTS

Four representatives of the Skoda works, Prague, Czechoslovakia, one of the largest European manufacturers of machinery, and eighty-six members of the senior civil engineering class of Purdue University were conducted through the Graham-Paige plants at Detroit and Wayne recently.

Prof. E. L. Eriksen, head of Purdue's department of structural engineering, found his students particularly interested in a machine that subjects an automobile to the severest types of road travel, known as the "shock tester." Cars are run frequently twenty-four hours at a time, front or rear wheels revolving on specially constructed steel rollers. They saw for the first time also an instrument known as a stroborama, a device which enables Graham engineers to analyze high speed mechanical motion and to learn how units and parts behave at various speeds.

The Prague visitors expressed amazement at the cleanliness, light, and order of the Graham plants, and showed much interest in the horizontal multiple drill, with opposed spindles, which bores fifty-one holes in one side and thirty-nine on the other side of the Graham eighty-cylinder engine block.

PUBLIC QUICK TO ACCEPT MARMON WARRANTY PLAN

Unprecedennted acceptance by dealers and public alike has been given the new one-year warranty against defective parts and workmanship now placed on all Marmon straight-eights, according to Thomas E. Jarrard, Marmon general sales director.

The new warranty, extended to all purchasers of Marmon cars since May 1, 1930, covers a period of one year from date of purchase or not to exceed 12,000 miles of driving, whichever shall first occur. It covers to the original purchaser all material and workmanship and applies to the Marmon-Roosevelt in the $1,000 class field as well as to the Marmon Big Eight in the fine car class and to the two straight-eights in the intermediate price ranges.

Examples of durability of the Marmon are the Marmon-built Roosevelt that traveled 440 hours of more than eighteen days without a stop on the Indianapolis speedway under the supervision of the A. A. A., and a similar car that visited every state capital within a month, piling up a mileage of more than 18,000 miles.

"Manufacturers of other products give their owners a guarantee of considerable duration," Mr. Jarrard says. "Why, then, should not the motor car developed to a greater degree than many of the newer products, be sold under a similar warranty.

Jayhawkers of Kansas Win Conference Track Laurels

Records Crash In Sensational Meet

Eight New Marks, One Lowering a World Performance, Entered In the Book; Cornhuskers a Close Second.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

Old Man Time took a terrible licking at the University of Nebraska Memorial stadium Saturday afternoon as Big Six conference athletes assembled for their annual track and field championships.

University of Kansas athletes captured the conference title, after a spirited battle with the University of Nebraska, eight conference records in the 15 events falling by the wayside during the afternoon of competition. A crowd of more than 2,000 watched the cinder-burners in their record-breaking achievements.

World Record Smashed.

One world record was scattered among the mark-shattering performances offered up by Big Six competitors, and another world record was neared, while the caliber of track and field work in every event made the 1930 championships one of the greatest moments in Missouri Valley athletic history.

A slender margin of three points separated Kansas and Nebraska in the final score. With impressive strength in the field events, an array of five firsts enabled Coach Brutus Hamilton's Jayhawkers to compile a total of 58 points. Coach Henry F. Schulte's Cornhuskers chalked up points in each of the 15 events, but lacked the top-notch performers necessary to carry through in conference competition, the Nebraskans tallying 55 points during the busy afternoon.

Iowa Cyclones Third.

Iowa State, scoring 40 points on the track but only two in the field events, was an easy third, with Missouri, Oklahoma and Kansas Aggies finishing in order.

The versatile Jim Bausch was the driving rod in the Kansas machine which crashed home with the victory. The busy Bausch cleared 13 feet 3½ inches for a first place tie in the pole vault, cast the javelin 191 feet 2 inches to win the spear event, took first in the shot with a record-breaking heave of 48 feet 10½ inches and hurled the discus 137 feet 5 inches for third money.

Javelin Toss Does It.

Bausch's javelin heave was particularly irking to the Cornhusker cause. The Cornhuskers went into the finals of the javelin with three athletes leading the parade. They needed only to have these marks stand up to coast in with the championship.

All went well until the next to last round. On this occasion Bausch cut loose with a cast which soared past the Nebraska flags and stuck in the group more than 191 feet from the board. As the spear hit the turf, it spiked down Kansas' claim to Big Six track supremacy, for the final round failed to change the result and the Jayhawkers went into the mile relay, the final event, needing only to finish fifth to win the meet. The Kansas quartet trailed Nebraska and was third.

String of New Records.

Record breaking performances during the afternoon were achieved in the 100-yard dash, 440-yard dash, two-mile run, high and low hurdles, shot put, discus and broad jump.

The outstanding performance of the afternoon's program of record-smashing was the work of Hubert Meier of Iowa State in the 100-yard dash. Using starting blocks, the Cyclone speedster burned up the paths with a time mark of 9 4-10 seconds—two-tenths of a second under the record established by the fleet Roland Locke, Nebraska comet, dur-

Nunamaker Tribe Loses Afternoon Game, But Wins at Night.

TWIN BILL TODAY.

Lincoln's Links will round out their home stay in a doubleheader with York's Dukes at Landis field. First game at 2 p. m. Dominquez, Manager Nunamaker's Cuban pitcher, is slated to go on the mound for the Links in one of today's games.

Links and Elkhorns divided the Saturday spoils, each winning one act of the double entertainment in rounding out the four-game series. The Links were forced to gulf a mauling in the afternoon combat, the score of which was 19 to 5, but the Nunamaker tribe came bouncing back in the night fray to trounce the Elkhorns, 10 to 8.

Freesmeier, Norfolk pitcher, traveled the full nine-inning route in the afternoon, while the Links used Dizney, Derby and Myers. After the curtain had flopped, Manager Les issued release papers to all three pitchers.

Harvard Downs Yale In Cinders Compet

HARVARD STADIUM, Cambridge Mass., May 24—(I. N. S.)—Scoring 23 points in the last three events, Harvard this afternoon by sheer pluck came from behind to decisively defeat Yale in the thirty-seventh renewal of their annual track and field meet.

With the half-mile, 220-yard dash and low hurdles yet to be contested, Yale led by four points, but when the final score was chalked up it showed Harvard had 74½ and Yale 60½.

Bobby In England.

One of the fist pictures to arrive in the United States from England of Bobby Jones shows America's premier golfer as he drove out of a sand trap at Addington during a practice round. Jones displayed his usual excellent form while preparing for the Walker cup matches with Britain's greatest golfers, after which he gave Sir Roger Wethered, captain of the British cup team, a whale of a thrashing on the Sandwich course.

Yankees Go On Swatting Rampage in Grabbing Double Bill.

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, May 24—(INS)—Led by Babe Ruth, who smashed his thirteenth home run of the season, the Yankees made it four in a row over the world champion athletics by taking the both games of a double-header, today 10 to 6 and 11 to 1.

Pennock and Ruffing did the pitching for the Yankees and both went the route. The Yanks had on their batting duds and punished four Athletic pitchers for 33 hits in the two games. Score of first game:

Redskins Ahead In Finale of Series

CLEVELAND, May 24—(I. N. S.)—After dropping three straight games to the St. Louis Browns by one run margins, the Cleveland Indians got back into the victory column today by making off with the final game of the series, 5 to 2.

Willis Hudlin held the Browns to seven scattered hits, Cleveland got only nine hits off Sam Gray, but the latter booted one roller, cut loose with one wild peg and hit one batsman to help bring about his own defeat. His miscues aided the Indians in scoring all of their runs. The score:

Ruskin Youth Star Hurler at Lexington

LEXINGTON, Mo., May 24—Eli J. Skinner of Ruskin, Neb., was among the 11 cadets of Wentworth military this week.

Cadet Skinner is the star southpaw pitcher of the Wentworth nine. His work in the box has placed his team at the head of the Missouri state conference. He has won six out of seven games, averaging 10 strikeouts per contest. He has one more game to pitch and if he wins that he will clinch the championship for Wentworth.

Though small of stature, Cadet Skinner has a good fast ball, a sharp curve and excellent control. He abts over .300.

Sox Trim Detroit By Margin One Run

CHICAGO, May 24—(I. N. S.)—The White Sox trounced the Tigers today, 8 to 7, in the odd game of the series. Home runs featured the fray. Alexander connected with two while McManus, Jolley and Reynolds had one each to their credit. A six-run rally by the home team in the seventh inning also added color to the game.

The Tigers had the tying run on third when McManus lined to Harris in the ninth to end the combat. Detroit used three hurlers and the White Sox four. The score:

PHILS MOP UP ON GIANT CREW

Quakers Sweep Series by Rallying In Ninth To Count Trio Runs.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 24—(U. P.)—Pinch-hitter Barney Friberg's home run in the ninth inning dropped the New York Giants into the second division today as the Philadelphia Phillies swept the series with a 7 to 6 victory in the final game. The Giants had a two-run lead going into the ninth, but Pruett weakened and, after Collins singled, he grooved one for Friberg, bleachers. Terry's fumble allowed who parked it in the left field the winning run to get on base and O'Doul scored Hurst with a hard single. Davis also hit a home run for the Phillies. The score:

PITCHER CLAYTON CHRISTIANSEN.

The first no-hit game of the 1930 pennant season in the Nebraska State league was pitched by Clayton Christiansen of Lincoln's Links. The Council Bluffs boy hurled the full nine-inning route against the Norfolk Elkhorns Friday night at Landis field and blanked the visitors without a safe blow.

JOHN McGRAW, dynamic leader of the New York Giants, and Babe Ruth, mighty swatsman for the New York Yankees, have locked horns in a dispute over the quality of the official pellet now in use in the major loops.

Manager John avers that the ball is so lively and the resultant sluggery so vicious that the playing of smart, inside baseball has come to be a thing of the forgotten past.

The king of the home run hitters, in rebuttal, denies that the ball has been hopped up for the benefit of himself or anyone else; that the prevalence of the ponderous run totals of the present day is due largely to persistent tinkering with the pitching rules, whereby the hurlers are compelled to make use of a bright, shiny globule, the same being an easy target for the swingers of hickory bludgeons.

IF I WERE summoned to arbitrate the McGraw-Ruth differences, the verdict would go to the leader of the Giants. Although, in fairness, nobody could question Ruth's right to protect his sluggery, whereby he drags down the fattest salary in organized baseball, the conclusion is apparent to all that the pellet now used in the majors, not the rare ability of the athletes, has been the most potent factor in the riotous swatting of recent years.

Scores of the 10 games played in the majors last Tuesday disclose, for instance, that the batters connected to the extent of 155 hits and scored 126 runs. The harvest of safe blows included 40 two-baggers, eight triples and 26 home runs. No less than 46 pitchers paraded to the mound in these 10 games.

Such a record, I suggest, proves conclusively that the manufacturers of the official ball, despite their denials, have thrown in with the big league moguls in the conspiracy to turn out a base ball that puts a premium on the circuit poke. The wonder is that the moguls have the nerve to question an obvious truth.

THE Big Ten conference pot boiled over last spring, subsided a bit, following the bouncing of Iowa university from membership, and now is gurgling quite as violently as ever, even though Iowa has been taken back into the fold. This was in evidence only a few days ago, when the conference coaches assembled in Chicago and proceeded to draft their schedule arrangements for the next two years.

Press dispatches from the Windy City sought to make out that the Hawkeyes had been able to arrange an "attractive" slate of games, but the cat popped out of the bag when the published list disclosed that only Minnesota, Northwestern, Purdue and Indiana had contracted to joust with the Iowans, while the real leaders of the Big Ten, meaning Chicago, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio State and Wisconsin, kept themselves off the Hawkeyes' roster.

Such a situation permits but one interpretation, to-wit: The same directors and coaches who forced the Big Ten faculty men into taking action against Iowa have lost little of their resentment and none of their determination to have nothing to do with the Iowans until they have become positively convinced that the Hawkeyes have seen the error of their ways and actually have cleaned house.

A CONDITION of affairs very much akin to that in the Big Ten exists in the Big Six conference, in which there is open criticism of Kansas U., if not actual bitterness. For the past two years, rival schools in the Big Six circle have accused the athletic authorities of the Lawrence institution of making common cause with a

Bobby Renews Try For British Title

Atlanta Barrister On Mark Monday To Strive for Only Golf Crown That Never Has Decked His Brow.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, May 24—(I. N. S.)—This man Jones and 21 other Americans, including the reigning champion, Harrison Johnston, will be off next week on the annual disorder known as the British amateur golf championship, making their start Monday and their finish when and where they may. Almost anybody can enter the tournament; almost anybody can win it. As a vehicle, it is as archaic as an omnibus—a relic of an age when golf was young and class-conscious—but the British are inclined to be smug about their institutions and they don't seem to realize that they spend a week out of each year using the wrong way to find the right man.

Let the Romans Have It.

Of course, everyone is entitled to make his own ground rules and those who can't abide these are not obligated to play. In fact, the law distinctly says that you don't have to.

"When in Rome," etc., applies equally to a golf championship in another country, even though its regulations place a premium on the unknown, the unlooked for and often the uncalled for. The event, with its sequence of "sudden death" rounds of 18 holes, isn't championship golf, as we know and play it.

Sprinting Their Specialty.

It's just a foot race and the English are known as "specialists" in this class of play, just as some sprinters are specialists who can't be beaten at 60 yards. The writer, for instance, used to be very good at the "hat size" distance. Until he lost his stamina, he was almost unbeatable at 6 7-8 inches.

This is a poor analogy in connection with 18 holes of golf and I admit it. The concession also is freely made that the Americans, this man Jones included, are victims of their own phobia when they start out to play 18 holes. They think, they can't play 18 holes, so usually they don't.

Bobby Anxious to Win.

Anyhow, the British amateur is the one tournament that this man Jones is crazy to win and, to date, it is the one tournament that says him nay. He doesn't like 18-hole match play rounds and all he gets of these in the British event is 10 in a row between Monday and Friday, provided he survives that far.

He has yet to do so in several attempts and the theory is that, by the time he gets warmed up, the match itself is cold. In support of this contention, they point out that, in the recent "Golf Illustrated" tourney over there, he shot a 75 in the opening round and a 68 in the second, thus indicating that, while he might have been beaten in teh morning, a defeat would have been highly unlikely on an all-day basis of scoring.

When Theory Fails.

The theory stands up in this instance, but falls down elsewhere. Jones can and does start right from "taw" and play his best golf, provided the curse of his 18-hole complex is removed. On the same course where this championship will be played, St. Andrews, he last appeared in England to shoot 68-72-73-72 for the historic total of 285 in the British open of 1927.

These were four reasonably acceptable rounds, one might venture; but the point is that they didn't represent 18 holes of golf at any

EDGE TO BIG 6 OVER BIG TEN

Performances at Lincoln Surpassed Those On Evanston Oval.

BY GREGG M'BRIDE.

Big Six conference athletes, competing in the annual track and field championships at the Memorial stadium Saturday afternoon, handed their Big Ten rivals a bad lacing, according to comparisons of the meet records at Lincoln and Evanston.

The Big Six conference had eight winning marks better than the other conference. Although 10 institutions were in competition, only six Big Ten marks excelled the Lincoln records, while one event was a tie.

In the javelin throw, the Big Six conference had four casts better than the winning heave at Evanston, while in the discus two Big Six athletes excelled the winning effort in the Big Ten meet. The comparsions:

HUSKERS CRIMP KAGGIES' HOPES

Nebraska Rally In Ninth Scores Four Tallies To Win Game.

MANHATTAN, Kans., May 24—(Special)—Four runs, including a homer by Kotab with one on, scored in the ninth inning gave Nebraska's baseball team the second of the series with the Kansas Aggies here today, 9 to 5.

The score see-sawed until the ninth and was tied at 5 to 5 at the start of the inning. Ulstrom got to first on the sixth Kansas Aggie error of the game. Witte fanned, but Row scored Ulstrom with a double. Pickett was thrown out at first. Maser then singled and stretched it to two bases as Row scored. Kotab then knocked his homer, his fourth hit out of five times up.

Witte hit a home run in the first with Davison on and Maser hit another in the second with the bases empty. Nigro likewise kept up his record of a homer a day for the Aggies.

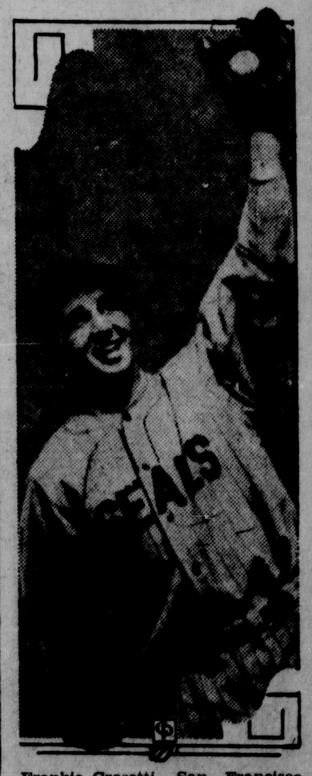

Sloan and Freeman, starting pitchers, both were knocked out. Pickett was wild, but kept the hits scattered. The Aggies have two games left with Kansas and can

Ban Johnson Sees Golf Stealing Baseball's Thunder

Fans Losing Interest In Diamond Pastime; Boys Taking to Links

"Golf has done more than all other things combined to undermine the popularity of baseball," declared Ban Johnson in St. Louis recently. The former president and founder of the American league is there continuing treatment for his eyes and, barring that trouble, seems to be in better physical candition than for many years.

Civic Pride Steps Out.

"Something more than 30 years ago, when I became connected with baseball," he added, "there was tremendous interest in the sport in all the small towns in the country. If the owner of a semi-pro-team or a minor league club could not make ends meet, the wealthy men of the town always chipped in at the end of the season to make up the deficit so as to keep the club going.

"A town without a baseball team was simply nothing at all. Civic pride demanded some sort of representation.

Golf the Main Attraction.

"But, as time went on, the men who had been backing the clubs with donations, became interested in golf. After a while they came to care more for golf than they did for baseball. Finally their interest in baseball ceased entirely and they devoted all their leisure to golf. That left the owner of a semi-pro league outfit, to go it on his own. Few could do that.

"One by one, the semi-pro clubs disbanded, many minor league towns quit, and thus began the decline of baseball as the greatest of American sports.

Boys Find New Interest.

"Before golf gained definite popularity, the boys in the towns and cities played baseball as their chief means of pleasure. Thus future big leaguers began their careers. In cases where boys could not play well enough to connect with some professional club, the love for the game was so strong with them that they later became the fans who filled our ball parks.

"But as the growth of golf increased demands for caddies, the boys started passing up the sand lots and the chance to play baseball. They sought caddy jobs. Here was something that kept them in the open air, gave them a chance to earn spending money and, in odd moments, they had their fun swinging at a golf ball with some discarded clubs.

Double Blow at Baseball.

"They became golf addicts thereafter. Thus golf struck a double blow at baseball. It took away the elder generation which had supported the game for so many years and it also weaned away from the diamonds the boys who had been counted upon to develop, via the sand lot and minor league route, into stars of the bige leagues.

"I think the peak of baseball's popularity has been passed. There are too many other sports which now challenge it in the matter of sight-seeing popularity.

"Furthermore, I feel that the game is slipping even in the affections of the veteran fans for the chief reason that there is nothing new in baseball. It is too routine now; too much of the mechanical step- up- and- try-to-hit-it-out-of-the-lot idea.

"Baseball once was a game where brains counted in an amazing way. But of late the players have discarded strategy and trickery and all the field generalship that once was practiced. Baseball has settled down to an exhibition of sluggery. The contests now are decided by the power of bats, brains, speed, courage and sheer daring.

"It's all sluggery now. Sluggery has become monotonous. And monotony has no appeal."

time. They were 72 holes of medal play. In brief, his "subconscious" wasn't bothering him.

Goodman Stopped Him.

It wasn't present, either, when he did 145 for two rounds of the qualifying test at Pebble Beach last summer, but it reared its ugly head promptly when the first round of match play began and the champion was beaten by Johnny Goodman at 18 holes.

Similarly, it may be pointed out that he began the American opens of 1926, 1928 and 1929 with a 70, a 73 and a 69 respectively, but in the first rounds of 18-hole match-play is the amateur championships of 1926, 1927 and 1928, he was almost beaten by inferior opponents and this actually happened in 1929.

Outdated System.

Just the same, and granting that a body of men is strictly accountable to itself for its own complexes, the English vehicle of amateur championship play has outdated itself.

It was all well enough to allow everybody with a handicap of four or less to enter when golf was a class institution; it doubtless also was quite all right to dispense with a qualifying round and even to permit the drawing of "byes" in the early rounds any time the field exceeded 256 players.

Injustice to All.

Such a field today not only is cumbersome; it is unjust to everybody in it, including the very best and the very worst.

Having said which, I'll venture one thing more; that, if Jones gets as far in this championship as Glenna Collett did in the women's event, viz, the final round, they never will stop him. It is possible to beat him at 36 holes, but there isn't an amateur in the world who is going to do it—with the British championship at stake.

Jeffs Even Up In Series With York

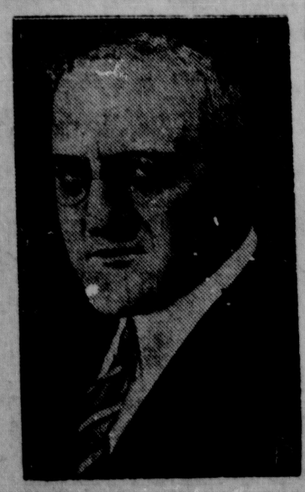

FAIRBURY, Neb., May 24—Fairbury evened the four-game series with York by defeating them 4 to 2. It was a pitchers' battle between Matulka and San Filippo. The latter was invincible in the pinches, Matulka also pitched effectively. The score:

BIG TEN DRAWS LINE ON ARMY

Conference Elevens Not Permitted Clash With West Pointers.

EVANSTON, Ill., May 24—(UP)—After completion of the 1930 schedules, athletic competition between members of the Big Ten conference and teams representing the Army will not be permitted until the latter institution adopts the rule whereby athletes will be restricted to three years of collegiate competition. Members of the faculty committee of the Western conference so ruled in their meeting here today.

The faculty committee adopted a resolution calling for athletic severances with all colleges and universities which do not adhere to the three-year eligibility rule. The latter resolution will become effective at the termination of 1930 schedules.

The three-year eligibility rule has been in effect in the Western conference for several years and only in the case of members [illegible] with the service elevens have exemptions been granted.

Hawkeyes Turned Down.

The committee also refused to reinstate eight Iowa athletes to good standing in the conference. The eight Hawkeyes were ruled from further Big Ten competition last winter, following an investigation of athletic conditions at Iowa.

Among the athletes whose petitions for reinstatement were denied was Mike Farroh, co-captain elect of the 1930 Hawkeye eleven.

Several big league pitchers are hitting well over .300. Last year Uhle, Yde, Bayne and Ruffing in the American league and Cvengros, Mays, Donohue, Brame and Scott in the National did it.

Excepting in exhibition games as a Yankee, Babe Ruth never made a home run in the Baltimore park, where he started. His only International league home run was made in Toronto.

The batting sensation of the Coast league is Frank Crosetti, San Francisco shortstop.

'GOB' CASHES IN AS GAB SLINGER

Sharkey Talks Himself Into Position to Get Some Real Money.

Shires, On Other Hand, Discovers Ballyhoo Is Poor Racket.

NEW YORK, May 24—(I. N. S.)—To speak or not to speak—that is the question.

Take the case of Shires and Sharkey, a pair of blustering hemen of sportsland, who, according to present indications, should be sufficient to furnish you with some rather volatile statistics on how rich one may become by blowing his own bugle.

Today both Shires and Sharkey are strangely silent. If vocal chords were retailing at six millimeters a throw, they couldn't purchase enough to be heard by a rabbit one inch away. And don't think there aren't definite and unusually rational reasons why Art the Great and Jack the Gob should suddenly revert to silence — that enshrouded, mystic dame who tells you nothing and reveals less.

Annoying, But Colorful.

While clubbing the ball in a healthy manner and playing a decent all around game at first for the Chicago White Sox last year, Shires maintained an incessant chatter afield and off-field. Afield, opposing players, his own manager and even his team-mates became fairly disgusted with the gall he showed in appointing himself his own press agent. But Shires only added to this by donning spats and buying all the sportiest canes in town. Off-field, however, the customers experienced mingled feelings of resentment and appreciation. An annoying character but a colorful one.

Too Much Ballyhoo.

All this ballyhoo for Shires naturally reflected upon the team and wherever went the White Hose, went the crowd. This pleased Shires and the Chicago front-office. The former was delighted in that he was becoming a drawing card and would be in line for an increase in currency the following year for his "it", while the latter was revelling in the dash of life afforded an otherwise dreary team and the ensuing monetary profits.

To add to his color, Shires became some sort of a prize-fighter in order to pass the winter months as well as enter a lucrative business. Shires will tell you he didn't succeed in his venture if you just say "George Trafton" to him and let it go at that but he will ardently aver that his becoming a boxer was incidental to his becoming a rich man. All of which, nevertheless, fell plenty short of his purpose—that of attaining a big increase in salary.

Now Art finds himself pulling down but $7,500 a season, a price he vigorously objected to after all his efforts at ballyhoo.

That's why Shires is silent at present.

Only one other present sports character has ever been able to match Shires for pure, unadulterated gabbing. That chap is Boston Jack Sharkey, who, at this very moment, is panicking his public as he goes about preparing for the Max Schmeling championship fight without as much as opening his mouth for the exercise alone. Sharkey, mind you, is spilling some very few egotistic expressions anent his prowess but in comparison to what he used to say about himself, he's struck dumb.

Soap Box Oratory.

Yet Sharkey unlike Shires gained everything by his soap-box campaign. The Beantown tar received his first opportunity by talking so long to Humbert Fugazy that even today the good signor is chary of anyone who contiuues speaking beyond a few minutes stretch. Sharkey's talk centered about his ability to handle Harry Wills properly and finally Fugazy, ear weary, consented to toss Sharkey in with the Black Panther at all costs.

After his first few important victories, Jack's talking mania had the country by the ears and wherever Sharkey went his tongue was sure to follow.

It wasn't until Jack Dempsey quashed him and Johnny Risko pummelled the life from him that he finally compromised to speak for no longer than twenty-thre and a half hours a day, with no time out for meals.

Says It On The Nose.

But just like that, Sharkey decided that to transfer most of his energy from his tongue to his right arm wouldn't be a bad idea at all. So now he gabs, but at rare intervals. Most of the time he says what he wants to say with a good swat in the nose.

While Shires derived nothing but a lot of ballyhoo and abuse for his benevolent usage of the first person pronoun, Sharkey has capitalized on his "I am great, greater, greatest" attitude to such an extent, he now finds himself in a position where he can halt his tongue-wagging and still realize on his efforts.

That Kicking Machine.

Shires, doting upon the fact that Sharkey is in line for a few million dollars without having to resort to the usual first person ballyhoo, must feel like tendering himself a nice, refined kick where it hurts most. For he, in failing to keep quiet, has been quieted in an effective way.

If Shires had kept his mouth shut and given the air a chance to come through his nose, maybe he would be in the same enviable position the big mutter and mumble man from Boston now finds himself in. So, perhaps, this has served to explain why Sharkey is silent.

coterie of K. U. alumni in proselyting and subsidizing athletic material.

Although the faculty delegates of the Big Six have been fully advised as to what has been going on at Lawrence, no official action has been taken other than the adoption of an innocuous scheme to mail a questionnaire to conference athletes.

The apparent willingness of these faculty delegates to let Kansas go unscotched; their lack of courage in the face of a festering situation on the Lawrence campus, evidently puts it up to the conference directors to take the case in hand, quite as was done by the leading directors of the Big Ten.

Kansas, of course, can be brought to time, but the faculty delegates apparently have no stomach for the fight, so if aught is to be done, the directors must do it.

THE roster of minor league baseball clubs that have decided to install illuminating plants for night games steadily is mounting with each succeeding day. The list included only a dozen an even week ago, but during the past few days two class AA league cities—Sacramento of the Pacific coast circuit and Indianapolis of the American association—have given notice of intention to play home games under floodlights, while Kansas City, once the Hickey league's wonder city in the department of paid attendance, has slipped so far from its high estate that Owner George Muehlebach is seriously contemplating adoption of the nocturnal scheme.

Although Des Moines was the first city in organized ball to make a formal test of the night lighting plan, the first plant was erected in Lincoln at Landis field.

THE general tendency at that time was one of skepticism; the average fan, while interested, inclined to the belief that baseball could not be successfully played under artificial lights.

That particular criticism has been answered. The manufacturers of lighting equipment have demonstrated that their product will deliver the goods.

Sunlight, as a matter of course, is the only perfect illumination, but the substitute has proved satisfactory in a most surprising way and night baseball I suspect, has come to stay.

Ridiculed as a fad only a few weeks ago, night baseball has gone over the top, and now the leagues which rank next to the majors are wheeling into line, which suggests that even the "big time" may be following suit before the end of the present season.

THE night baseball idea was borrowed from night football which proved its case during two gridiron seasons before the baseball men wised themselves to the fact that they had been passing up a swell scheme to retrieve their fortunes and revive popular interest in a waning sport.

Magnate Lee Keyser of Des Moines set the pace and is entitled to full credit for his genius in grabbing a good thing and his enterprise in putting it over.

In this connection, I take note that "Sec" Taylor of the Des Moines Register recently gave publicity to a few lines in which he related that I had declared myself as opposed to the night game idea, the answer to which is that Friend Taylor was misinformed.

THE one wish I have had in the matter of night baseball is that the plan might contribute to the prosperity of good fellows of the Lee Keyser type. Mr. Keyser, to my knowledge, has had his ups and downs in his baseball venture at Des Moines, but all the while there has been no one in the game more deserving of success.

And if night baseball will aid President Bob Robinson in making a go of his State league venture in Lincoln, then I am for it to the very limit. The response to date, I am happy to say, has been pleasing to Prexy Bob. In fact, the only suggestion I care to venture is that Bob and his manager, Les Nunamaker, may so coordinate their talents as to assemble a ball club that will pull the Links out of the second division in the Nebraska loop race.

As to the night games, I believe they will take care of their own situation. The lighting plant is there and delivering the goods, so the most the Links need, as I see it, is a potent ball club.

McCook Bags Win On Triple Killing

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., May 24—Featuring a triple play and outhitting the Islanders, the McCook Generals squared the series here Saturday by a score of 4 to 1. Manager Kirkham protested the game on a decision on a freak play. Kreevitch made an almost impossible catch of a hard hit ball in deep center and doubled a runner, who was nearing third when he made the catch, at first, a runner in the meantime scoring from third after the catch. RECORDS CRASH IN SENSATIONAL MEET ing the 1926 meet at the Memorial stadium. Four watches clocked Meier in 9 4-10 seconds. The other watch timed him in 9 3-10 seconds.

Speeds Over Cinders.

Flying over the same cinder path which had previously felt the spikes of such sattelites as Wykoff, Paddock, Borah, Locke, Bowman, Scholz and Murchison, the Iowa State boy was away with the crack of the gun and never let down his terrific pace until he had breasted the tape with several feet of daylight between him and his team-mate, Wells, who finished second.

Meier's work Saturday was no flash in the pan. During the winter season the Iowa State youth stepped to the front when he ran the 60-yard dash at the Big Six indoor meet in 6 1-10 seconds— a tenth second under the world record for that distance indoors. His 5 2-10 seconds on the coliseum boards at the K. C. A. C. last February equalled the world record for 50 yards indoors.

Not So Fast In Furlong.

While Meier shattered Locke's record over the century distance, his performance in the fu.long was not comparable to the work of the great Gipper over the furlong stretch. For the first 100 yards he appeared equal to Locke's record, but he lacked the carry through and Locke's final burst in the last 100 yards. His mark for the furlong was 21 3-10 seconds, more than half a second slower than the conference record hung up by the former Scarlet flyer.

The track was lightning fast for the Saturday finals and the weather ideal for competition. Only a slight breeze was blowing at the time of Meier's fast century and a slight cross-wind was all that bothered the athletes the remainder of the afternoon.

Tomson Comes Through.

The pace in the track and field events, in fact, became so fast that the bevy of defending champions were all but swept from their thrones. Cobe Tomson, Nebraska broad jumper, was the only champion to successfully withstand the onslaught of ambitious competitors and the Cornhusker had to leap to a new conference record to turn the trick.

Bill Ossian, Nebraska pole vaulter, was fairly successful in defending his crown. Ossian finished in a three-way tie with Bryce of Oklahoma and Soults of Iowa State last spring. Bryce passed out of the picture via graduation and Ossian managed to shake loose from Soults Saturday. However, Jim Bausch of Kansas bobbed up and on his last trial cleared 13 feet 3½ inches to pull into a tie with the Nebraska sky-scraper.

New Champions Crowned.

Among the champions giving way to younger performers were Hursley, Missouri, quarter-mile; Carmen, Oklahoma, low hurdles; Lamson, Nebraska, high hurdles; Shelby, Oklahoma, high jump; Faytinger, Nebraska, javelin; and Fortune, Kansas, two-mile. The Missouri mile relay team, with slight alterations, had little trouble retaining supremacy in passing the baton for the distance.

Russell Dills, Missouri quarter-miler, contributed the first record-breaking performance of the afternoon. In spite of the fact that he was forced to work his way out of a box before taking the north curve, Dills swung in from the outside lane to breast the tape in front of two of his team-mates with a mark of 48 6-10 seconds. It was two-tenths of a second under the mark by A. E. Wolters of Iowa State in the 1922 meet.

Simpson Marks Surpassed.

An odd turn of fate brought Bob Simpson, Iowa State track coach, into a pair of record-breaking achievements during the Saturday program. While wearing the colors of Missouri, Simpson ran in front the pack in two conference record during the 1916 Missouri Valley championships—the high and low hurdles.

This year Simpson saw one of his owns boys, Bob Hager of Iowa State lower his high hurdles mark and Welch of his alma mater trim his low hurdle record. Hager's mark of 14 5-10 seconds was one-tenth second under Simpson's record and within one-tenth second of world time. Welch's mark of 23 3-10 seconds shaved 3-10 seconds off Simpson's former record for the Valley circle.

Ray Putnam's Misfortune.

Ray Putnam of Iowa State turned in the other new record on the track. Picked to hang up a new mile record, Putnam ran into a tough break at the start of the mile race, the first event on the final program. He had neglected to tape his shoes and tossed a spiked brogan on the north curve just 50 yards from the start, dropping out of the race.

Returning to the track later in the afternoon, Putnam grabbed a lead and was never threatened during the two-mile run. His time of 9 minutes 30 2-10 seconds took more than eight seconds off the conference record established by "Poco" Frazier, diminutive Kansas runner, during the 1928 championships.

Shot and Discus Records.

The shot and discus marks of Doss Richerson, Missouri giant, made during the 1928 meet, were tossed into the discard. J. Bausch of Kansas, Hugh Rhea of Nebraska and Rider of Oklahoma all bettered the old shot record, Bausch getting the iron ball out 49 feet 10½ inches for the new mark.

Melvin Thornhill of Kansas sailed the discus 155 feet 11 inches, more than 10 feet past the old mark. Ward of Kansas also bettered the old mark. In fact, four Jayhawkers got the platter out better than 135 feet.

The broad jump was one of the bright spots on the afternoon program. It took better than 23 feet to win fifth place, the title staying with Tomson, who leaped 24 feet 2¼ inches to a new record.

Hinshaw Spills Dope.

Captain Lowell Hinshaw of Kansas contributed one of the big upsets of the meet when he won the 880-yard run. The race was ballyhooed as a clash between Rockwell Swartz of Missouri and Bob Ostergaard of Nebraska.

The Swartz-Ostergaard duel started from the bark of the starter's pistol. In fact, the pace became so terrific that the pair burned themselves out so that they exhausted the extra supply in the reserve tank and had barely enought gasoline to finish the race.

The yran the first 220 yards in 22 seconds and were clocked in 52 seconds for the quarter, wilting on the home stretch and permitting Hinshaw to cut down a 15-yard lead in the last 40 yards and breast the tape the winner by inches. The time was 1 minute 57 seconds.

Dawson Wins Mile.

The mile run went to Dawson, the Oklahoma harrier passing Nagel of Iowa State after the first lap and having everything his own way.

Milton Ehrlich, Coach Ward Haylett's Kansas Aggie high jumper, surprised with a victory over Shelby, Oklahoma champion, in this event. Ehrlich had only to clear 6 feet 2 inches to pass Shelby. He then tried for a conference record and failed at 6 feet 4 inches.

Summary of Meet.

Alliance Tunes Up For Sunday Contest

ALLIANCE, Neb., May 24—Alliance baseball performers have engaged some lively competition for Sunday's game, with the Mitchell aggregation coming here for one of the outstanding contests in the North Platte Valley league. Although the local men have lost two games in as many starts, they are getting in good condition and promise to show the Mitchell players a fast game. Stone, one of the leading hurlers in the league, will be on the mound for the visitors. Alliance has lost to Oshkosh and Minatare, the scores being 8-6 and 7-5 on each occasion.

MICHIGAN WINS BIG TEN MEET

Wolverines Annex Track Laurels; Sentman High As Point Winner.

EVANSTON, Ill., May 24—(U. P.) Lithe Lee Sentman of the University of Illinois carried off individual honors while Michigan was winning the thirtieth annual Big Ten track and field meet today. Sentman dazzled 9,000 spectators by winning both hurdle races for a total of 10 points and then went into the broad jump for fourth place and two points more which put him ahead of George Simpson, the Ohio sprinter, who, although he won both dashes, was somewhat of a disappointment.

To accomplish his feat Sentman beat such men as Dick Rockaway, Ohio State, Holder of the unofficial 220-yard low hurdle record of 22.8; Hatfield, Indiana; Saling, Iowa; Rodgers and Cave, both of Illinois. He might have made better time if pushed harder.

Simpson Ranks Second.

Simpson, with 10 points to his credit, was second in individual scoring, but he failed to prove that he is as fast without starting blocks as with them. Recently two of his records, one of which was 9.4 seconds in the century, were not allowed because he used the blocks.

Today he went out determined to run from toe holes and set new records, but he did the hundred in only 9.7 seconds and the furlong in 21 seconds. Although both marks were fast, he has travelled both distances in better time with the blocks.

Last year in the Big Ten meet Simpson ran into one of the greatest disappointments of his life when Eddie Tolan beat him in the finals of the century dash. Today he was a step and a half ahead of Tolan in each of the dash events.

Illinois Trails Michigan.

In team honors, ranking next to Michigan, which scored 51 points, was Illinois with 44½ points.

The other teams scored as follows: Wisconsin, 33; Ohio State, 31½; Iowa, 24; Indiana, 20; Northwestern, 18; Chicago, 7; Purdue, 7; Minnesota, 4.

The final event, the hammer throw, decided the meet. Leading by only 1½ points, the Wolverines took the honor position when Holly Campbell took first place and garnered five points while Ill

Sailor Sharkey Has "Real Goods," But Can He Deliver?

Boston Gob Has Class, But Ability Whip Max Hinges On His Courage

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling of Germany are to fight for the world's heavyweight championship. The New York boxing commissioners have agreed to let the title ride, so far as they are concerned, with the decision of the referee, and probably other commissions will follow suit. It might as well be that way, just to plug up the vacancy created by the retirement of Gene Tunney. Sharkey and Schmeling may not be the greatest heavyweight fighters on record, and there's a slight suspicion that they aren't, but if the title "asset" is given to some one by general consent, the holder will be compelled to defend it, and there'll be some sort of action later that may develop a real champion.

Has Sharkey the Heart?

Jack Sharkey, if he hasn't become too flabby in fighting spirit, should beat Schmeling. He has the boxing ability and the hitting ability to do it. What he may lack is the heart. Sharkey is a queer sort of a fighter. When he was a hungry gob, he risked everything and socked with everybody he met. When he got money he became a careful business man.

His fight last year with Stribling at Miami was a painful exhibition, both interested chiefly in holding what they had. His fight with Phil Scott at Miami this past winter was no better. He should have hit Scott on the chin, knowing Scott's penchant for claiming fouls, and have knocked Scott out within a few rounds. He made a second-rater's fight, though officially declared winner. No one can imagine any arguments following a fight between Scott and Tunney, Dempsey, Willard, Johnson, Burns, Jeffries, Fitzsimmons, Corbett or Sullivan.

Terror When Confident.

Yet when Sharkey feels like fighting, and is sure he can win in a hurry, he's a terror. He felt that way when he fought Dempsey. He'd seen Dempsey most completely beaten by Tunney at Philadelphia and he was cock-sure Dempsey was all through a helpless hulk. He went through the first two rounds, giving Dempsey a fearful two-round beating before he realized that Dempsey was fighting back grimly and that there was still a shock in the old champion's blows. And then Sharkey wilted.

He can go through the best light-heavyweights with speed and certainty. Remember the way he hurried to knock out Delaney and Loughran. It's a matter of confidence with Sharkey.

Has Some Real Goods.

He may feel perfectly sure he can whip the half-schooled Schmeling. And this being the first time that he has been within reaching distance of the big title, he may fight with new fury. In that case, Mr. Schmeling will be up against a very tough proposition. For, aside from a fluctuating fighting temperament, Sharkey has "the goods" that ought to make him the most dangerous big man in the ring today.

Sharkey is a very good boxer. He has speed. He can hit hard. Jack Dempsey is a truthful fellow, when he talks about the men he has fought, and he always did admit that Sharkey gave him as stormy a two or three rounds as he ever experienced. Dempsey admired Sharkey's socking ability. He never talked about Sharkey's sticking ability. If Dempsey can't say a friendly word about the men he fights he says nothing at all.

But Can Sailor Stick?

Sticking ability may have a lot to do with deciding the winner in the coming heavyweight title fight. There is little doubt about the German's sticking ability. He impresses one as a fighter with plenty of grit, no matter what else he lacks.

That fight with Paolino last year showed Schmeling cool, calculating, fighting exactly to orders and perfectly confident at all times. He was aggressive when the time came to make a hot finish and cinch the decision.

Paolino's eyes were nearly closed and he couldn't see a blow coming. But others failed to knock Paolino out. It takes a socker of the Dempsey Fitzsimmons type to flatten these tough big fellows.

How Max Might Win.

If Sharkey loses confidence, he loses this fight. Schmeling, awkward, unskilled in comparison with Sharkey, will bob clumsily down to the floor to avoid punches and then come up punching, just as he did with Paolino.

And Schmeling is a fairly good, stiff hitter. He has a "mauling punch." He's something like Tunney in that. A mauling punch, and plenty of heart, youth and strength and endurance and all that sort of thing can win a lot of fights.

Schmeling hasn't a great fighting record. If Von Porat, for instance, had duplicated Schmeling's fighting record in this countrty, nobody would have given a second thought to it.

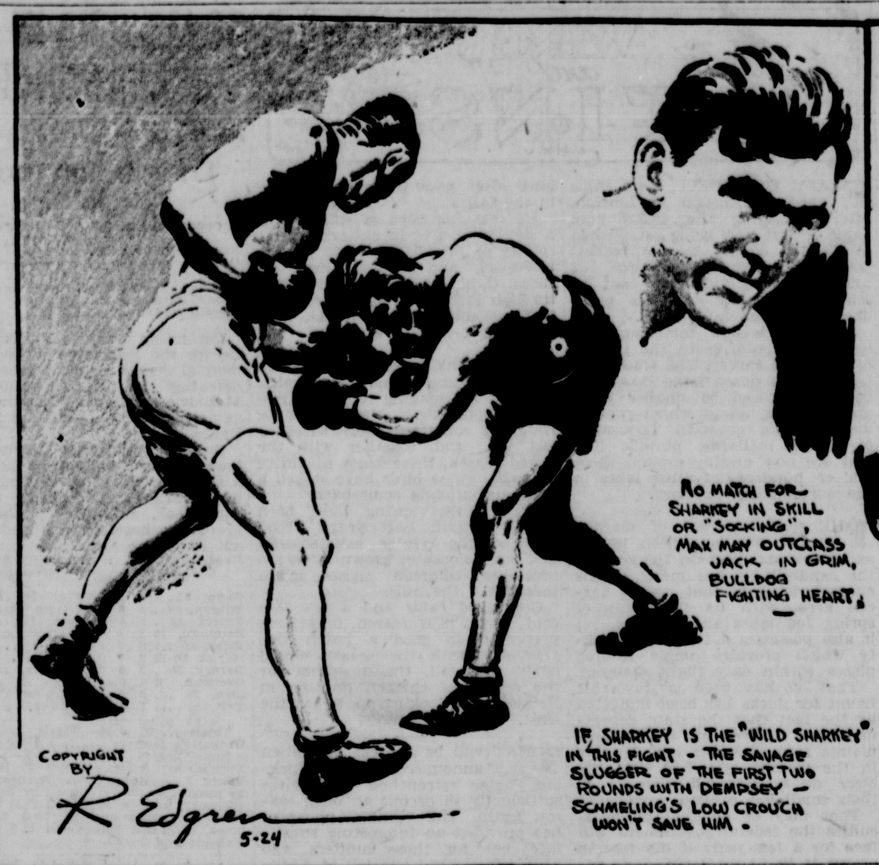

But Schmeling is a picturesque figure—the first German heavyweight who has shown any ring ability at all. He attracts attention because of that and because he has a curiously close resemblance, physically, to Jack Dempsey.

Dead Ringer for Dempsey.

He has Dempsey's head, features, and lean but powerful build. He hasn't Dempsey's grace and ease. He seems to have some of Dempsey's grim determination. That determination is a great thing for a fighter to have. It wins fights. Endurance and determination made Battling Nelson, the awkward Dane, one of the greatest of lightweight champions.

This fight will draw a great crowd. It will be the first championship affair since Tunney and Dempsey fought in Chicago, and, although the little fellows have become very popular in the past two years, the real crowd always turns out for the heavyweights.

BOBBY JONES SAYS

BY BOBBY JONES.
National Open Champion.

THE importance of a full free backswing is a thing I have harped upon considerably without, I believe, ever definitely pointing out to what position the club should be carried. I feel that this phase of the golf stroke is worthy of further elaboration, particularly because it is one in which nearly all golfers err when for any reason the responsibility of making an important shot begins to weigh upon them. The length of the backswing is one of the things which I have to watch continuously, even when I am playing golf almost every day.

Many authorities have urged upon us that to take the club back so far that it passes the horizontal position is to be guilty of a fault which they call "overswinging." While I admit that it is physically possible to swing back too far—that is, so far that the balance of the player will be disturbed or his head pulled away from its proper position—still I am certain the temptation or inclination to do so is not present to an extent which constitutes a menace to the player. The average person's tendencies are all in the other direction. His desire, nine times out of 10, is to shorten his swing rather than lengthen it.

IN playing a full wood shot, my club passes noticeably beyond the horizontal so that, although my hands are high, well above my head, the club-head dips to about the level of the point of my chin. Posed photographs indicate that at the top my club is approximately horizontal, but motion pictures of a swing when actually hitting a ball show the true position. This is not true of Horton Smith, who permits very little cocking of the wrists at the top, but the majority of professionals swing back just about as far as I do.

It is a popular notion that an iron club requires an abbreviated backswing, just because it is an iron. This is not so. In this respect there is no reason for an iron to be handled differently. The length of the backswing has practically nothing to do with control, and if the iron needs to be swung as fast as the wood, the backstroke employed with it should be just as long. The misconception likely arose because the wise pros rarely ever play a really full iron.

THE iron shot is the medium of approaching the hole, a shot the success of which is measured in feet and inches from the hole. For this reason, what is spoken of as a full iron shot is not a full shot in the same sense as a drive. The player almost always with an iron plays a shot of less force than the ultimate limit of the club he uses. When driving the player intends to place his ball in as favorable position as possible, but his direction does not need to be precisely accurate and it is rarely necessary to limit the distance. With an iron, the ball must be struck only to a certain point and not past it, and the direction should be accurate to a few inches.

The full backswing accomplishes one thing above all others—it gives the player time and room in which to start a gradual acceleration of his swing. It enables him to build up velocity from zero at the top to a maximum at impact without having to hurry. No swing can be smooth if the backswing is stopped at a point from which the club must be yanked downward with no chance to flow easily into the rapid motion.

MORE short pitches are missed because of an abbreviated backswing than for any other reason. The player has been told to limit the length of the shot by limiting the length of the stroke and in no event to soften the force of the blow. In attempting to play a short shot firmly he invariably chops off his backswing and ruins his timing. He need not, indeed, should not, employ a full swing for a short pitch, but neither must he get the idea that the length of the swing shot be half when the length of the shot is half.

In any case, the club must be taken back far enough to comfortably accommodate the blow to be delivered. The club must be given time to gather whatever speed it is intended to have.

Nebraska HORSES and HORSEMEN by "Columbus"

ONE of the leading spring events of the trotting season in Germany, known to Americans as "The Great April Race" and valued at $1,200, was won by the six-year-old mare Fastrada, by Viney Bingen, 2.06¾, son of King Bingen, p., 2:19¾. Fastrada was bred and owned by the Bardenhagen stud of Germany and she trotted the mile and a quarter in 2:58½, or at the rate of 2:20¼, for the mile.

We are interested in this race for the reason that Viney Bingen gained his record over the mile track in Omaha, Sept. 4, 1920, in the first heat of the 2:09 trot, an event won by that grand trotting stallion, Axtien, 2:06¼. That mile by Viney Bingen at Omaha is the fastest yet trotted in the state of Nebraska by a stallion.

Lincoln readers of The Star may easily recall the splendid mile trotted in 2:09¼ over the half-mile track at the state fair grounds in 1917 by Axtien. That exhibtiion of speed came in the third heat of the 2:11 trot, an event long to be remembered by harness-horse enthusiasts.

Six splendid trotters started in that event and Heir Reaper, a Nebraska-owned stallion and a general favorite, won the opening mile in 2:11¼, a most creditable performance at an early meeting in this state.

The three following heats were won by Axtien, a handsome chestnut son of Axworthy, 2:15½. The other starters were Aldino, 2:10¾; Miss Rexetta, 2:07½; Anzonetta, 2:10¼, and May Harriman, 2:09¼, finishing in the order named after Axtien and Heir Reaper. Anzonetta was bred and owned in Nebraska, while Miss Rexetta was owned at the time by E. D. Gould, Kearney, Neb.

THE meeting at Lincoln that week was easily the most successful early event of its kind held in this state. It was promoted by C. H. Wittman, owner of The Triumph, 2:08¼, at the time that trotter was brought to Nebraska. We doubt if another meeting of its kind was ever held in the Missouri valley country, as Mr. Wittman had no backers—only a number of well wishers.

Each event of the program was warmly contested and exceptionally fast time recorded in all races. Of especial note was the class for three-year-old trotters, going four heats, with three heat winners. In that event Mariondale, by Archdale, won the first heat in 2:17¼, Alicola the second in 2:15¼, Fred C. Todd the third in 2:16½ and Alicola the fourth and the race in 2:19.

Later, Mariondale raced well for Tommy Murphy at Grand Circuit meetings, gaining a record of 2:05½, Alicola eventually trotted in 2:07¼, and Fred C. Todd gained a four-year-old record of 2:14¼, later becoming a certain sire of speed.

THE season Mariondale was raced at Grand Circuit meetings by Tommy Murphy, which was the year of 1919, that black gelding, bred at West Point, Neb., by Shinstock Bros., was the only trotter to win a race from McGregor The Great, 2:03¼, something he did at Readville, Mass., in the $10,000 Massachusetts Stake.

McGregor The Great was the real "bear cat" trotter of 1919 and it was far more than a seven-day wonder when Mariondale won that race at Readville, a Boston suburb. McGregor The Great won the first heat in 2:08¼, when Mariondale came on to win the next in 2:06¼ and 2:06¾.

Another Nebraska-bred harness horse won at Readville that same week. We refer to Goldie King, by Gold Bingen, 2:21¼, dam by Norval King, 2:12¼.

Goldie King won the American Horse Breeders' Futurity Stake for three-year-old pacers, valued at $1,480, with her miles in 2:09¼ and 2:08½.

GEORGE BRANDEIS of Omaha, former owner of that sterling race-pacer Hal Mahone, 2:01, recently purchased for $3,500 the well known show mare Lillian Sydles, by Elmer Dickson, 2:06¼. That mare was raced some as Kitty Morris, gaining a trotting record of 2:18½ in 1922, at which time she was six years old. Kitty Morris, or Lillian Sydles. was bred at Springfield, Ill., by Mrs. Julia Ankrum, and her dam, Lady Griffin, was sired by Red Roy, son of Red Heart, 2:19.

Much stress was placed by writers for the daily press on the breeding of Gallant Fox, winner of the late Kentucky Derby. Those writers repeated the information that Gallant Fox was bred in Maryland. It is true that his breeder was William Woodward of Bellair stud, Maryland, but his dam was shipped to Kentucky by her owner and mated with Sir Galahad III, imported from France.

Not only was that true, but the dam was left in Kentucky until after foaling time, when she was again bred to the same stallion. Technically speaking, Gallant Fox was bred by William Woodward (in Kentucky), Belair stud, Maryland. That is the official manner of recording such matters with registrars of blooded horses.

AN example of what we are attempting to state comes to mind at this time. J. B. Creighton of Omaha, Neb., bred the trotting stallion Frisco Moko, 2:23, a pronounced sire of early speed, but he shipped the dam of that horse to Kentucky, where she was bred to San Francisco, 2:07¾, owned at Walnut Hall Farm.

R. I. Lee of Topeka, Kan., shipped a daughter of Robert McGregor, 2:17½, to Kentucky and had her bred to Jay Bird, son of George Wilkes. The result of that mating was a stallion named Jackdaw, which in time became a true sire of trotting speed.

Peter Potempkin, 2:17½, by Peter The Great, 2:07¼, was bred by C. M. Buck (in Kentucky) of Faribault, Minn., who shipped his dam to the Blue Grass country early in 1911. Peter Potempkin was the outstanding western sire of the past 10 years.

SOMETHING like two months ago we wrote of George Covington, noted jockey of 45 years ago, and mentioned that after winning the Kentucky Derby with Macbeth in 1888 he was given the magnificent sum of $250 by G. B. Hankins, owner. Compare that gift with the $10,000 Earl Sande received for riding Gallant Fox to victory May 17?

George Covington had a far more serious time winning with Macbeth than Sande had winning with Gallant Fox, as George was compelled to ride his horse hard to win from Gallifet.

We are reminded that Ed Corrigan of Kansas City, Mo., won the Kentucky Derby in 1890, with Riley and that the race was worth $5,460, far less than Earl Sande received for winning in 1930. Mr. Corrigan paid $900 for Riley in his yearling form and was reported winning quite a bit of money in the books when, as a three-year-old, Riley won the Kentucky Derby.

BEFORE joining the Hankins stable of Chicago, George Covington rode for James Gray of Rockport, Mo., winning a number of valuable races. They seemed valuable in those years, but mere pittances as compared with the sums raced for this season, which opened with that handicap at Agua Caliente, Mexico, worth $100,000 to the winner.

Probably the largest purse won by George Covington was at St. Louis, Mo., when he finished first in a stake event valued at $10,000. Concernnig the first race won by George Covington, also mentioned in a former chapter of "Nebraska Horses and Horsemen," Mort White of Beloit, Kan., advises that his father won enough on the race to

McGraw and Big Bambino Differ On "Lively Ball" Issue

Little Napoleon of N.Y. Giants Says "Rabbit" Ruining Diamond Game

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

If it's all true that great minds amble along in the same canyon of wisdom, how do you reconcile this contradiction?

1—John McGraw, one of the master thinkers and students of horsehide combat, states that the lively ball is putting the dingus on the national pastime, whereas,

2—Babe Ruth, who has thought out more homers than anyone on this earth, hoots at mere mention of a lively apple, declaring that it is all a "myth."

As McGraw Tells It.

McGraw, whose fame and greatness do not now depend upon whether he bumps out hits, remarked in a copyrighted article under his own signature that the lively ball seems to be faster than ever this year. It is making a joke out of baseball. If the owners do not get together and deaden it they are going to feel the effects at the gate. He pointed out that never in history have there been so many one-inning rallies where so many runs were made; that this spring it is nothing at all to make six, seven or even nine runs in an inning.

"We cannot blame it on the pitchers. Unquestionably it is the lively ball," the Giants' "Little Napoleon," concludes.

G. Herman Has His Say.

In opposition to McGraw's idea, ol' G. Herman Ruth, who is not so keen about having folks get the idea that the ball is but a globule of hard rubber, which idea would null Babe's greatness as a poker forth of long drives, says in substance:

"The rabbit ball is just an excuse for covering up bad pitching. What the game needs is not a different kind of baseball to swing at. There should be a few less restrictions on the pitcher, who is constantly forced to toss new white balls that are easy to see and can be hit for long distances because they have not become soggy."

Tinkering With Rules.

Ruth added that of late whenever anyone thought up an idea about changing the baseball rules, the idea always was to do something to the pitcher so as to make his job tougher and the batter's task easier. He pointed to a few low hit games pitched so far this season as bolstering up his contention that, if a pitcher is good, there isn't any murdering of the horsehide.

McGraw and Ruth both can't be right. One of them draws a zero in the debate. Who'll it be?

Now Who Is Right?

McGraw, who says the ball is lively, and who can point to 40 games played so far this spring where the hits and runs have been many?

Or Ruth, who ignores those record smashing scores and those fusillades of hits, and who nods to a few low hit games and a shut out or two, to prove that bad pitching is to blame; not a rabbit-like horsehide.

If put to a vote it is quite likely that McGraw's argument would win by an overwhelming margin.

Baseball Averages.

American League.

The Cleveland Indians maintain their distinction of being the only team in the Barnard circuit with a team batting average above .300. The Tribesmen found the pitching the past week harder to locate and dropped 13 points and now are at the .308 notch. The champion Athletics lead in runs scored with 195, with the surprising Senators second with 194. Washington also is second in team batting with the respectable figure of .294.

The hard luck Browns are the best defensively, having granted but 125 runs to the opposition in 30 games, which, however, is five more than they have been able to count for themselves. The A's have averaged less than one misplay to the game and have a team fielding percentage of .981.

Rice Tops the Hitters.

Rice of Washington holds first place in individual batting. During the past week the Washington veteran made 10 hits in 31 times up, his record falling to .390 as against .410 a week ago. Bill Hunnefield, trying once more to win the shortstop berth with the White Sox, is nominally second with an average of .387 for 13 games, but McManus is the real possessor of second place with 44 hits out of 116 times at bat in 33 games for a mark of .379. Burnett with .377 and Simmons with .374 are next in order, with Bill Cissell fifth at .371.

Babe Ruth leads in runs scored with 32. Nine of these were the result of four base blows, three of them coming in the game with the Mackmen, May 21. Sam Rice has made the most hits, 51; Simmons is first in total bases, 76; Shortstop Cronin leads in doubles, 13; Sam West in three-baggers, 6; Cronin in sacrifices, 9; Sam Rice in stolen bases, six, and Jimmy Foxx in runs batted in, 33.

Lyons Wins Seven.

Sam Rice hit safely in 28 consecutive games, but was stopped by Grove, May 18, when the champions' port-sider let the leaders down in a 1-0 defeat.

Mose Grove, Sam Jones and Mel Harder still are undefeated, the two first named being credited with five victories each and Harder with four, but the real hero of the season thus far among pitchers is Ted Lyons, who has won seven games and lost but one for the terrible White Sox. National League.

The Brooklyn Dodgers are beginning to show some of the class that discerning critics, who saw them in the late stages of their training trip, claimed for them. The Robins are not only first in the league standings, but they also lead in hitting, with the tremendous figure, for this time of the season, of .336 and are tied with the Cardinals in runs scored. Two hundred and eighteen runs in 30 games are convincing figures on attack and the defense is steadily improving. The infield defense is good and should improve and the mainstays of the pitching staff get better as the weather improves.

Orsatti maintains first place in the individual batting race and his consistent clouting has been an important factor in the recent successes of the Cardinals. Orsatti's average is .450, 10 points better than that of Riggs Stephenson, who in turn is 16 points ahead of Floyd Herman, who is the real batting leader. Paul Waner is close behind Herman with a mark of .432, followe dby Catcher Hogan with 418, two points ahead of Lefty O'Doul.

Hack Poles Dozen Homers.

Hack Wilson hit safely in 22 straight games and was stopped Wednesday by Kremer. "Sunny Boy" is hot after a home run record and if he can maintain his present pace to the end of the season, the record of the mighty Babe will be in danger. Wilson has turned in 12 circuit blows in 33 games.

Bill Terry leads in runs with 34 and in total bases with 86. Among Terry's 51 hits have been eight two-baggers, three triples and seven home runs. Frederick is first in hits with 55, Frisch in doubles, 15; Cuyler in three-baggers, 6; Bartell in sacrifices, 8; Cuyler in stolen bases, 8; and Klein and Wilson are tie din runs driven in with 34 each.

While Haines and Luque are creited with three straight victories each, Ervin Brame is the real leaer among the hurlers with five games won and one lost. National league averages, last Wednesday's games included, follows:

Sol Dreyfuss has bought out his partner, Fred McJunkin, in the Dallas club.

From Tee to Green.

BY ROY GROVE.

"WILD BILL' MEHLHORN, recent winner of the rich La Gorce open, at Miami, is an excellent example of golfing form, even to the extreme, as it sometimes seems.

This is particularly noticeable in his backswing with the driver. Note in the illustration how the shaft of the club, hands and arms seem to drag far back in taking off for the backswing. This action puts a world of power back of the stroke in coming down. He advances to the ball from along the ground, or to better illustrate, he gets a running start on the ball.

Note how he holds that stiff left arm and looks over his shoulder as in (A). Also, note how far the hands are extended over the head. This gives him more leverage and the wrists are ready to start that snappy whip into the downstroke.

Mehlhorn's hips do not sway with the shot, the action at (C) and (D) are well balanced with his foot action at (E. Both feet are well on the tee, as if he were glued there. His weight seems to be balanced on his heels where there is little chance of his leaning forward and pulling back when the ball is struck.

Mehlhorn is one of the most interesting of professional performers. He walks right up to the ball, gives the lay of the land the once over, spraddles out and aims right for the hole. This style of play makes for his accuracy when a long shot is needed for the pin.

It was just such a long shot that won the La Gorce tourney for him when he slammed a brassie for the green on next to the last hole, for an eagle and $5,000.

WINGS and FINS

J.M.M.

FRANK O'CONNELL, state game warden, returned to Lincoln, after inspecting the 40,000 acre game reserve now being established in Garden county by the federal government, spouting words of praise for the judgment used in selecting the site for this great duck and goose hostlery.

The land is now being surveyed by a representative of the bureau of biological survey. The tract contains a half dozen large lakes and between 25 and 50 smaller lakes and marshes, all of which provide ideal feeding grounds. Thousands of ducks, mallards, pintails and teal are now nesting around them and on hundreds of other lakes in the surrounding territory.

THE northern part of Garden county has long been known as a duck paradise. On the edge of the sandhills, it has many of the characteristics of that rugged barren area, with its thousands of spring fed lakes and streams, yet it also possesses a touch of fertility which provides ample feeding places within easy flight distance.

That it has been a favorable haunt for ducks has been indicated by the fact that the state department has received not a few complaints from ranchers and farmers in the vicinity who feel that the birds do considerable damage to their small but precious cornfields.

That may be one of the difficulties the federal government will face for a few years if the reserve proves to be as successful as is expected. Similar complaints were quite common against the pheasants in localities where they are most numerous, but experience has proved that hte damage was not so severe as at first believed and the feeling has gradually disappeared.

WHILE highly pleased with the establishment of this new reserve, Warden O'Connell, quite characteristically, is looking ahead to future development. Pointing out that while this tract is in the direct path of the great flight that, fanlike, begins far in northwest Canada and converges near the mouth of the Mississippi, it will only serve a small portion of the millions of birds that pass through Nebraska in the fall.

He sees the need of establishing a similar reserve in eastern Cherry county or Brown county to provide a resting and feeding place for those birds which come down through eastern Nebraska from the Dakotas and central Canada. That is the next goal to work for.

BUT Frank brought back more interesting news. The prairie chickens are making rapid progress in re-populating the sandhills. Hatching conditions were excellent last year and, together with the closed season, these kings of native Nebraska game birds have staged a most encouragnig come-back.

Reports this spring have been equally bright. Last year's brood survived the winter satisfactorily and large flocks of grown birds are becoming common sights again throughout the hills.

Continued rains and a few late cold snaps, it is feared, may have prevented as good a hatch this year, but with the season closed again this fall, the prospects for the return of chicken hunting in Nebraska are looking up, to say the least.

THAT will be a great day when it is announced that the chickens have retrenched themselves sufficiently to permit an open season again. The "Chink" pheasant has provided an interesting substitute, but for those hunters who have experienced the joy of flushing a flock of brown feathered whirlwinds out of a patch of bunch grass, or who have crouched along a tiny cornfield at sundown to pick them off as they sailed in singles and pairs to feed, there can never be a real substitute.

Besides providing an excellent substitute just at present, the pheasant undoubtedly will be an aid in conserving the prairie chickens when they again become plentiful enough to shoot. Good judgment will be shown then if the seasons on chickens and pheasants are open at the same time. Some hunters will prefer the one and some the other, and it is not too much to hope that the split may save the chickens.

DOWN THE LINE

With Bill McGeehan

LONDON—(On Tour)—As I leave the place of the three Richards, Richard III, Richard Wittington and Richard Turpin, I am filled with kidney pie, bitter bubble and squeak and dark forebodings. It may be that the forebodings are inspired by the aforementioned liquid and solids, which are conducive to melancholia in one whose digestion is not that of a sturdy Briton.

Looking through the daily prints in search of something over which to brood, I note that Primo Carnera, the Tall Tower of Gorgonzola, has been barred from 36 of the of the United States, enough of them to repeal the Volstead act if they could be made to feel as righteously indignant over it as they seem to feel concerning Carnera. The significant fact is that the New York state boxing commission has barred Carnera, too, with all due solemnity.

This would seem to make it international because the British board of boxing control, also will be forced to bar Carnera.

OF course, by the time this letter reaches the United States it all may be smoothed over again and Primo Carnera may be restored to good standing once more. The Tall Tower of Gorgonzola, which has not been legally razed, may be uplifted once more and there may be no difficulties. All of my dark foreboding may be due solely to the last meal in England, where I partook liberally of bubble and squeak. This dish acts that way upon persons who are not accustomed to it.

For the time, though, the situation looks serious. Many of the English, among them Mr. Trevor C. Wignall, the international authority, are urging the British board of boxing control to ignore the representations that are expected from the New York state boxing commission.

It seems that the English writers are still sored up, as we would say, over what was done to Phil Scott. By the way, what did you boys back home do to Phil Scott? Luckily I was not present when the outrage was perpetrated, but I have gathered that it was a terrible outrage indeed.

AT any rate most of the British boxing writers are insisting that unless the New York state boxing commission can produce the springboard from which Carnera's victims are alleged to have taken their dives, the edict of the New York solons be ignored. The mere decision of the New York boxing commission that Carnera is undesirable and tainted, wtih moral turpitude or what have they on him should not be enough, the English journalists say. They want the proof that Carnera's victims were voluntary divers, who were paid for giving exhibitions in the dry tank.

I gather that Carnera made no faint impression in England. Many of the English experts are sure that he is the coming champion of the world and they think that the barring by the American boxing commissions is done because they fear that Carnera is so good that he will take the title out of the United States. But then many of these experts once believed that Phil Scott was the next champion and before him Joe Beckett.

Still, such judges as Lord Lonsdale and Harry Preston cannot always be wrong. At any rate they are feeling here that Carnera is being barred because he is one of those foreign menaces to our cauliflower supremacy and they will not believe a disinterested commentator.

THIS is not the first time that the New York state boxing commission has been flouted in London in a semi-official way. I am informed that at a certain bout last year an American battler was introduced as the junior lightweight champion of the world. He was recognized as such by the New York state boxing commission.

Whereupon the earl of Lonsdale, who was seated near the ring, arose and said, "Mr. Master of Ceremonies, I object. There is no such title."

Naturally there was something like consternation at the ringside and several of the gentlemen in the earl of Lonsdale's party said, "Hear, Hear" and "Righto." There was nothing for the master of ceremonies to do but to walk over to the side of hte ring where the earl of Lonsdale was seated and say, "My lord, I stand corrected."

Nobody seems to know how this incident was smoothed over, but the general supposition is that our ambassador, General Dawes, took it up with the secretary of foreign affairs and that they agreed to let the matter drop in view of the fact that the naval conference was to be held in the near future.

Fortunately, no word of the remark of the earl of Lonsdale reached the New York state boxing commission in an official way or there might have ensued an interchange of letters between the earl of Lonsdale and our William of Muldoon. In such an event one letter would have led to another until no one could foresee the consequences.

As I am for a cauliflower amity throughout the world, I wish it distinctly understood that I am bringing up this matter in an entirely unofficial manner and hope that it will be accepted in that light.

OUR English cousin seems to take the edicts of the New York state boxing commission as lightly as people who eat heavy food can take anything. Mr. Wignall, for instance, points out that only last year our commission suspended Max Schmeling, Joe Jacobs, Pete Reilly, Billy McCarney and all their works for life.

"And yet," Mr. Wignall remarks, "Schmeling is now the white-haired boy of the New York state boxing commission." He seems to feel that the rulings of the American boxing commissions are decidedly Gilbertian and, indeed, they have been.

It is the general notion here that the British board of boxing control, should it act on representations from the New York commission and suspend Carnera, might find itself in an embarrasing situation. It takes a little time to get the machinery of the British board of boxing control into action. By the time they suspended Carnera and had the suspension ratified by the earl of Lonsdale and the remainder of the house of lords, they might find that the suspension had been lifted by the New York state boxing commission. Then they would have the work to do all over again. Stranger things than this have happened in regard to rulings of the New York boxing commission.

As a matter of fact, before I return to New York, home and beauty, as we say over here, the Tall Tower of Gorgonzola may have attached to himself another manager or two and may be, as Mr. Wignall, who understands the American language, puts it, the white-haired boy of the New York state boxing commission.

In the meantime, no concern in regard to the ultimate outcome is shown at the court of St. James and Mr. Jefferson Davis Dickson is proceeding with his plans for a Scott-Stribling bout.

Arndt Jorgens, catcher, farmed by the Yankees to Jersey City, is the only Norwegian born player in baseball.

'DURABLE' DANE KAYOES LAVIGNE

Nelson Too Tough to Be Conquered and Wins In Round 40.

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

(Finishing No. 8 of fight series, end of Lavigne-Nelson fight.)

BULL RING RINGSIDE, Mexico City, May 24.—It is the fortieth round. Lavigne has been knocking Nelson down until he has worn himself out. Nelson, spreading his feet and holding his jaw to take the Kid's punches, will not go down again. And now he is moving forward. He is talking to Lavigne, and grinning a shapeless grin.

"Didn't they tell you I can't be knocked out, Kid?" he asks.

Lavigne's answer is a furious swing. For once he misses. When a man is dog tired there's nothing that wrenches him like missing a well meant punch—feeling his heavy glove and leaden arm swing through without resistance and drag him off balance. Lavigne is wide open, floundering, slow to recover. His arms are down.

Dane Takes Offensive.

And, suddenly, the durable Dane flashes into life and action, drawing once again on the marvelous recuperative force that made him an invincible champion. He takes one quick step forward and cracks L

MARKET QUOTATIONS

GRAIN MARKET.
(International News Service.
CHICAGO, May 24

Grains closed irregular today. Wheat was up ⅛@⅛c and corn off ⅝@1c. Oats ruled unchanged to 1¼c lower and rye ½c down to ⅝c up.

Trade in wheat was moderate and the market easily influenced. Prices were unchanged to ⅛c down but rallied later on scattered buying and short covering. Weakness at the outset was attributed to a break of 1⅛@1½d at Liverpool and more favorable weather conditions over the wheat belt. Offerings were extremely light after the first hour.

Corn started ⅝@⅞c lower but later rallied in sympathy with the leading cereal. Favorable weather conditions figured in selling at the start. Short covering and buying on resting orders featured the late trade.

Oats and rye were in fair demand at uneven prices.

Estimated carlot receipts were: wheat 47, corn 205 and oats 102.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.
By International News Service.
NEW York, May 24

The best records in the dull and featureless week-end market were made by the motor stocks and accessories, with activity and strength in the General Motors group most pronounced. Electric Auto Lite sold up about 2 points and Chrysler was well bought a point above Friday's close. Railroad stocks required little outside buying to force prices of the best known shares in this group 1 to 2½ points higher.

Industrial reports at the week-end offered little in support of a decided recovery in business, but financial leaders were confident that business has turned the corner and that comparisons within a short time will contain more plus signs and fewer minus signs.

Heavy buying of General Motors, in blocks up to 20,000 shares, was responsible for the advance in that stock to 52⅜, a new high on the move. Du Pont, a large holder of General Motors stocks, rose 2½ to 133. Briggs and Yellow Truck, in the General Motors family, were in good demand, the former advancing nearly 3 points to 24¼. United States Steel closed fractionally higher, at 172 and Westinghouse was up 1⅜ at 176.

Stock sales totalled 959,000 shares.

Th. dull routine of professional trading in a few of the active shares was resumed today in the week-end half-session. The motor stocks made the best effort to reach higher price levels, under the lead of the General Motors group. Stocks of the amusement companies and a few of the leading dividend rails were pushed along behind the impetus of a pair volume of buying, but transactions in the first half hour totaled only 178,000 shares, about 20 per cent of normal volume.

Nothing very specific with respect to the business recovery was available in the week-end industrial and trade reports, and bank clearings showed a decline of 13 per cent for the week. An increase in the April business of the automobile-parts-accessory trade was reported by the motor and equipment associations.

Stocks of the General Motors group with Chrysler and Electric Auto Lite, reached a slightly higher level of prices. The list included Briggs Manufacturing, Yellow Truck, Bendix and General Motors, which again established a new high for the movement, at 51⅝. A market rumors linked up United Aircraft with General Motors, on an exchange of stocks basis, giving stockholders 1½ shares of motors for each share of aircarft held. This is in line with present market prices of both stocks. Chrysler moved up fractionally to 36⅛.

A better demand for copper metal was reflected in the fractional advance in Anaconda, Kennecott and other active copper stocks. The steels were dull and featureless, with United States Steel reaching a fractionally higher level. Atchison, Lackawanna and other blue-chip railroad stocks advanced 1 to 3 points on what was understood to be "inside buying" by prominent railroad interests. Wabash sold up a point at 52 and Western Maryland rose fractionally to 32¾.

Dullness in the stock market was paralleled in other sections of the financial markets. Bond trading in the first hour was only 50 per cent of the normal volume and there was a corresponding falling off in commodity trading. The stock market appeared to be cushioned by a good buying demand slightly below current prices and a mounting short interest, which in time will be compelled to buy. Railroad stocks were the leaders in a moderate rally in the second hour.

Irregularity with narrow price changes, featured the opening of the stock market today.

The utilities were firm with Consolidated Gas up ½ at 125½; United Corp. up ⅛ at 48; National Power & Light up ¼ at 46⅛; North American up ⅛ at 113¾; American & Foreign Power up ⅛ at 80¾.

Westinghouse lost about 2 points at 172¾. U. S. Steel was down ⅛ at 171; American Can up ⅞ at 43½; General Electric down ¼ at 82; International Tel. & Tel. down ⅛ at 62⅛; Radio down ⅜ at 50⅝; Radio-Keith up ⅜ at 42; United Aircraft down ⅛ at 73½; Warner Brothers ⅝ at 63¼; Western Union down ⅛ at 183¾.

Rails were firm with Atchison up a point at 228; Allegheny up ¼ at 26¾; Union Pacific up ⅞ at 227½; Katy down ⅛ at 56⅜.

General Motors sold up ⅛ at 51¾. Chrysler was down ⅛ at 35⅞; Hudson down ⅛ at 44¼; Electric Auto Lite unchanged at 90¾.

Standard Oil of New Jersey was up ½ at 77¾; Atlantic Refining down ¼ at 42½; Standard California up ¼ at 69½; Johns-Manville up ⅝ at 108; Paramount down ⅛ at 67⅛.

General Motors advanced to a new high on the move at 51½ in the first period.

American Telephone & Telegraph closed at 221, up 2½ points; General Motors was up 1⅛ at 52⅛; Chrysler up 1 at 37; Warner Brothers up ¾ at 63½; New York Central up ⅜ at 177⅜; Electric Power & Light up 1 at 87½; Union Carbide up 1 at 80¾; J. I. Case up 2¼ at 309¼; Consolidated Gas of New York up 1⅞ at 126⅞; Fox Film up ⅛ at 50¼; Atlantic Refining up ½ at 42¼; General Electric up ⅝ at 82⅞.

NEW YORK CURB REVIEW.
By International News Service.
NEW, York, May 24

In a characteristic late hour buying wave, stock leaders on the curb market today were bid up to moderately higher price levels.

The session was marked by extreme dullness in trading activity, with the turnover failing to new low volume for the year.

Outstanding features in an firm utility group included Electric Bond & Share up 1⅛ at 102¼; American Commonwealth B up 2¼ to a new high at 50; and Eastern States Power B up 1½ to 40½. Other issues while hedged fractionally higher included American Superpower, Electric Power & Light warrants and Middle West Utilities.

Cities Service finished approximately unchanged.

South Penn Oil took the lead in a generally firm oil group and was up almost 2 points at 43¼. Other favorites to close higher were Cosden, Ohio, Standard of Indiana and Vacuum.

North and South American Corporation was an outstanding strong spot in an extremely irregular investment trus tgroup running up almost 4 points to 24. Countering this was a break of some 4 points in Goldman Sachs sending to it to a new low for the year at 30½.

Great Lakes Dredging was the speculative headlight in the industrial section, soaring 15 points to a new high at 278. In the lower priced division Detroit Aircraft was heavily bought, advancing a point within reach of its high to 7¾.

The curb market ruled irregularly lower at the opening today. Cities Service was unchanged at 35. Electric Bond & Share was off ⅝ at 100⅝. Niagara Hudson was ⅛ lower at 22⅝ on a block of 6,000 shares. Associated Gas & Electric A was off ⅛ at 39⅝, American Superpower up ⅛ at 33⅜, United Light & Power off ⅛ at 52½, Fox Theatres up ⅛ at 13¼, Goldman Sachs off ⅛ at 34⅛, Trans-America off ⅛ at 43⅛, Pennroad off ⅛ at 12⅞, Standard Oil of Indiana unchanged at 54½, and Shenandoah off ⅛ at 14⅝.

NEW YORK BOND REVIEW.
By International News Service.

Bond prices were firm in a dull and inactive week-end market. Trading in the first hour was only about 50 per cent of normal, and in this period only one of the seven active Liberty bonds appeared on the tape.

A few of the unconverted American Tel & Tel. 4½ per cents sold today between 168½ and 169, unchanged from yesterday's close. These bonds retain the conversion privilege, but do not participate in the distribution of new stock. Stockholders of record May 23.

International Tel. & Tel convertible 4½s rose fractionally to 122¼. Philadelphia & Reading Coal 6s sold fractionally higher and the Baltimore & Ohio 4½s and Atchison 4½s duplicated the moderate rise of their respective stocks.

Liberty fourth 4¼s sold at 102.8 and treasury 4¼s at 112.10.

YANKEES BEATEN BY BRITISH PROS

Diegel and Smith Bow to Englishmen In Pair Links Duels.

LONDON, May 24—(U. P.)—Two of America's greatest professional golfers—Leo Diegel, three-time winner of the professional golfers' championship, and Horton Smith, youthful winter golfing sensation met defeat today in matches with British stars.

Diegel was defeated three and two by Abe Mitchell in the second of a series of 36-hole matches for the unofficial world professional championship. Diegel had defeated Mitchell, one up, in a previous match at Moor Park. Today's match was played on the Birmingham links.

Cotton Downs Horton.

Henry Cotton, youngest British professional star, beat Smith, four and three, in a 36-hole match at Coulstdon Court, Surrey. The victory was Cotton's second over Smith, whom he defeated six and five, in a match played on the same links a year ago. The cards:

Mitchell's Game Excellent.

Smith outdrove Cotton throughout their match, but was weak in his short game and was unable to find the pace of the greens, which were slow after an early rain.

Mitchell played excellent golf to defeat Diegel. His game was unaffected by the rain, which fell throughout almost the entire match. He putted beautifully and his drives were invariably long and straight.

Diegel rallied sensationally on the incoming round in the afternoon, after turning five down, and won four successive holes. Faced with an opportunity to square the match on the thirty-second, he dropped his drive into a bunker and was unable to recover, giving Mitchell a two-hole lead.

The thirty-third hole was halved with birdie threes and Mitchell laid an approach shot dead to the pin on the thirty-fourth green to win the hole and match.

SOONERS ANNEX TENNIS HONORS

Oklahomans Win Singles and Doubles In Net Competition.

The Big Six conference tennis championships were monopolized by University of Oklahoma raequeteers this season. During the spring campaign, the Sooners annexed the team title. The individual tournament, which closed Saturday on the Lincoln Tennis club courts, found the Oklahomans in possession of both doubles and singles honors.

Lowe Runkle and Harold Thurman, Oklahoma entries, swept through the singles competition Friday afternoon and Saturday announced their decision to pass up a finals match and "halve" the championship honor, dividing the medal.

Thurman and Runkle.

The Thurman-Runkle combination won the doubles title by defeating O'Leary and Prosser of Kansas in the final match. Oklahoma won 6-2, 8-10, 6-3, 6-2. The Sooners won as the result of well-placed drives from the baseline which drove the Jayhawkers away from the net.

The feature match of the Saturday card was the Kansas-Nbraska match in the mornin~ Sherman and Cameron, the Nebraska duo, lost a tough five-set match, after starting off with a two-love set advantage.

The deciding set went 16 games, Cameron having the misfortune to break his racquet when the games were deuce in the final set. During the final set Nebraska was twice within two points of victory but was unable to press the advantage for the winning points. Oklahoma had little trouble with Silverwood and Bredehoft of the Kansas Aggies in a first round match. The doubles results:

Doubles Results.

Preliminary round — Prosser-O'Leary, Kansas, won from Robbins-McMurphy, Iowa State, 7-5, 6-2.

Semi-finals — Prosser - O'Leary, Kansas, won from Sherman-Cameron, Nebraska, 4-6, 7-9, 6-1, 6-3, 9-7; Thurman-Runkle, Oklahoma, won from Silverwood - Bredehoft, Kansas Aggies, 6-1, 7-5, 6-1.

Finals—Runkle-Thurman, Oklahoma, won from Prosser-O'Leary, Kansas, 6-2, 8-10, 6-3, 6-2.

Meyer Leads Field In Speedway Trials

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 24—(I. N. S.)—Lou Meyer, Los Angeles speedway champion, scored the fastest time today in qualifying trials for the annual 500-mile Memorial day motor classic here when he attained an average speed of 111.29 miles per hour.

Meyer, with Riley Brett, also of Los Angeles, as his mechanic, negotiated the 10-mile trial distance (four laps of 2½ miles) in 5:23:48 minutes. He drove a Sampson special.

Ernie Triplett, also of Los Angeles, who had a narrow escape from death yesterday when his Culberson Special, traveling at a 100-mile clip, skidded into the retaining wall, qualified today with an average of 105.618 miles per hour. Seventeen additional drivers qualified.

Twenty-three thousand spectators, a record gate, saw today's trials. The trials will be resumed at 1 p. m. Sunday, when Pete De Paola will try to qualify with his Duesenburg Special.

Max Looks Bad In Training Workout

ENDICOTT, N. Y., May 24 — (U. P.)—Max Schmeling resumed boxing today, after a two-day layoff, and worked seven rounds with Don Petrin, Stanley Poseda, George Neron and Jack Demave. Schmeling was slow and lethargic and made, a poor showing.

Sharkey At Top Speed.

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., May 24—(U. P.)—Jack Sharkey bcxed impressively in a four-round workout today against Johnny Grosso, Paul Cavalier and King Solomon.

Sharkey tore after his mates, staggering them several times with hard right hand drives. He was effective with his left hand and his defensive tactics were perfected to the stage where his mates were unable to land a single clean punch.

Door Open to Women In Olympic Games

BERLIN, May 24—(UP)—Peaceful settlement of the controversy over the participation of women in track and field events at the 1932 Olympic games in Los Angeles was predicted today by Gustavus T. Kirby of New York, members of the United States delegation to the International Athletic Federation and the Olympic congress.

"Conversations with members of the Olympic committee have convinced me that it will not be necessary to reconvene the international federation, because I am certain the Olympic congress will vote to admit women to all sports in which they have hitherto competed," said Kirby.

The International Federation, on motion of Kirby, voted to support participation of women athletes in the Olympic games and threatened to withdraw male athletes from the games if women were barred.

Truck Takes Fire; Race Horse Burns

KANSAS CITY, May 24—(I. N. S.)—Trapped in a burning automobile truck, one race horse was burne dto death and two others burned severely here today.

Wild Irish Rose, prize made of the C. H. Holden stables at Mound Valley, Kas., died of burns received in the flames.

Lena G., owned by G. G. Smith, Los Angeles, and Mary D., owned by N. L. Pawnell, Parsons, Kas., were rescued from the flaming truck.

The three horses were being taken from Parsons, Kas., to Riverside race track, near here, for the spring meet, which opens May 30.

A spark from the truck exhaust is believed to have reached straw bedded in the truck body and caused the fire.

Fairmount Classic To Gallant Knight

COLLINSVILLE, Ill., May 24—(UP)—Audley Farm's Gallant Knight, runner up to Gallant Fox in the Kentucky Derby, won the fifth renewal of the $15,000 added Fairmount Derby, feature attraction at Fairmount Park today.

J. A. Best's Reveil's Boy was second with Longus third and Sydney fourth in a crack field of eight three-year-olds. George W. Foreman's Ned O., which finished behind Gallant Knight in the Churchill Downs classic, was away back among the also rans.

Jockey Schutte took Gallant Knight into the lead at the start and was never headed, winning by five lengths in the excellent time of 2:04 for the mile and a quarter. The time was only three-fifths of a second slower than the established track record.

Jack High Hangs Up New Mark For Mile

BELMONT PARK, N. Y., May 24—(U. P.)—Jack High, four-year-old son of John P. Grier, carrying the silks of George D. Widener, set a new American track record for a mile when he raced that distance in 1:35 to win the rich Metropolitan Handicap at Belmont track today. His time was two-fifths of a second better than the record established by Cherry Pie at the same track in 1923.

Cribbage Tournament Held at Shrine Club

The Fifteen and Eight club won the Lincoln cribbage tournament held at the Lincoln Shrine club Friday evening. The Fifteen and Eight club scored 14,590 points. The Woodcrest club counted 14,530 points, the Peggers club scored 14,468 points and the South Lincoln club was fourth with 14,165 points.

Members of the winning team were E. Atkinson, L. W. Chase, C. A. Herman, Harold J. Sowles, C. A. Blanchard, J. B. Fox, Roscoe Klein and William Voss.

Frank Beers of the Woodcrest club had the high individual score with 1,889; Guy Hunt of the Peggers was second with 1,876. Dave Cravens of the South Lincoln club was low with 1,550.

L. W. Chase had a perfect score in the first round and C. A. Herman had a perfect score in the second round.

The victory was the second for the Fifteen and Eight club. The trophy cup is awarded to the club winning it three consecutive times.

Doubles Honors To American Women

AUTEUIL, France, May 24 — America, in the persons of Mrs Helen Wills Moody and Miss Elizabeth Ryan, tonight possessed a new tennis championship, and at the same time lamented the unexpected elimination of William T. Tilden and Wilbur Coen at the hands of a thundering team of Frenchmen.

Mrs. Moody and Miss Ryan literally "walked off" with the women's doubles title of the French hard court tennis championships by defeating the former title-holders, Mmes. Matthieu and Barbier, in straight sets, 6-3, 6-1.

Tilden and Coen passed out of the doubles tournament in the quarter-finals, going down to bitter defeat before the crashing game of Jean Borotra and De Buzelet. The score was 6-2, 8-10, 5-7, 6-3, 7-5.

SOONERS REPEAT ON CYCLONE BALL CLUB

AMES, Ia., May 24—(U. P.)—University of Oklahoma baseball players this afternoon made it two straight over the Iowa State college nine by winning a 9-4 game.

Gustafson, Cyclone mound ace, was touched for 11 hits while his team mates committed five errors. Score:

Oklahoma 3 1 0 1 0 0 3 0 1—9 11 1
Iowa State 2 0 1 0 0 0 0 1 0—4 8 5

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

THREE BROTHERS EACH DRIVE AND ENDORSE VIKING

Families are not generally noted for unanimity of opinions, particularly in automobiles, which fact places the purchase of three Viking Eights by three brothers in the class of news.

The brothers are E. M., E. B., and B. F. Mitchell, of Ventura, Cal. They are engaged in the realty and investment business in Southern California, and their activities require daily use of their automobiles. The first Viking Eight purchased by one of the brothers was taken on a 1,000 mile test trip and the results obtained convinced the trio.

After owning the three Vikings for several months and experiencing their performance characteristics on the fine highways and steep mountain grades of California, the three brothers wrote the Oldsmobile-Viking dealer who had sold them the Vikings, a most laudatory letter. It quoted facts and figures as to their experiences and declared "We can honestly and truthfully say that the Vikings out-perform any make car we ever used in like service and the longer we use them the better satisfied we are. They are very economical from every angle."

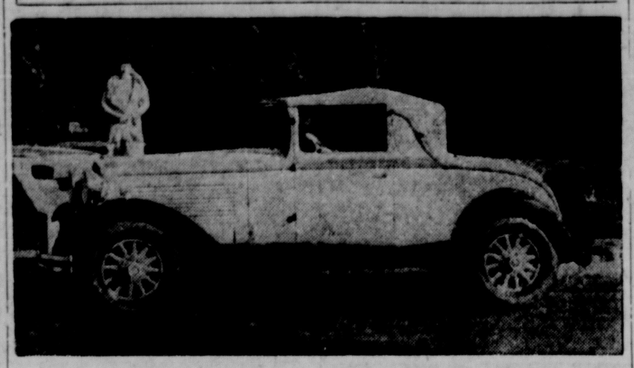

DE SOTO MAKING FIRST CHANGE IN ORIGINAL DESIGN

A finer De Soto Six, with a bigger engine and more power, smarter styling, and a body constructed on entirely new principles, is presented by the De Soto Motor corporation, a division of Chrysler Motors.

The models represent the first major change in the original design of this famous car. For twenty-two months it enjoyed continuous manufacture without alteration, a noteworthy achievement for the original model of any car, and set a new first -year sales record for the industry.

Among other noteworthy features are a heavier counterweighted crankshaft; rubber-cushioned engine mountings; hydraulic internal expanding, self-equalizing four-wheel brakes; manual starter control operating on steel ring gear on flywheel; chain driven camshaft; mechanically driven fuel pump instead of vacuum tank gasoline feed; a new-type larger carburetor, and metric spark plugs, providing better cooling for each plug. Tapered roller bearings are used on the rear axle shaft, drive pinion, differential and front wheels.

New Marmon Announced

The convertible coupe model of the new Marmon Eight-69, which was recently introduced, is shown above. In common with the three other straight eight models, it will be sold under a one-year guarantee.

BUICK NUMBERING CODE AND DEVICES FRUSTRATE THEFTS

A Buick automobile can never lose its identity. Over fifteen years ago, Buick created a secret identification code which has been widely used and indorsed by insurance companies and police departments all over the country.

Moreover, the Buick is one of the most difficult cars on the street for anyone but the owner to drive away. The door lock is so contrived that if an attempt is made to force the locked door open, a small pin in the handle shears off, making further attempts to force the door absolutely futile. But should the door be left unlocked, the combination lock on the steering column presents insuperable difficulties without the owner's key it locks both the ignition and the steering assembly so that it is impossible to turn the front wheels.

But even with these secure mechanical protections Buick owners have the final safe guard of the Buick identification system. This system is made up of a code of numbers located on various parts of the car.

CHRYSLER AGENTS INCREASE BY 825 SINCE JANUARY 1

The Chrysler Sales corporation has added 825 new dealers to its lists since the first of the year. More than 500 of these have joined Chrysler since the introduction of the new low-priced six announced in March. Sales outlets for Chrysler cars now total 3,339, including 193 distributors, with the remainder representing dealers and associates.

"During the last six months, all automobile dealers have realized that they must extend their activities, place their business on a more efficient basis and seek improved relations with the manufacturer," said J. W. Frazer, general sales manager of the Chrysler Sales corporation. "They are naturally inclined to manufacturers whose products cover a wide price range and are in such demand to assure a volume of sales.

"That retail sales of Chrysler cars have justified this dealer interest is indicated by the fact that April factory shipments showed a 12 per cent increase over March of this year, and a gain of 3 per cent over April 1929. Cars in dealers' hands are considerably under the corresponding period of last year."

Auto Notes

More gas is consumed to keep the car running at a 60-mile-an-hour clip than at an even speed.

The efficiency of the best gasoline is impaired if the gas filter is permitted to become clogged.

A spark plug should be changed to one of hotter type if sooting of the insulator is habitual.

The durability of an under-inflated tire is far less than that of one properly inflated. Soft tires become hot at any speed.

NASH SALES FORCE ADDS 109 DEALERS IN 59 DAY PERIOD

Increasing fame and popularity of the Nash Twin-Ignition Eights, twin-ignition sixes and single sixes, has resulted in a steady and notable increase in the company's spread sales organization this spring.

C. H. Bliss, sales manager of the Nash Motors company, announced today that 109 new dealer organizations, approximately two new establishments a day, have joined the Nash sales ranks in the fifty-nine days prior to April 28.

"Steadily the size of Nash selling organization is increasing," he said. "On February 25, we announced 204 new dealer contracts signed since the introduction of the new "400" models for 1930 in October. Now we have 313 new organizations handling the Nash line which were not Nash dealers prior to October 1.

"The majority of these new organizations have been handling other makes of cars, and it is gratifying to know that Nash policies of fairness, sound business principles and the manufacture of merchandise outstanding in its price class, caused these new merchandisers to associate themselves with us."

HUDSON AND ESSEX WINNERS NINE-DAY FRENCH CONTESTS

A Hudson Great Eight roadster and a New Essex Challenger roadster were awarded highest honors recently at the nine-day Tour de France, most celebrated of the annual automobile tests staged on the continent.

The Hudson roadster won the gold medal and the coveted Ansaldo trophy, giving the Hudson Motor Car company possession for the second year in succession. In addition to these first prizes, the Hudson and Essex also won the Dunlop and Spido cups offered the two leading cars manufactured by the same company.

The Tour de France consists of a nine day run of approximately 310 miles per day, with intermediate days in the various French provinces devoted to speed contests, hill climbs, starts with cold motors, brake tests, acceleration tests and other events designed to bring out the full qualities of the cars. The gold medal is awarded the car finishing all of these tests with the fewest penalizations.

This year 87 cars from every country started the long grind, the largest number of entries in the long history of the race.

A light rattle is heard if a piston ring happens to break or become loose. The noise will keep up steadily, repeating about twice to every revolution of the engine.

Motors and Their Care

Tire Tips.

Have brakes equalized. Unequalized brakes cause tread wear.

Never let any of the tires stand in oil. It is injurious to the rubber.

Never run a tire when it is soft or deflated. To do so spells trouble.

Do not start and stop too quickly. This is a frequent cause of excessive tire wear.

Learn the proper amount of air for tires and always keep them properly inflated.

Always keep wheels in line. Having wheels out of line is a cause of rapid tread wear.

Inspect tires for nails, bits of glass and sharp metal. This will give more mileage.

Be sure that tires set and fit correctly. Rims, flaps and tubes are made for each size of tire. Be sure to use the right size.

Never overload a tire or use an undersized tire. Tires are built to carry specific loads. Overloads and undersized tires reduce mileage.

Lighting Lore.

The first step in perfect illumination of a car is to see that the headlights are in focus. Adjustments can be made by simply placing the car with normal passenger load on a level surface, with headlamps located about 25 feet from garage door or light colored wall. A horizontal line should be drawn on this surface at the height of the lamp centers A center point should be located on this line by sighting through the center of the rear window of the car in line with the radiator cap. Equidistant from the center point two vertical lines should be drawn at a distance from each other equal to the distance between the centers of the headlamps. These two lines will be directly ahead of and in line with the respective headlamps. The best driving light beam is obtained when there is a high intensity near the top of the beam. This is accomplished by turning the adjusting screw on many lamps, at the rear of the lamp. When properly adjusted, the light will be intense at the top and shallow in height as well as quite wide spread. By loosening a single nut which fastens the lamp in its bracket the light beam can generally be adjusted in both a vertical and horizontal direction. The lights can be adjusted one at a time by covering them alternately.

A Quick Get-Away.

To make the quickest get-away, start in low, shift to second as soon as the car is moving steadily, accelerate a bit and shift quickly to high—all without letting go of the gear-shift lever.

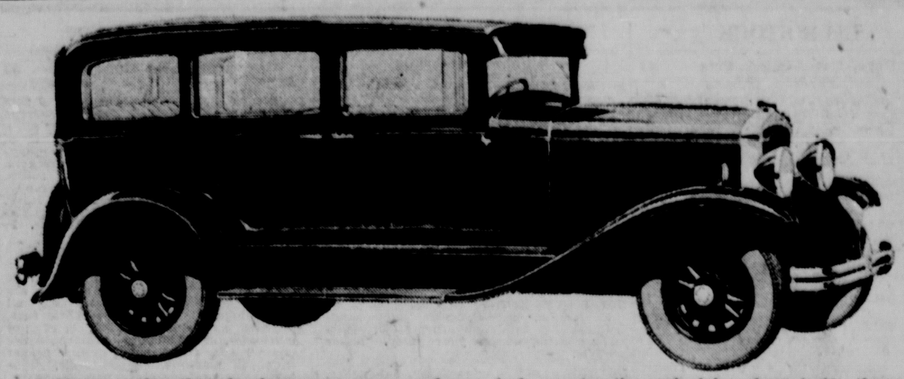

Importance of Good Brakes.

Two things are necessary to keep good brakes on the car: First, to have the proper type of lining according to the particular brake hook-up, which might call for low friction lining, high friction lining, hard woven lining or soft woven liing, and the second is to have it properly applied and in adjustment.

Gear noise which varies in intensity, with a regular rhythm, corresponding to the rate of a gear's rotation, indicates that a shaft is running out of true.

The life of a car is shortened by ignoring the instruments on the dashboard.

More Power Features New De Soto Six

A bigger engine that develops more power and new body construction principles characterize the new De Soto Six. The four-door sedan shown above is one of the six models of this first departure from the original design of the car, introduced twenty-two months ago.

THOROUGHLY DEPENDABLE
AS A GOOD FRIEND SHOULD BE

It is easy to understand why the men and women who drive Oldsmobiles speak of their cars as they would speak of a good friend. For these men and women have found in Oldsmobile the first requisite of friendship. They have found character—and the kind of character that carries with it an unfailing capacity to serve long and well.

To these owners, Oldsmobile has proved itself always dependable . . . always alert, faithful, and eager to go.

They know from long experience that Oldsmobile is an every-day, all-weather friend . . . that it is deserving of their confidence and worthy of their trust.

Too, these men and women know exactly why their Oldsmobiles serve so well. They know that Oldsmobile's design is right, achieved by the combined talents of Oldsmobile and General Motors engineers. They know that its beautiful Body by Fisher is staunch in every respect. They know that the car has been tested and proved on the General Motors Proving Ground. Most important of all, they know that Oldsmobile is pledged to fine car standards and built to do all things well.

Oldsmobile is thoroughbred. You can rely upon it to serve you capably and honestly, asking little in return. It will prove itself to you, in the way it is proving itself to thousands of owners—thoroughly dependable, as a good friend should be.

Why the State of California Chose HUDSON'S Great 8

Its 100% Perfect Score

Hudson's Great Eight, with 100% score, overwhelmed all competition in tests conducted in the purchase of cars for the department of Highway Control of the State of California.

Nearly all makes submitted bids. Eight cars, including Hudson, were chosen for these exhaustive tests—in Speed, Acceleration, Reliability, Stability, Flexibility, Operating Ease, Steering Action, Freedom from Vibration, Shimmying and Freedom from Overheating. The cars tested ranged in list price from $1050 to $1500. Hudson's Great 8, one of the lowest in price, was the only car to finish with a perfect score.

Penalties incurred by others included failure to finish; motor trouble; overheating, shimmying, excessive vibration, shock on steering wheel; jerky performance at low speed after finish; failure to sustain speed; loss of acceleration at high speed and only "fair" brake efficiency. Hudson's Great Eight finished these trying tests without a single criticism.

And against all these well-known and higher-priced cars it received the highest awards by the experts, and was purchased for the Highway Control department.

The experts called special attention to Hudson's "remarkable high sustained speed" and "clean performance", and to the fact that after the tests it showed the lowest speed of any competitor without jerking. Attention was also directed to Hudson's superior acceleration and the fact that at 60 miles an hour "it still had a wallop for acceleration far exceeding any other car tested."

Make These Proofs Yourself. We Will Send a Car To Your Door

Only by riding in or driving Hudson's Great 8 will you appreciate its delightful operation. You are invited to take a trial car and test it for smoothness, speed, acceleration, power, easy handling, comfort and economy. A telephone call will bring Hudson's Great 8 to your door.

Many Interesting Events On Week's Social Calendar

Country Club Begins Series Of Saturday Night Dinner Dances; Plans Formulated For Annual Golf Stag Dinner Monday, and Bridge Affair Thursday.

BY FAR the most interesting event of the social whirl this week will be the garden wedding which is to be solemnized next Saturday, but in the meanwhile, things are not exactly at a stand still, for scattered throughout the calendar are a number of affairs, including luncheons and dinners and a few picnics.

The Patriarchs club has arranged a garden supper to be held Monday evening in the garden of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Woods, 2745 Lake street. Sixty will attend, and a buffet supper will be served. An informal evening will follow.

Early Summer Brides Plan Brilliant Church Weddings

Miss Mary Schneider to Wed At Late Afternoon June 1 Ceremony, Before 150 Guests. Three Hundred To Witness Nuptials of Miss Elizabeth McPherson, Saturday Evening. Receptions Follow.

After a quiet spring in bridal circles, the group of early summer marriages many of which will take place this week, is exceptionally interesting.

At a late afternoon service June 1, Miss Mary Schneider will become the bride of Dr. E. A. Good of Norfolk, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Good of Lexington. One hundred and fifty guests have been inivited to the ceremony which will be performed by Rev. H. B. Rhodes at the Trinity Methodist church at 4 o'clock. Miss Schneider has chosen for her wedding date, the twenty-ninth wedding anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schneider.

The processional is to be played by Mrs. R. E. Moseman of Lyons, and Mrs. Carl Ahl will sing "At Dawning," and "I Love You Truly." Miss Amelia Schneider, will be her sister's maid of honor, and Mrs. Saunders Schneider will be matron of honor. The two bridesmaids will be Mrs. Frank Moeller and Miss Marguerite Hatch.

Flowers will be scattered in the bridal path by Helen Kaiser, and the pages will be Norman Roeder and Jack Brunbaugh. Saunders Schneider will be the best man and Dr. H. V. Ziegenbein will be the groomsman. Ushers will be Kenneth Gaston and Herbert Thompson of Ogallala, and Millard Prewitt and Frank German.

A reception will be held at the church after the ceremony. Mrs. K. C. Leonard and Mrs. Gene Cox have charge of the dining room serving and those assisting will be Miss Leona Williams, Miss Roberta Henrikson, Miss Mary Kahm, Miss Lula Hatch, Miss Rose Kaiser, and Miss Mary Rerg. The guest book will be kept by Miss Melvina Dissmeyer. A trip will be taken by Dr. Good and his bride and they will live at Norfolk.

Business Women's Clubs Of Central District Meet

Dorris Braden Elected President of Omaha Chapter. Fremont Celebrates Annual Banquet, and Fairbury and Madison Groups Honor Mothers at Dinners.

About fifty women attended the central district conference of the Nebraska Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs at Grand Island last Sunday. In this district art clubs from North Platte, Hastings, Clay Center, Aurora, Superior and Grand Island. Guests were also present from Columbus and Norfolk

Miss Angeline Wood of Hastings, vice president of the state federation, presided at the afternoon session. Miss Ruth Shaw, president of the Grand Island club, welcomed the guests.

At a round table discussion, ideas were exchanged for bolstering the club budgets. This discussion was lead by Miss Marguerite Meyer of Grand Island. Novel ideas for club programs were presented by Miss Gladys Anthony.

Elsie Griffith Speaks.

Miss Elsie Griffith, president of the Nebraska federation, addressed the conference on "Problems of Local Clubs." She stated that Business and Professional Women's clubs should be as big a factor in a community as the men's clubs are. She stressed the fact that each club should accomplish at least one big project each year. Miss Griffith also outlined plans for the regional conference to be held in Manitou, Colo. June 16, 17 and 18.

At the close of the afternoon's program, tea was served, Miss Marie Overturf pouring. A special committee composed of Ruth Shaw, Marguerite Meyer, Clara Heusner, Addie Heusner, Matilda Klapproth and Marie Overturf had charge of all arrangements.

A. Gowen. The new officers will be installed on June 3.

Fremont Holds Annual Banquet.

Seventy-five members of the Fremont Business and Professional Women's club met for their annual banquet in their club rooms Monday evening. The rooms were decorated with spring flowers with the color scheme of lavender and pink.

"The Golden Key" was sung by Ruth Bross, accompanied at the piano by Ruth Wintersteen. The subject of the evening, "The Symphony Orchestra," was directed by Mildred Cattern, the toastmistress. The director spoke of the harmony of each instrument in analogy to club life.

The orchestra was composed of: Mildred Cattern, director; piano, Maude Murrell; cornet, Mrs. Frances Anderson; violin, Dr. Myrtle Bone; violin selections, Goldie Wendt, accompanied by Esther Weitkamp; Bess Fitl, bass viol, Clarabelle McDermand harp, Leah William and Grace Notes symphony. Elsie Griffith of Columbus, state president of the Federation of Business & Professional Women's clubs, installed the new club officers at the close of the program.

Clay Center Club Entertained.

All members of the Business and Professional Women's club of Clay Center were invited to spend Tuesday evening at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Case, who live southeast of Sutton.

The evening was spent playing bridge, and delightful refreshments were served. Mrs. Case before her marriage in February, was a member of the Business Professional Women's club of Clay Center.

Mothers Honored at Fairbury.

The annual banquet which is tendered by the Fairbury Axis club girls to their mothers took place Thursday evening at the Mary-Etta hotel. Thirty-five were seated at one long table, centered by a basket of sweetpeas. Candles and bowls of sweetpeas completed the decorations and a three course dinner was served. The program following consisted of a group of vocal solos by Miss Dorine Gardner and saxophone solos by Miss Phyliss Grubb. An illustrated talk was given by Miss Marjorie Ann Shanafelt, curator at the University of Nebraska. The Miss Gertrude Lynch, president, lecture was "On the Pantry Shelf." presided informally at the banquet. Each mother guest was presented with a small bouquet of sweetpeas.

Madison Club Fetes Mothers.

Covers were laid for eighty-four at the annual Mother and Daughter banquet held at the Methodist church in Madisen Monday evening.

Mrs. E. R. Martin gave a toast to "Mothers," and Mrs. E. O. Wilson responded with a toast to "A Daughter."

The last number on the program was a song, "The Old Fashioned Garden," sung by girls dressed in fashions of long ago. The sextette was composed of Miss Della Remender, Irene Smith, Regina Costello, Leona Fuhrman, Mrs. Merle Neely and Mrs. Laurence Ruth.

Heads Sorority

—Van Dyke Studio.

Miss Ruth Amen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Amen, is the newly elected president of the Lincoln chapter of Sigma Eta Chi, national society for Congregational church girls. Miss Amen will attend the national convention of the sorority at Ann Arbor, Mich., in June.

Business Women at Banquet

New Officers Are Installed By Elsie Griffiths of Columbus, State President.

The annual banquet of the Lincoln Business and Professional Women's club, was held in the Garden room of the Lincoln hotel, May 22. Bowls of roses and peonies were used on the tables and throughout the room.

New and retiring officers were seated at one large table. A hostess was at each of several small tables. Mrs. Marguerite Corby presided.

Hostesses at the small tables were Emma Hedges, Esther Craven, Mary Jeffrey, Dr. Mary JoDon, Bertha Hugg and Florence Hamm. Favors were butterflies in rainbow colors, to match the nutcups.

The junior high and grade school "Play Day" on Saturday was very well attended and the girls thoroughly enjoyed playing with girls from other schools in the morning. In the afternoon the song contest was held. Miss Frances Ash served as the judge.

Present Indian Plan.

The hobby groups of Irving Junior High Girl Reserves provided the closing entertainment for the afternoon. They gave "The Arrow Maker's Daughter," a play based upon "Hiawatha," by Longfellow. Miss Alice Quigle, director of the drama group at Irving junior high was the director of the play. Miss Ruth E. Pratt of the physical education department of the Y. W. C. A. coached the dance and Miss Ruth Eby and her handcraft group were responsible for the programs. The music group gave the songs which interspersed the play.

The following girls took the leading parts in the pageant: Florence Marie Doggett, the reader; Hiawatha as a man, Loretta Leach, as a little boy, Mary Jane Williams; Iagoo, Dorothy Eckhard; Nokomis, Betty Jane Lemon; Minnehaha, Caroline Hornbecker; The Arrow Maker, Mary Jane Butler; famine, Roma Sue Pickering; fever, Norane Royer; the priest, Dorothy Bone; the robin, Ilene Lovell; the squirrel, Margaret Johnson; the bluejay, Helen Clark; the rabbit, Marion Hoppert. The following girls took the parts of Indian maidens: Roberta Albers, Elizabeth Jones, Vera Louise Stephens, Frances May Edwards, Dorothy Scott and Grace Thomas.

The following girls have been elected as the officers for the Havelock Girl Reserves for the coming year: President, Marcella Laux; vice president, Ruth Shankland; secretary, Lucille Larsen; treasurer, Helen Ewing; finance chairman, Ruth Gillispie; publicity chairman,

CAMPUS LIFE

A gay weekend of freedom, celebrated with picnics and parties, preceded next weeks cramming for finals in campus circles. Few social affairs are scheduled for next Friday and Saturday but this week a host of dances were given along fraternity row. In spite of uncertain weather several groups planned elaborate lawn parties.

The attractions of the Pi Kappa Phi house dance Saturday evening were supplemented by a lawn party outside. Colored lights gave the chapter house and lawn a festive appearance. Fifty couples attended the dance which was chaperoned by Dean and Mrs. J. E. LeRossignol, and Mr. and Mrs. Gayle C. Walker.

Give Party in Omaha.

The Betas honored a number of rushees in Omaha Friday evening with a stag dinner at the University club there. Covers were arranged for about forty and the evening was spent informally. Omaha alumni made arrangements for the party.

Camp Crete Preparing For Season

From Five To Eight Hundred Girls Expected To Attend Fourteenth Year Outing On Blue River.

Camp Crete, which was at its beginning a purely experimental idea, has, after thirteen years of successful management, proved to many Nebraska mothers and fathers that camp experience is as important to their daughters' educational equipment as school or college. Every year from five to eight hundred Nebraska girls gather at Horky's park on the Blue river near Crete for a week of organized camping. The camp is now the largest of its kind in the world.

Fifty junior and senior councillors are engaged to give instruction in swimming, boating, canoeing, archery, tennis, clogging, first aid, nature lore, camp craft, clay modeling, basketry, silver work, dramatics and various kinds of hand crafts. The councillors are girls from the University of Nebraska and many of them have in the past been campers in this camp in which they are now councillors. Camp Crete is, in fact, a real state camp, over fifty towns being represented every year, and less than a fifth of which attend the camp two consecutive years.

Concrete Swimming Pool.

A fine concrete swimming pool takes the place of the "old mud hole," and thirty-five boats, several canoes, motor boats, and launches are a grateful substitute for the eight flat bottomed boats of former days. All meetings and programs are held in a large pavillion, which boasts of a stage, and an efficient if decrepit piano.

Mrs. F. F. Teal will be director of the camp. Other councillors will be Mrs. C. O. Bruce, who will have charge of campfire technique, nature and wood craft; Mrs. Noel Wallace of Omaha, dramatics supervision, assisted by Mrs. Frank Warner of Norfolk; Mrs. Phil Teal and Margaret Gardner of Waco; Mrs. Warren Ogden, who will be head councillor and swimming instructor, assisted by Dorothy Weaver, Betty Walquist of Hastings, and Jean Rathburn; and Mrs. Fred Wager of Beatrice, who will be assisted as handcraft councillor by Betty Everett and Ruth Ridnour.

A'Louise Trester will be in charge of the handicraft store, and Virginia Pollard of Nehawka will supervise recreation and games, assisted by Dorothy Charleson and Hortense Henderson of Superior. Virginia Irons, assisted by Merna Dainton of Dorchester, will take charge of the commissary. Mildred Johnson of Holdrege will have charge of the office mail and be reporter.

Jerry Baker will be patrol guard. William Irons, Slayton Pierce, and Jack Groat of Norfolk will be life guards.

Orchesis Program Wednesday

Annual Spring Dance Drama Scheduled In Evening At Grant Memorial Hall.

The University of Nebraska will hold the annual dance drama, presented by Orchesis, honorary dancing group for women, Wednesday at 8:15 o'clock in Grant Memorial hall. The group gives two programs each year, one, a traditional Christmas program, and the second, the spring program. The dance drama has always been a part of Ivy day festivities, but because of the early date set for Ivy Day this year, it could not be given at that time.

The two main numbers on the program are Grieg's sonata, in which the dancers carry out in color and motion the three movements. The second is a dramatic presentation of the problem of power in modern science, and its varied effects on man's physical, mental and spiritual natures.

Members of Orchesis participat-

Miss Eldora Hofferber will be the honoree at the party which her mother, Mrs. J. C. Hofferber, is giving Thursday evening at their home, 1124 South Seventh street. Miscellaneous presents will be given to the bride-to-be, and the twenty guests will devote the evening to bridge. Supper will be served at small tables with roses and sweet peas for decorations.

An Afternoon Party.

In courtesy to Miss Florence Bennett, Mrs. Sol Eckley will give an afternoon party on Monday at her home, 1029 E street, for twenty. A feature of the afternoon will be a miscellaneous shower for the bride-to-be, and the time will be spent informally. Garden flowers will appoint the rooms and a luncheon will be served.

Miss Carver Honored.

Miss Gertrude Carver was honored at the dinner which Mrs. George Lusher gave at the Grand hotel Wednesday evening. Gold colored tapers in green holders and iris and peonies in a low bowl were the table appointments, and tiny cupids were the favors. Kitchen gifts in yellow and green were given to the bride-to-be by the thirty guests. Bridge and dancing occupied the time after dinner.

Compliments Miss Dresselhaus.

Complimentary to Miss Opal Dresselhaus, Mrs. Phil Hofmann of Plattsmouth, will give a party Wednesday evening at the Dresselhaus home, 5003 Calvert street, for twenty-five. The affair will be a shower for the bride-to-be and a color scheme of orchid and green will be carried out.

Cotner Notes

Mrs. Minnie G. Himes, '17, Humboldt, presented a silk American flag for the chapel at the chapel exercises Tuesday.

Mrs. Bernice Weekly Marvel, Lincoln, has composed the lyric and music of a new college song, "Cotner, Our College Queen," which she sang and dedicated at chapel Tuesday.

The Misses Helen Arnold, '31, Downs, Kas.; Elaine Nicholas, '32, Central City; Vera Moxham, '32, Wymore; Frieda Throne, '32, Chester, members of the advanced harmony class taught by Miss Hilda E. Chowins, presented in chapel Tuesday original musical compositions. These were done as a class project in which the score or setting was written for some stanza or poem.

Crete Seniors, Juniors, Build Castles in Spain

CRETE, Neb., May 24—The junior senior banquet was held Saturday evening in a delightful old Spanish garden which had been arranged in the parlors of the First Congregational church by the members of the junior class and their sponsor, Glenn Gillaspie. Flowers of many hues trailed over the quaint garden walls while moss hung suspended from the branches above.

The Doane College Troubadors, Arlington Brugh, Gearhart Weibe and Russell Gibson, in gay Spanish dress, played favorite Spanish melodies during the dinner hour. Each table was centered with a picturesque castle and gay with place cards of Spanish dancing girls, menus concealed by red roses and miniature tambourines, which were given as favors.

Twelve of the under classmen in Spanish costume added much to the reality of the scene as they served the 142 junior, seniors and members of the faculty. Miss Jean Cassell, president of the junior class acted as toastmistress.

The theme of the evening's toasts was "Building Castles in Spain." Garfield Hawlik, president of the senior class, spoke on "The Architect." Helen Bayer discussed "Raw materials," Philip Collett, "Polished Stones"; Velda Brown, "Builders," and Mrs. Lucy M. Sprague, "Shadow or Substance." Millard Taylor rendered several violin selections, while a comedy, "The Spanish Opera," directed by Miss Dorothy Garrett, concluded the program.

Glee Club Entertains.

The Cretonians, Crete business men's glee club under the direction of Prof. George Aller, entertained the members of the Kiwanis club of Beatrice and their wives and guests at a party at the pavilion at Tuxedo park Tuesday evening. Cord Aller, brother of the Cretonian director, directs the Beatrice organization. Musical numbers were given by both clubs and by their quartets and special numbers were given by Miss Lois Ruth Lefferdink, accompanied by Miss Cecilia Marek ,she playing her prize winning violin selections. Lumir Mica rendered two tenor solos and Rev. Adolph Schrein a zither solo. Refreshments concluded the evening's program. About 125 were in attendance, about sixty of them being from Beatrice.

Boys and Girls Outing.

On Wednesday the Crete Woman's club entertained the girls of the city, while the boys were the guests of the Rotary club at an out door party of games and sports at Tuxedo park. The kite races were postponed because of the severe wind. The miniature train afforded much amusement for the boys and girls, and a delicious picnic supper was served at six to one of the largest crowds ever present at this annual play day.

Will Build Camp.

The Campfire sponsor board members, their wives, husbands and guests, enjoyed dinner at the Cosmopolitan hotel last Saturday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson of Des Moines, were honored guests, she being the Campfire executive of that city, while Mr. Nelson is physical director of the city schools. Supt. C. H. Velte, Pres. Edward B. Dean, B. G. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Kettering, Jacob Sack and Rev. Harold Cooper appeared on the program. Plans were made to begin work on a new Boy Scout and Campfire girls camp ,to be located about three miles southeast of Crete. The first unit will consist of a fully equipped kitchen, with a screened dining room, which will serve temporarily as a recreation center. A few sleeping cabins will also be constructed and a well will be dug. Much of the labor will be donated. The Crete community club has donated $300 for the project, the Axis club gave $37.50, and the American Legion contributel $50.

Crete Social Clubs.

Mrs. John Kabley used a color scheme of pink, lavender and white, when she entertained the members of the M. O. club, at a six-thirty diner party Thursday. Pink peonies, lavender iris, and white orange blossoms formed an attdactive centerpiece for the table arranged for ten. The after dinner hours were spent socially and with needlework.

Mrs. M. W. Eggert was hostess to the members of the BePah club at luncheon on Wednesday. The guests were seated at one table attractice with its orchid floral centerpiece and springtime appointments. At bridge Mrs. M. F. Collins made high club score and Mrs. E. Reed Oakley high guest score. Mrs. John E. Mekota, Mrs. E. Reed Oakley and Mrs. Waldo A. Keitges were club guests.

The members of the Contract Bridge club met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. James G. Miller. High scores were made by Mrs. L. F. Klein. Friday afternoon at a game of bridge. Delicious refreshments were served at five o'clock at the card tables, beautiful with their seasonal appointments. Mrs. Lawrence Brian of Pittsburg, Cal., Mrs. Fred Boekel, jr., Mrs. George Reitfors, Mrs. Charles Picard, Mrs. B. L. Booth, and Mrs. Waldo A. Keitges were guests of the hostess.

Engagement Announced.

Mrs. Wilbur J. Adams entertained at a tea, Tuesday afternoon, in compliment to Miss Florence Folda of Corpus Christi, Tex. Miss Folda, formerly of Crete, announced her engagement and approaching marriage to Carl T. Richardson of Seattle. The event will take place in Seattle on June 3. Miss Folda graduated from Crete high school in '23 and from Doane college in '27. She also studied in the University of Washington at Walla Walla and assisted in the biology department there. Mr. Richardson is a graduate of the University of Washington.

Given Two Showers.

Miss Anita Hunt, one of the brides-to-be, was given a kitchen shower Tuesday evening by Miss Pearl Dennis and Miss Elsie Mooberry at the home of the former. The hours were occupied with the game of hearts, prizes going to Miss Dorothy Kubicek and Miss Marguerite Joy. A midnight supper was served to the twenty guests. Miss Hunt was again honored Friday evening, when Alice Boekel and Miss Bernice Rhea entertained at a linen shower in courtesy to her. Bridge was played at four tables, and a delicious two course luncheon was served at the card tables at a late hour. Bouquets of peonies and iris were the floral decorations used.

Surprise Sponsor.

The high school senior girls delightfully surprised their sponsor, Miss Grace Kinney, last Friday evening, when they gathered at her home to pay her pre-nuptial courtesy. Following an evening of games, an electric waffle iron was presented to the honored one who is to be a June bride. Dainty refreshments, which carried out the class colors of lavender and green, concluded the evening.

Miss Louise Smith entertained nine Nebraska university girls at a house party last week-end.

Wednesday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kerst were Mrs. Paul Marek and children, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kerst. Mrs. Marek and children will leave soon for their new home at Hamburg, N. Y.

Mrs. William Merrill entertained at a 7 o'clock dinner, Sunday, in compliment to her daughter, Miss Daisy, who was celebrating her birthday anniversary. The guests included Miss Blanch Vilda of Wilber, Miss Anna Machacek, Joe, Rudolph, Edward and John Machacek.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Davis and daughter, Gail, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. William Norton and family, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sedlacek and family, and Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Algermissen and daughter, Delores, motored to Omaha Sunday and enjoyed a picnic dinner together at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCawley. Mr. and Mrs. Gus Kersenbrock and family of Omaha were also present. A theater party occupied the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Meinke celebrated their silver wedding anniversary last Sunday by entertaining about fifty relatives and friends at dinner. A large white cake adorned with silver centered the table which was also decorated with spring blossoms. Following an evening spent socially and with games, a two course lunch was served.

Flowers of pastel hues formed the table decorations at an attractive tea served by Mrs. Wilbur Adams Friday evening. The guest list included seven teachers of the public schools and Miss Violet Turnby, an out of town guest. A social hour followed the tea.

The town sewing circle of the Sacred Heart church held a benefit card party Thursday afternoon at the St. James school. There were five tables of bridge players and six tables of five hundred players. Mrs. Herman Nave received high award at bridge. At 5 o'clock, delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Frank McCarthy, Mrs. Homer Hayden, Mrs. Paul Sand and Mrs. Vern Maas.

Mary Reische of Chadron Wed to Captain Russey

(Special to The Star.)

CHADRON, Neb., May 24 — The ivy-grown little grey stone church in which the bride had worshipped in Chadron since her childhood was the scene of the wedding of Miss Mary Reische, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Reische, to Captain John W. Russey of Atlanta, Ga., recently detailed for duty at Fort Stotsenburg, Island of Luzon in the Philippines.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William L. Philley, who read the impressive lines of the Episcopal ring service. The bride was given away by her father, and attended by Miss Helen Wells. The groom was accompanied to the altar by Richard Reische, brother of the bride. Large baskets of tulips and bridal wreath, garlands of lilacs and roses, and window niches filled with tulips made a delightful setting for the simple but dignified ceremony. The young couple received the wedding guests, only immediate relatives, while standing under the stained glass arched windows in the glow of the late afternoon sun.

The bride wore a going-away gown of blue and white georgette with blue shoes and ivory-colored hat. Her wedding bouquet was of Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Wells wore an afternoon costume of blue and white crepe with white hat. Her corsage was of roses and sweet peas. After the ceremony, a buffet supper was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reische.

Mrs. Russey is the only daughter of her parents, and popular among the many friends of the family in college circles and in this section of the state where the families of both parents are well known. She was graduated from college here, of which her father is a member of the board. Since 1925 she taught in the public schools of Chadron four years and of Hastings one year.

Captain Russey was graduated from the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn. He is a World war veteran and was a member of the army of occupation for one year after the war. He has been, for four years, attached to the Fourth field artillery and for two years, he has been stationed at Fort Robinson, thirty miles from Chadron. He has been assigned to Philippine service for two years, and will be attached to the Twenty-fourth field artillery. Fort Stotsenburg, where he will be stationed is but fifty-seven miles from Manilla.

Richard Reische, brother of the bride, a member of the class of 1931 University of Nebraska, and Miss Wells aaccompanied Captain and Mrs. Russey to Crawford Tuesday evening where the couple took the train for San Francisco. They will sail May 29 on the U. S. S. Grant for a twenty-three day voyage to Manilla.

Children Observe Birthdays

Donna Ruth Shirey is the small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Shirey, 1525 H street, Havelock. She celebrated her first birthday anniversary Tuesday, May 13, when she entertained twenty little guests and their mothers at a party. The children played games during the afternoon and the mothers were entertained with pinochle following a luncheon which served at one large table made attractive with spring flowers.

Stanley B. Capps is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley M. Capps. He celebrated his fifth birthday at a party given by Miss Ruth Burcham, whose birthday is also May 21. Nine guests were entertained at the theater followed by refreshments at the home of Miss Burcham.

Willard Schlesselman is two years old today. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Schlesselman, 1650 Euclid avenue.

University Notes

E. H. Shimm, from the bureau of education in Washington, has been on the campucs this week making a study of what is being done to orient freshmen students in agriculture, home economics and engineering. He is doing this in land grant colleges and universities, the study to be part of a report to be read at the convention of land grant colleges and universities in Washington, next November. Mr. Shimm was interested in the classification tests, freshman day, orientation courses and freshmen advisers at Nebraska. The university was selected as one of the six typical midwestern institutions.

The revised edition of the textbook of general chemistry by Prof. H. G. Deming will be off the press early in the summer. This is the tenth printing of the book in seven years. About one-half the text has been rewritten this printing. The text is widely used in the country. It is estimated that one student in seven begins his college chemistry in this book.

Mrs. C. B. Towle, Lincoln, has presented the Morrill hall museum with a unique Javanese marionette which represents the moon goddess of Java. The wooden figure is gilded and painted in an intriguing design. The figure is an essential part of Javanese religious rites inside the temple, according to the donor. This will be added to the growing collection of oddities from foreign lands being brought to the museum each year.

Christian L. Larsen, Aurora student in the department of political science, has received a $200 graduate scholarship in Leland Stanford university for the coming year. He expects to study law in the California school.

Prof. Paul H. Grummann delivered the commencement address at Valparaiso, Thursday evening, speaking on "Modern Tendencies."

The gallery of Morrill hall is now housing the student exhibit of work in fine art. This will remain on display until the end of the month.

The department of geography has received a request from a school teacher in India for the bulletin of the Nebraska council of geography teachers, which is sponsored by the department. Prof. E. E. Lackey edits the bulletin. Copies are now sent to nearly every state in the union and to a number of foreign countries.

One of the recent additions to the collections in Morrill hall has been a bas-relief restoration of the Dianohyus, Nebraska fossil hog, by Murrey J. Roper, who is modeling now at the Clarke studio in New York City. Mr. Roper was recently at Morrill hall. The restoration will be placed beside the skeleton of the fossil hog in the Sioux county case.

Two student geologists have received positions during the past week. Clarke W. Kelley, Beaver City, will be a geologist for the Producers and Refiners corporation at Tulsa, Okla., and Leonard Duerfeldt, Gordon, will go in the field the latter part of this month as a geologist for the Sinclair Oil and Gas company at Fort Worth, Tex.

Dean W. E. Sealock of the teachers college has been delivering a series of commencement addresses this week end, speaking at Blue Springs Wednesday, Ong Thursday and Tobias Friday evening. Monday he will deliver the commencement address to the college high school at Wayne state teachers college and Tuesday he will speak at Gothenburg. Chadron is the last date on the schedule, Dr. Sealock speaking there May 30.

"Oil Possibilities of Nebraska," will be the subject of Prof. E. F. Schramm's talk before the Hastings Kiwanis club Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Anna Day, Lincoln, has presented the museum an old family picture album for the folk collection. The album was once the property of Governor Paddock of the Nebraska territory.

"The Origin of the World War—Defense of the German Cause," is the title of an article which appears in the Omaha Daily Tribune this Sunday. This has been prepared by Dr. W. H. Werkmeister of the department of philosophy. The paper was read this week to Roy E. Cochran's clas sin foreign relations. Dr. Laura B. Pfeiffer presented the French viewpoint to the class some time ago.

HEBRON NOTES

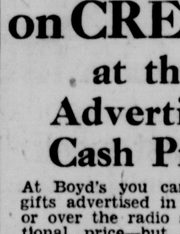

The fund secured from the class play "Dust of the Earth," given May 13, has been given to the library, for purchase of books. The library also received $15 from the Thayer County Associated Luther league.

Last of Cast at Ford's Theater When Lincoln Was Shot Is Dead

(By Central Press.)

BALTIMORE, May 17—"I saw Booth shoot Lincoln. I've played Shakespeare and the movies— and I'm twelve years older than 'East Lynne.'"

In that way, just before his death a few days ago, William J. Ferguson, for sixty years an actor, summed up his experience on the American and the European stage.

His death brought to an end one of the most extraordinary of theatrical careers.

Last of Famous Cast.

He was the last surviving member of the cast of "Our American Cousin," which Abraham Lincoln was watching from a box at Ford's in Washington on the night of the assassination.

He was the oldest living member of the Lambs club and had been informed of the length of his membership by word from New York just a few days before his death. He joined the club in 1898.

He was the author of the book, "I Saw Booth Shoot Lincoln," and was preparing a new volume, "Sixty Years on the New York Stage." He was in the original cast of "Charley's Aunt," and played with Richard Mansfield in "Beau Brummel," and with Robert Mantell in Mantell's first American appearance in Mme. Modjeska's "Romeo and Juliet."

Started as Call Boy.

Although he said he had done everything from Shakespeare to the movies, his actual experience with the theater began when he became a call boy at Ford's in Washington.

Born in Baltimore, he was a printer's devil on the long defunct Baltimore Clipper at the outbreak of the Civil war. It was upon leaving this newspaper that he took the job as call boy at the theater where shortly afterward he saw Lincoln slain.

He had been pressed into service as a super in a Shakespearean piece, and was doing his bit with a massive spear on the stage when the president was shot.

From that spear-carrying bit and from the ordeal of the Emancipator's assassination he rose to eminence as one of the most valued actors of the American stage.

An injury to his hip caused his retirement from the stage in 1924, but before giving up and coming to the home of his nephew in a Baltimore suburb to live, Ferguson satisfied a desire which he long had felt when he went to Los Angeles and took part in the motion picture, "The Yosemite Trail."

His passing was quiet; the last prayer had been said over his grave before the world knew that the last of the actors in the play on that fatal night at Ford's had also died.

Personals

Mrs. Anna Meyer of Los Angeles, is a visitor in Lincoln. She will remain about two weeks, staying at the Lindell hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Barnhill of Seattle arrived Thursday to remain until June 1. They are the guests of Mrs. Barnhill's brother, W. A. Luke and Mrs. Luke.

From an actual photograph taken at the Mrs. Al Brinley residence, Tekamah, Nebraska, after the passing of the destructive tornado, April 30th. This General Electric Refrigerator was the only article that could be salvaged after the storm, and it has produced perfect refrigeration since the disaster.

The wind raged - - - the rain came down in torrents---debris hurtled and twisted through the air---the house gave way to the brutality of the ornado---but this General Electric Refrigerator stood victorious---a veteran to a new bombardment!

The destructive tornado at Tekamah, Nebraska, on April 30th, completely demolished the home of Mrs. Al Brinley. The entire structure gave way to the terrific impact of the wind and rain. Yet this General Electric Refrigerator stood the test. It was the only article salvaged from the storm. Removed to a source of power, the unit produced perfect refrigeration.

General Electric Refrigerators have been given the most severe tests ever applied to any mechanical contrivances. Drowned in water—buried in sand—frozen in ice—roasted in fire—and now proved in a TORNADO!

Only General Electric can boast of hundreds of thousands of users who have not paid ONE cent for service. Only the General Electric Refrigerator has the Hermetically Sealed-in-Steel mechanism, capable and proven to withstand the injurious attack of dirt, air and moisture. It is your silent, helpful servant that works tirelessly for you both night and day. Milk, butter, and other foods are constantly kept at a temperature below the danger point—50 degrees—always safeguarding the health of your family.

Thrift and permanency are yours as the owner of a General Electric Refrigerator. Let a GENERAL ELECTRIC specialist tell you how easily you can own this outstanding, super-proven Electric Refrigerator—Today.

Charm Is Woman's Rightful Heritage Also Her Duty To Self and Others—Marriage For Convenience Is Never Advisable.

Charm Is Essential.

It is not only a woman's privilege to be charming: it is here duty. Charm is woman's rightful heritage. Through this factor, she not only brings happiness to herself, but to the members of her family, and to her friends.

It is easy for a woman to lose sight of the necessity for personal charm. The work-a-day details of living press in upon her. She let the irritations of daily life become all important. Perhaps she feels so keenly her duties to others that she loses sight of her duty to herself, and indirectly yet so importantly, her duty to others through serving herself.

Many a good, kind, conscientious woman finds herself stranded in loneliness, and she wonders why.

She "has always kept a clean house and the children have always been neat and well nourished and well cared for." Yet they all seem to have deserted her.

It would seem that she had done her duty. She certainly did it as she saw it. But it wasn't enough. She forgot her duty to herself, which was to keep her own charm. It is not always an easy order, but it is of fundamental importance.

Not Advisable.

The marriage for convenience never has my sanction, whether it be a union for social prestige, for money, for a home, for comforts or for the security offered by a man. The reason is that I believe that a marriage without the basis of love is doomed to failure. I believe likewise that any woman is better off standing on her own two feet, independently, than for her to seek what she wants through a meaningless marital union. This form of temptation presents itself to women of all classes, of all degrees of ability, and in various conditions of life. And my answer is the same for every one of them. What is yours?

Two Weaklings.

Dear Minerva: Twelve years ago I married a man I did not love. I tried to put him off, but he told me if he couldn't have me, it would break his heart and he would never love another girl as he loved me. These words touched me to the heart. I accepted him rather than go through life knowing that I broke his heart. I thought that as time went on I could learn to love him, but that day has never come.

This may serve as an example to young girls who marry for sympathy. I have two sweet children I respect my husband. I'll always be good to him and his children, but I cannot learn to love him.

One year ago another man came into my life. I fell in love with him and he loves me. I told him that I loved him but belong to another. He has turned to drink to try to forget. He tells me I feel sorry for both. I do, but I'll pull through. I keep myself busy and go to shows with my husband to try to forget. In this way, I cannot let my imagination run away with me.—PAYING A PRICE.

A—The two men who figure in your life are pretty weak specimens, it seems. Your husband is the more easily excused for he was young at the time he was so wild at the thought of losing you, and doubtless felt as if his heart would indeed be broken. Also, he may have sensed that the mother in you would not be able to withstand his wail.

As to the other, this man you say you love, I am afraid that had you married him you would have been sorely disappointed. A man so weak that he has to take to drink to bear a disappointment would not be an ideal mate. You say you can respect your husband. That is a great deal. You may not have been able to respect this other man, if you had married him. Why couldn't he do as you are doing, console himself by keeping busy.

A woman who marries a man she doesn't love, always runs the risk later of meeting someone she does care about and regretting her marriage. You have been true to your bargain, however, so have nothing with which to reproach yourself.

Wait For Security.

Dear Minerva: I am in love and have been engaged for about six months. The man lives in a distant town and in every letter I get is a plea to "come home and we'll get married."

I love the boy enough to marry him, but as his work is not so good I don't think it would be advisable, as I have a few bills of my own to pay, but he insists on my going home to marry him now.

What do you advise? He says if I don't come down now and marry him, he will never ask me again. What would you do in a case like that?—UNCERTAIN.

A. It's a bit difficult to say what you should do. I don't like the idea of your boy friend threatening you if you can't see your way to marry him now. It's precarious marrying if his job is not very good, and if he cannot provide you with a home. It is your privilege and right to protect yourself from future unhappiness. I think you should stick to your practical ideas and not marry until you feel you can do so happily and safely.

Qualities For Success.

What qaulities should a girl have to make a success in business? This is a question frequently asked, and today queried by "Doris A."

On many application blanks and employes' record cards qualities listed include co-operation, adaptability and discipline.

I believe that the qualities needed may be summed up in the word "sportsmanship," a willingness to play the game according to rules set by others even if they are not always understood.

The rules in the business world are man-made laws. Although there are many thousands of girls in the business world, and successfully there, it still remains a man's world.

The woman in business needs a certain amount of humbleness. Though she may be, and should be, very confident of her own powers and abilities, she must always be ready to learn from others, and know that she is not indispensable in any job that she holds. She must constantly remember that she makes herself indespensible by her own efforts, that her importance lies in her fitness, in her adaptability, in keeping up-to-date, in dovetailing her efforts with others'.

The spirit of fair play counts big. The employees' time, loyalty, interest and energy belong to her employer. The girl who thinks of her job as a contract in which she agrees to give the best that is in her, and never cheats, is the girl who succeeds.

Women can reach imposing and satisfactory heights in the business world if they play fair—to themselves and to their employers.

Worrying Is Destructive.

"Be modern." Parents say that this is the plea of their children. "Mrs. J. G." asks what in the world that means. I am sure I don't know. All that I do know, and that I can advise parents, is to be tolerant and as understanding as possible of the youthful viewpoints. There are certain fundamental standards of honor, honesty, loyalty and truth, many visions of the constructive, creative life as opposed to the destructive life of self indulgence, which the parents can instill in the minds of their children from infancy on. After that, they can do little but look on, put in an occasional oar of advice and warning, and believe that good blood and training will do the rest. Nagging and worrying will not help.

Freedom Is Essential.

Dear Minerva: Please advise me. I am unmarried and thirty-four years old. I'm in love with a married woman ten years my junior. I like to keep her company and her husband does not care. She said she loves me, but has another friend come to see her while I am working.

I am true to her and do all I can for her and her children. But she is not fair to me and does not keep her word. George.

A—Would you take my advice if I gave it? It would be to give her up and go with a girl who is free to love you. How can you expect a woman who is untrue to her husband, to whom she promised allegiance, to be true to anyone else? You say her husband does not care about her going out with you. Then he does not love her. How would you feel, if you were married to her and she went out with other men? Just about the way you feel about her going out with another man now, I suspect, only more so. She loves only herself, I assure you, and what she can get out of all of you.

Serious and Settled.

Dear Minerva: I am a girl in my late teens and I am engaged to a boy five years my senior. I really am crazy about him and I know he loves me truly and would do anything for me.

The trouble is that during the last few weeks I just feel as though I must go out and have a good time, and, being engaged, that is impossible. My fiance is so serious and settled. He doesn't want to take me to dances or any place that we can mix with different people. He enjoys going to shows one or two nights a week and sitting home by ourselves the rest of the time. We always had lots of friends, but have lost them since he became so "dried up."

I don't want to lose him, yet I want to have a good time. What in the world should I do? If we break our engagement, I would be desperately unhappy. Jacqueline.

A—I think that once you have become engaged to a young man, you should make as earnest an effort to make a success of the engagement as you would of the marriage following. Therefore, I think the best and fairest thing to do would be to tell the boy friend just how you feel and ask him to take you out as he used to do. If he refuses and you can't agree, it would then be time to weigh the whole situation and decide whether you want to marry a man who wants to settle down and give up friends and fun.

Personally, I think anyone who does that is making a great mistake. No matter how happy two people may be in the society of each other, they need outside friends and interests.

Why Did She Kill!

Psychologists Say Society Is Partly Responsible For Woman's Act In Slaying Seven Children.

GELLER HOME at COLUMBUS, OHIO

ETHEL GELLER and CHILDREN.

Picture shows the humble poverty-stricken home of Ethel Yelden (insert) at Columbus, O., where she took the lives of seven of her children so they need not face the dilemma of life which had brought her poverty. She also made an attempt on her own life which failed. Below is the photograph which the distracted mother made of her children prior to the tragedy, which was the climax of her efforts to keep them from starvation.

(By International Illustrated News)

COLUMBUS, O.—What will humanity do about Mrs. Ethel Yelden, self-confessed slayer of seven children, six of them her own?

The 44-year-old woman's defense for her amazing crime will probably be temporary insanity brought on by horror of a criminal blood taint and unending poverty for her brood.

Eminent psychologists and sociologists say that society is responsible, at least in part, for her fanatical massacre.

For twenty years Mrs. Yelden's life has been one long, losing battle for existence. When her first husband died, leaving her penniless with several children to support, she quickly married Darby Yelden.

All that blessed the new union was fresh suffering and more children. Matters reached a tragic climax three years ago when Yelden was sent to the penitentiary for assaulting Mildred Gillen, her daughter by the former marriage.

The boy born to Mildred, Mrs. Yelden claimed as her own and reared as twin of her youngest child, Alice. With twelve children to care for and haunted by the fear that the smaller ones had inherited their father's blood taint, Mrs. Yelden sought what work she could.

Mildred found employment as a nurse and Mrs. Yelden's eldest son joined the navy, but there was never quite enough money to make both ends meet.

A few days ago Mrs. Yelden decided she could no longer stand being underfed and overworked. Sitting down, she arranged in writing for the distribution of her pitifully few possessions among her equally poor neighbors. To Mildred she wrote:

"Time will heal. On account of the blood, Alice is better gone, too. It is all for the best."

"MOTHER."

Mrs. Yelden then gathered all her children about her and took them to a photographer's studio for a group picture.

Arriving home, she sent all the children except the 3-year-old "twins," out for ice cream cones.

Calling the babies into her room she killed each with a single bullet from her .22 caliber rifle. Mrs. Yelden then carefully washed their little dead bodies and dressed them in their Sunday clothes.

The others returned. Muffling her rifle with a towel, Mrs. Yelden called and killed in turn, Darby, 7; Byron, 8; Eleanor, 9; Elaine, 10, and Eldon.

The last was the son of Mrs. Yelden's first husband but she killed him because he was following his stepfather's evil example. With one bullet left, she turned her gun upon herself. The bullet, because of her haste, lodged in her shoulder instead of in her brain as she intended.

The seven murdered bodies were discovered by the other children whose startled screams brought the police.

When Mrs. Yelden recovers from her wound she will be placed on trial for first degree murder. The wheels of justice will move against her as impersonally and as inevitably as they have against millions of others who have taken the law into their own hands.

Jack Graff will leave on Sunday to spend the summer at Salt Lake Utah, with his aunt and uncle.

Mr. and Mrs. Leè A. Scott of Garrison, Kas., are visiting at the home of Mrs. Scott's parents, Rev. and Mrs. Knauer.

Last Tuesday evening was the last luncheon of the season at the chamber of commerce and a large crowd was present. Prof. Herbert Davis of the University of Nebraska gave a splendid talk on "Dairy Cows." Several grain dealers from over the county were guests.

Harvey Jenks and L. H. McKillip left on Thursday by auto for Oklahoma City. From there they will visit Fort Worth and Corpus Christi, Texas.

Cotner Notes

Student council members for next year were elected Thursday as follows: Louise Lomax, '31, Lincoln; Edward West, '31, Rocky Ford, Colo.; Merton Welch, '31, Edgar; Irene Epler, '32, Norton, Kas.; Wendell Preston, '32, Denver, Colo.; Mark Witter, '33, Bayard; Leland Bacus, '33, Trinidad, Colo. The members of next year's student council elected as officers: Edward West, president; Merton Welch, vice president; Irene Epler, secretary-treasurer.

Baccalaureate services will be held at 11 a. m. Sunday, May 25. Acting President L. C. Anderson will preach the sermon on "The Obligation of Advantage."

Commencement exercises will take place Tuesday, May 27, at 10 a. m., in the college gymnasium. The address will be delivered by the Rev. Earl N. Griggs, '13, minister to the University Christian church, Berkeley, Calif. The annual banquet and meeting of the alumni association will be held at 6:30 Monday evening, May 26, at Bates hall.

The Cotner Collegian, weekly student newspaper, will have as editor next year, Henry Kennedy, '31, Lincoln, and business manager, Doyt Branstitre, '33, Edgar.

The Bulldog, student annual, will be edited by Naomi Stout, '32, Las Animas, Colo., and managed by Eugene Gray, '32, Monte Vista, Colo.

Theta chapter of Alpha Phi Gamma, national honorary journalistic fraternity, initiated five members Tuesday evening, Naomi Stout, '32, Las Animas, Colo.; Weir Battershell, '30, Lyons, Kas.; Esther Logan, '31, Longmont, Colo.; Cleon Oldfather, '31, Lincoln; Marvin Hudleson, '31, Omaha. Officers elected for Alpha Phi Gamma immediately following the initiation are, president, Henry Kennedy, '31, Lincoln; vice president, Naomi Stout, '32, Las Animas, Colo.; secretary-treasurer, Esther Logan. Prof. Earnest W. Lundeen is faculty adviser.

MODERN EVE

in smart magazines—Gifts so distinctive you decide it must take a master mind to design them and a very smart person to discover them. Such are the type to be found at Ben Simons Gift Shop—where you have become accustomed to elephants and cats, they suggest huge green frogs. Where we content ourselves with bowls and candles on our buffet, they suggest the addition of a modern golden mirror plaque—in fact, where we mortals might content ourselves with the usual, they demand the exclusive.

Could there be a nicer gift for any graduate than a lovely soft, natural looking permanent wave? These very lovely ones are being given at Mrs. Tripp's for the girls whose thoughtful parent has made them the recipient. The importance of the elaborated sleeve theme is a reiterated statement, every one concerned being greatly impressed by the concentration of trimming above elbow or arranged to reach beyond the point of the elbow.

Students Have a beaten path to Tucker Sheans'—they've been supplied with school necessities for years and naturally at graduation time here is where they are shopping. Memory books, bill folds, purses, pens and pencils, brief cases and all types of leather articles have a special showing. They know that on the threshold of a business life, graduates will appreciate gifts of use as well as attractiveness.

Refrigerator has made its appearance at Schmoeller & Muellers. They tell me it's the superior electric refrigerator — employs the coldest practical refrigerating agent for domestic use; quieter; simpler; more economical; thermostatically controlled; double sealed cabinets; of beautiful white porcelain or Duco lacquer, and built all around for long service. See these at Schmoeller & Mueller's now.

Fresh Interest Springs Up at the Edge

Edges get special attention and varied treatments. White pique outlines and underlines the round, flat collar and the bottom flounce of an Augustabernard tunic jacket, and Lelong does much with petal cut. Chanel has notched, pinked, and pleated edges, saw-tooth edges, and cut-out and applique flower edges that give an individual touch to so many of her prints. Augustabernard cuts up the hem-line of an evening print into feathery, floating strips.

Capes and Boleros Play a Double Role

They break the long silhouette and give to a dress the finish that it so often needs. Besides, capes and boleros are both youthful and gay.

Capes appear morning, afternoon, and evening, but take to the trotteur and travelling type of coat and dress with the best grace of all. Sometimes, they are detachable; more often, they are partly incorporated, appearing in countless manifestations. Premet is particularly successful about incorporating capes with the trotteur type, and Goupy's good-looking town-and-sports type clothes usually have the addition of a separate elbow- or hip-length cape. The distinction that can lie in capes is seen. Capes are so prevalent that they run the danger of sacrificing chic to popularity. But much, of course, depends upon the way they are worn—the more inconsequentially, the better.

Boleros, sometimes worn separately and sometimes cut in one with the dress, give to a runabout dress just the out-of-doors character that it should have.

Speaking in Terms of Dollars and Cents

(sense) and with the many dress needs of the bride and girl graduate in mind, let me advise you of the $12.50 frocks at Herpolsheimer's. In this group are clever sport, dress and flowery chiffons in abundance. Indeed there are any number of those lovely semi-formal flowing chiffons, with lovely floral patterns smart crepes, some have coats. One opaline blue was smartly combined with full length black crepe cape coat.

It Used to Take Hours shopping for the right gift for the graduate, bride and vacationer—going through department after department in search. This was part of the gift giving. Today Van Raalte has done all the searching in advance, knowing every girl's desire to own all the hose she can house, knowing the necessity of hose for day time, and evening, for service and beauty, they have fashioned all types, using the ultra smart French heel in all, and at Magee's you may buy them as low as $1.50. Three types for $1.95, $2.50 and $3.50, which include service weights, sheer, extra sheer and the ultra exquisite ingrain in 51 gauge. Of course in searching and presenting Van Raalte includes all the very latest spring and summer shades.

Lingerie Touches Are Ubiquitous

Yet, they keep their smart standing and continue to spread their freshness and charm over many of the best dresses. Patou, of course, does lovely things with lingerie, and one of his newest ideas is to outline surplice closings with a narrow shawl collar of white pique, which stops on its way, now and then, and ties in bows. Tiny white pique collars and cuffs or frilled linen edges give the spirited Chanel touch to navy-blue, red and grey jersey dresses and suits.

Lanvin shows lingerie in an original form: large, flat, white pique jabots or plastrons that are detachable and, therefore, quite practical. Newest of all is lingerie that seems a part of the dress.

Luxuriously furred evening wraps in long silhouettes, which also introduce subtle fabric cuttings in the low skirt section merit attention, while brocaded metals and black velvets are the fabrics most frequently mentioned for formal wraps.

Lovely blouses for afternoon are made of plain, printed, and faconne crepes, plain and printed chiffons, faconne satins, and crepe georgette. Louiseboulanger uses the same printed crepe for blouse and skirt, producing the effect of a one-piece dress; and Jane Regny knows how to make a white chiffon blouse for town wear.

The Best Trains Are in One with the Skirt

Trailing skirts, rather than trailing panels, are the newest version of the train. A trailing point seems to be a continuation of the drapery that characterizes the dress, and Molyneux lets a white crepe romain skirt sweep along the ground, beginning at the front of the sides. Patou and Maggy Rouff both show trains that are a logical evolution of the skirt, and Champcommunal has done wonderful things with full, circular cut that causes the skirt to sweep in soft folds to the ground in back. This is illustrated on page 36 in the March 29 issue.

Peplums Are Often Just What Fashion Needs

Because they go far to express the present feeling of fulness and do much to break the length of the silhouette, balance shoulder interest, and minimize the waist. Usually, they are as full and straight as the skirt beneath and only slightly alter the silhouette, such as the tunic-like peplums. The amusing little peplum that looks like a hip yoke, released, is stiffened with horsehair and, with the slightly stiffened peplums at Lelong's, is one of the exceptions that proves this fashion rule.

NATIONAL HIGH SCHOOL ORCHESTRA

May 29-30-31 CONTEST May 29-30-31

Lincoln Is Host This Week to 1600 MUSICIANS

FROM DIFFERENT PARTS OF THE UNITED STATES

A CONTEST OF NATIONWIDE SCOPE

Orchestras representing high schools from every section of the country will arrive in Lincoln to compete for the championship of their respective class.

Musicians from Florida will vie with others from New Jersey in Class A—and others from states too numerous to mention.

An event important enough to warrant schools spending up to $4,000 to send their musical representatives to Lincoln.

No one will want to miss one of the most outstanding events in the musical history of the middle west

Music lovers will enjoy the type of music chosen for the contest numbers. They will see a performance characterized not by amateur effort, but of ability approaching the professional. Months of effort have been spent in preparation for this contest.

Five men of national renown in the musical world will come to Lincoln to judge the National High School Orchestra Contest.

The mass concert each night will be under the direction of one of these men—some who are particularly well known because of their appearances on the National Radio Broadcasting chains.

CONTEST JUDGES

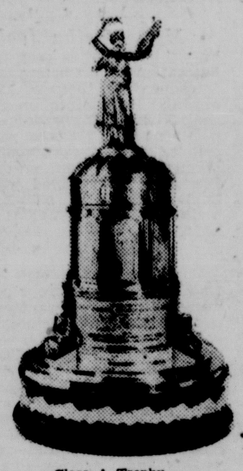

MR. RUDOLPH GANZ, Director Chicago Musical College.

MR. GEORGE DASCH, Director Chicago Little Symphony Orchestra.

MR. CARL BUSCH, Director of the Kansas City Horner Conservatory.

MR. E. H. WILCOX, Assistant Director University of Iowa School of Music

MR. WILL EARHART, Director of Music in Schools of Pittsburgh, Pa.

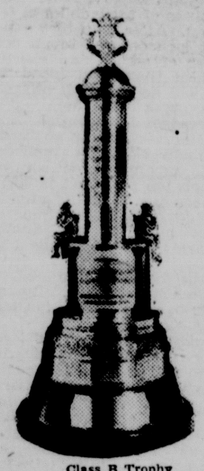

Class A Trophy

Not only a national orchestra contest but a dramatic spectacle of entertainment

Enjoy the colorful thrill of the mass concert Saturday night, of an orchestra of

under the leadership of a conductor of national fame.

Class B Trophy

TO THE PEOPLE OF NEBRASKA

Each night after the finals of each class one of the contest judges will conduct a mass orchestra of all the musicians of that respective class.

Once in a lifetime will the opportunity present itself to see the inspiring sight of a gigantic orchestra of 700 musicians.

Don't miss this outstanding musical event of the year.

the STEINWAY that you buy today will serve your children's children

Few things today are really built to last. But the Steinway is a notable exception. It is made like a watch, inside and out. Only the finest workmanship and materials enter into it. For 30, 40 or 50 years and more it will continue to bring delight and entertainment to your family. . . .You need never buy another piano! Such durability as this spells real economy. The Steinway will outlast three ordinary pianos, besides giving you the depth and beauty of tone which only a Steinway can give. There are many models and prices. Upright pianos can be bought for $900, Grands $1,525 and up. The initial deposit may be as little as 10%, and the balance will be extended over a period of two years. Used pianos accepted in partial exchange.

RIGHT

Looking up the west Blue, from the forks of the big and west Blue

NEBRASKA, the frontier state of the seventies when this nation was still engaged in the magnificent enterprise of winning the west, is revealed vividly in a pamphlet unearthed during the past week.

The booklet came to attention largely as a result of the visit here of John F. Harris of New York, donor of Pioneers park, because it was prepared in 1872 under the direction of Mr. Harris' father, George Samuel Harris, then land commissioner for the Burlington and Missouri River Railroad Co., with headquarters in Lincoln.

Efforts of the writer to remove common misconceptions about this state that existed in the east indicate that the Easterner thought of Nebraska as part of the Great American desert, visualizing Indian massacres, buffalo stampedes, prairie fires, unmerciless drouth and other unpleasant happenings.

Assurances that wood was available for the making of ox-bows and that the presence of prairie dogs meant fertile soil and casual references to sod houses, dug-outs, squatters, buffalo chips show the Nebraskan of 1930 how great has been the progress in a half century.

Describes Nebraska Towns.

Description of Lincoln, Seward, Crete, Ashland, Beatrice and other nearby places are interesting and often a musing and the pamphlet serves as an illuminative commentary on the times. It also leaves a picture of Nebraska of 1872 that is much clearer than any painted by the history books.

The book consists of twenty pen and ink sketches of Nebraska scenes, each acompanied by a full page of descriptive text. In addition there are advertisements of the railroad telling of the prices of land —which vary from $2 to $20 an acre —and of the advantages of life in the pioneer land.

The forword declares: "In the views here presented, the characteristics of the country are fully indicated. There is an appearance of sameness, but the reason is that they are truthful. In all of the pictures the lines of trees indicate the hidden channels of water courses. The timber is taller than it looks, because much of it grows beneath the top of the banks."

Wells Sunk Easily.

The first settlers planted themselves among the trees along the streams, but the uplands have proven as productive as river bottoms, and in wet seasons more so. Those swells between stream and stream are terme "divides," because they divide the course of the surface-water. Wells are sunk so easily that professional experts in boring seldom fail to reach water in a single day. Where ever prairie fires are kept out by fire-breaks, timber flourishes. Set out walking sticks, and in a dozen years your outstretched arms cannot encircle one of them.

"The pictures speak for themselves, yet a word of explanation may not be amiss. All the localities are rolling prairie—a lay of the land which, besides yielding those undulating landscapes that artists love to paint, and all eyes to linger on, renders swamps rare, and agues too."

The first view is entitled "Artesian Salt-well, Salt Basin and Prairie, West of Lincoln, Neb."

Prairie Called Land Seas.

Explaining this the writer says the view "shows the road, which is merely a track worn in the grass by the wagons of wayfarers. Natural highways, carriageable, though not "made by hands" are common. But bridges are a necessity, as over the sloughs like that on the right of the view, and back of the Salt Lake. Such canyon-like water-channels will be noticed in other pictures, cut deep in the mellow soil, and sometimes among quarries.

"The wagons on the left, called in western parlance, 'prairie schooners,' show 'the style of sailing over those wide extended plains which the Germans expressively term 'land seas.' Nebraska prairies, however, usually roll up between water-courses, in divides, higher than any ocean billows ever rise. If the trees studding the streams were away, the wayfarers would be said to be 'out of sight of land.'

"A brace of emigrant wagons travel very independently. Each contains every article of prime necessity for a family—bedding, food, a stove, an axe to cut fuel, a shovel to smooth down the passage to streams, a gun for game. Each helps the other in emergencies. Both teams are hitched to one wagon at a time in crossing, difficult fords. Usually, also though we do not see them in this picture, each canvas-topped wagon is accompanied by led horses for a relay and by cows that yield milk."

Last Outfitting Post.

Lincoln is described as a place which became and remains and must for some time remain the last best place where men bearing civilization still westward can make up their outfits, or send back for such supplies as they have neglected to take in the second view in the book. This drawing is of the salt basin and salt works at Lincoln.

The salt spring is described as saltier than the ocean—"ebbing and flowing like it, and forming the source of Salt creek, which is already utilized for mills, and still salt, when, after flowing thirty miles, it empties into the Platte river."

"This saline — known as the Great American Salt Basin— was long ago famous," according to the writer. "The earliest squatters used to come from long distances and fill their wagons with the saline incrustations, which, under the evaporation of summer suns, harden at the water's edge. Thus, by a little boiling and refining, they obtained salt for their families and cattle.

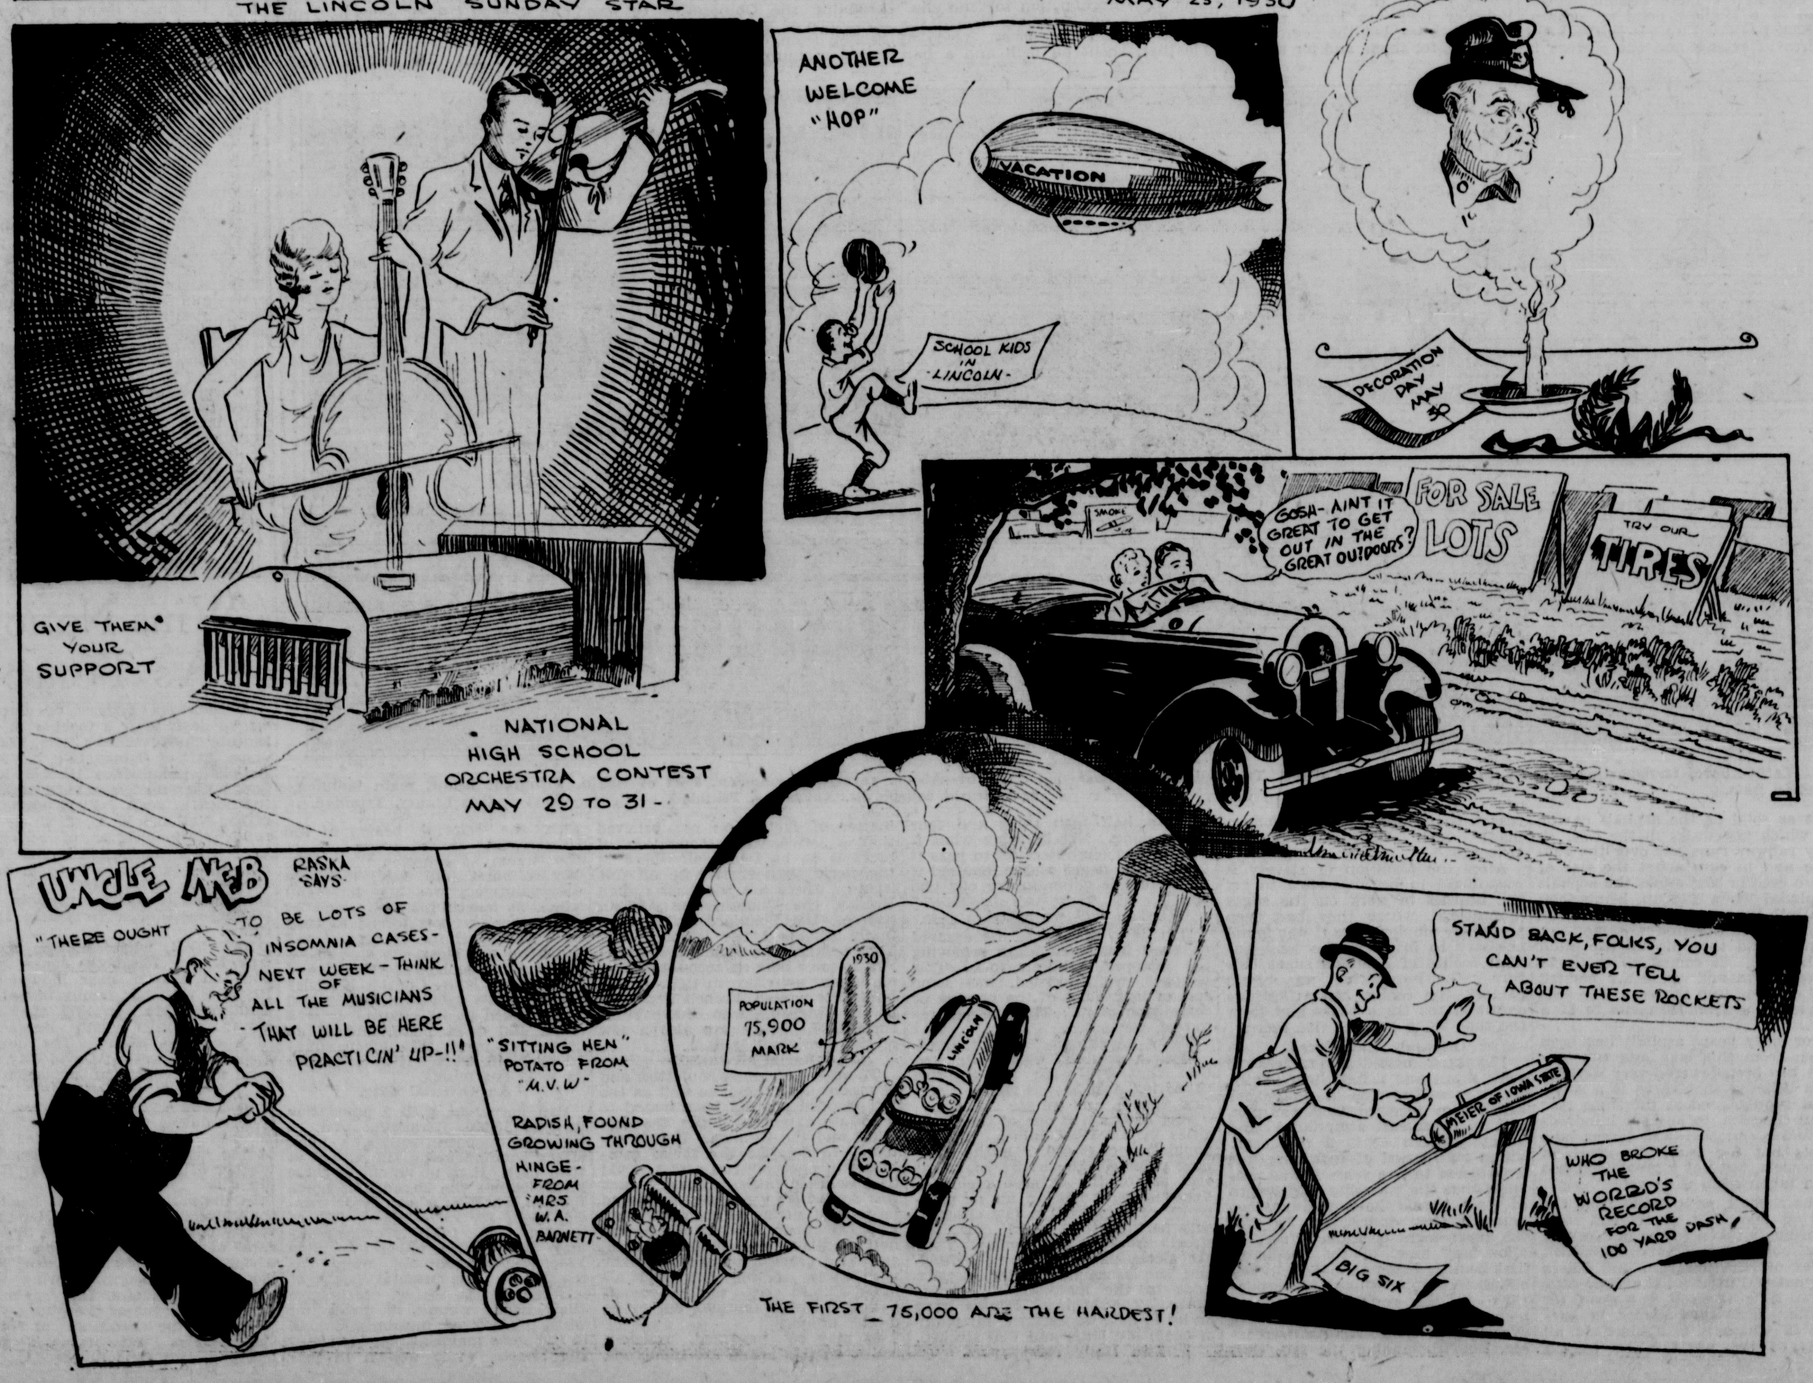

Tells Of Lincoln's Growth.

"In looking at this landscape our backs are towards Lincoln—otherwise we should see about 6,000 people living, where five years ago there were not half a dozen houses. The capitol, university, penitentiary and insane asylum, as well as six good hotels, many others, and a dozen business blocks, would seem to belong to a town a century old. In April, 1872, more than fifty places of business were counted, fronting on the public square. In the center of that square an artesian well was just beginning to be bored. Such a well, sunk about two miles distant, before reaching depth of 400 feet, yielded a perennial stream spouting up many feet into the air, and there is, accordingly, reason to hope that Lincoln will soon rejoice in a similar fountain springing up into everlasting life—music to the ear, and dropping diamonds to the eye—the mother of health, coolness, cleanliness, and safety from fire.

"The growth of Lincoln, though marvelous, is no mystery. The two square miles where it stands, bought of the United States for $1,600, were given to the state of Nebraska as the seat of its capital by neighboring land owners. Directly after the capital was fixed they were sold, in part, for well nigh half a million dollars. The money erected the capitol, insane

DEDICATE NEW UNIT OF BRYAN MEMORIAL

NEBRASKA METHODISTS NEARING VISION OF GREAT HOSPITAL IN LINCOLN WITH COMPLETION OF $150,000 ADDITIONAL WING

THE dedication of the new 50-bed wing of the Bryan Memorial hospital Thursday will mark the second milestone in the fruition of a ten year dream of Lincoln and Nebraska Methodists to locate in this city one of their idealistic memorials to their faith.

The ceremonies will take place from 2 to 4 o'clock Thursday in the hospital chapel and on the grounds. Bishop Frederick D. Leete of Omaha and Rev. Newton E. Davis, D. D., of Chicago, secretary of homes and churches of the Methodist conference, will officiate.

It was just a decade ago that an inspired group subscribed about $4,000 with which they hoped to buy a site at Thirty-third and Randolph streets. The Lincoln Methodist hospital, as they called it, was a vivid reality in their minds. However, the size of the undertaking was such that cautious and deliberate planning was necessary. In 1922, the building had yet to be started, but its cause received the necessary impetus at that time when William Jennings Bryan deeded his home and a ten-acre tract at Fiftieth and Sumner streets to the hospital.

$117,000 Subscribed.

The following year, F. E. Sala was appointed to lead a campaign for funds. Quietly and without publicity, he interviewed men of his denomination from all parts of the state, who subscribed $117,000.

With that sum, the group was ready to start, building. Many of their number had been surgeons in the army, and they suggested an institution built on the unit plan. April, 1925 saw the letting of contracts for three buildings, two units of the main structure, and a heating plant. These were completed at a cost of $182,938.24. Equipment and furnishings entailed an expenditure of an additional $53,744.57. The old Bryan home was used as a residence for nurses, making a complete 50-bed hospital. Besides the construction work, five acres of adjoining land were also purchased.

This first milestone was completed under the leadership of A. R. Talbot as president of the board. He was induced to accept this post in November, 1923, and remains in the same capacity today. The ground had been broken for the units in April, 1925, by Bishop F. T. Keeney, and the finished structures were formally dedicated in May, 1926 by Bishop H. Lester Smith of Helena, Mont. The financial burden was temporarily lifted as the result of a drive led by Col. Frank D. Eager, which netted $56,000 for the fund.

More Room Needed.

On June 6, 1926, the building was formally opened for patients. Dr. E. W. Rowe was chief of staff, as he is now, Dr. Ethel M. Laybourne was superintendent, and Myrtle Dean superintendent of nurses. In January, 1927, Miss Dean succeeded Dr. Laybourne to the general superintendency.

The original capacity was 50 beds, but almost from the first day the demand for private rooms alone exceeded the available space. This pressure led to the planning of the new building recently completed. The drive started in November of 1928 brought in $83,700, and contracts for the unit were let October 6, 1929.

This structure faces Sumner street and is to be the nucleus of the proposed main building. It adds another 50 beds capacity, besides office and laboratory space. Construction of this branch cost $128,047.25, and equipment $19,905.

In this latest addition, are twenty-five private rooms, each with its own lavatory; six 2-bed rooms, with similar facilities; and a children's department divided into one room with six beds, another with four, and an isolation room. A modern patholoical laboratory was also provided.

Vision Great Institution.

Beside these quarters for patients, space was made for classrooms and a chapel for the nurses, a room in which records might be filed and a morgue where autopsies may be held. Services are held for the nurses in the chapel every morning at 6:15 o'clock.

The new unit is only a two-story structure, but around and over it will be built some time in the future a 257 by 50 foot, six-story building. The board of directors envisions a million dollar institution of 300 beds, and will seek to effect its completion as soon as possible. What has been accomplished to date has been done on subscriptions of $398,749, exclusive of the Bryan property.

The grounds surrounding the buildings are also being given attention. Prominent among the landscaping are a number of black spruces planted by gold star mothers as memorials to the hero dead.

To date, the hospital has administered to 4,193 patients. Many of these have been unable to bear the expense and were given free treatment. Free service since the opening of the institution has cost it $23,316.20. Although this has been given irrespective of the creed of the patient, the Nebraska conference of the Methodist church has contributed $18,531 for this purpose.

Three Nurses Graduate.

Beside the training within the hospital, the student nurses, who number forty at present, are also required to take courses at Nebraska Wesleyan university. Three of the group will receive their diplomas this week. They are Edna Spake, Virginia Challis and Marie Rowaldt.

The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered this morning at Grace Methodist church by Rev. H. A. Overdeer, and the commencement exercises will be held Wednesday evening in the Wesleyan auitorium. Dr. Walter Aitken will be the principal speaker.

The board of directors of the institution is as follows:

A. R. Talbot, president, George E. Hager, vice president, A. W. Miller, secretary, Mrs. Nellie T. Magee, treasurer, Gov. A. J. Weaver, E. W. Miskell, Dr. Walter Aitken, Dr. F. F. Travis, Rev. P. H. Smith, Rev. Samuel Beechner, J. L. Claflin, C. H. Roper, Mrs. R. C. McMillan, Prof. F. A. Stuff, W. C. Blattler, Rev A. V. Hunter of Hastings, Rev. A. D. Henson of Beatrice, Mrs. Laura Pritchard of Falls City, E. J. Hested of Fairbury, Rev. A. W. Lundeen of Holdrege, Bishop F. D. Leete of Omaha, and Henry Figard of Seward.

The commencement program follows:

Sunday

Baccalaureate sermon by Rev. Harley L. Overdeer at the Grace Methodist Episcopal church at 8 p. m.

Monday.

Faculty breakfast for the graduating class.

Tuesday.

Musical and tea given by the women's board at the home of Mrs. R. C. McMillen, 2741 Stratford Drive at 2 p. m

Wednesday.

Commencement, 8 p. m. assembly room of the Bryan Memorial hospital.

Processional, Miss Eleanor Douglas.

Invocation, Rev. hilip H. Smith.

Address by Dr. J. Stanley Welch, staff doctor.

Trio, Mrs. E. A. Noble, Mrs. L. E. Hoover, and Mrs. E. L. Forney.

Address, Rev. Walter Aitken.

Presentation of class by Miss Myrtle Dean, superintendent of the hospieal and principal of the school of nursing.

Presentation of diplomas by George E. Hager, vice president of the hospital board of trustees.

Recessional, Miss Eleanor Douglas.

Reception at the nurses home, given by the wives of the members of the medical staff.

Upper center, is a full side view of the hospital, with the new unit showing at the right.

Upper right, is a front view of the new part of the institution. This will be the main entrance and houses the administration as well as bed facilities.

Below left, shows the children's department which is in the new wing. This is a six-bed room, besides which there are also a four-bed section and isolation quarters. The three parts are separated by glass partititons.

Below center, is the nurses' dining hall, also in the latest addition.

Below right, is pictured the lobby of the main entrance in the unit to be dedicated this week. The walls are of marble, and the tile floor and artistic furnishings lend both beauty and dignity to the scene.

TRINIDAD IS LAND OF THE HUMMING BIRD

BEAUTIFUL TROPICAL ISLAND, SUPPLYING THE WORLD WITH ASPHALT, HAS STRANGELY CONGLOMERATE POPULATION.

By FRANK E. GREEN.

CHRISTOPHER Columbus was in great distress on Trinity Sunday, 1498. It was the last day of July and for long hot and weary days he had been looking for land. The terrific heat had opened the seams of his six leaky ships and on none of these was there more than one cask of water remaining. There was immediate need that he should find a place where his ships might be careened and recalked and where the water casks might be refilled. So the admiral made a vow that if he should sight land on this day he would name it in honor of the Holy Trinity.

At about noon the welcome cry came from a sailor at the masthead and soon Columbus was able to discern three lofty peaks, apparently joined at the base. La Trinidad, the island was called at once, and the name has been retained to this day. Trinidad is separated from the mainland of South America by the Gulf of Paria, and at both its north and south extremities the island extends to within a few miles of the Venzuelan coast. The south entrance to the gulf is known as the Serpent's Mouth and the north entrance is called the Dragon's Mouth. Columbus entered through the former and as he did so he observed land off to the west. He had, on this third voyage of his, discovered a continent, but believing that it was but another island he called it Isla Sancta, so the earliest name of America was Holy Island.

After remaining at Trinidad a few days Columbus sailed out of the gulf through the Dragon's Mouth, seeing what he believed was another island, which he named Island of Grace. He sent men ashore to take possession of it in the name of his sovereigns, while he remained in his cabin and dreamed. In his imagination he had found the Garden of Eden, and as soon as he had reached Hispaniola he sent word to Spain to this effect. He also told of pearls and other things indicating great riches, the effect being to bring out during the following year his old friend, Alonso de Ojeda, who was accompanied by one Amerigo Vespucci, a Venetian, known as the "meat contractor." When the latter beheld the South American mainland it reminded him of Venice and he called it Venezuela, or Little Venice, which name has never been changed. And in addition, irony of fate, the continents were named for this same Venetian, who was no more accountable for giving them to the world than though he had never left his city of canals.

Land of the Humming Bird.

The aboriginal name for Trinidad, the most southerly of the West Indies, lying within ten degrees of the equator, was Iere, meaning "the land of the humming bird." And there are still many of these beautiful creatures to be seen on the island. They are of many varieties and colors, ruby, topaz, emerald, sapphire, amethyst and others, their exquisite plumage being no more attractive than the wilderness of blossoms in which they revel. For Trinidad is a land of charm, a garden of loveliness, embracing within its confines everything of beauty and appeal to be found on any of the other Indies.

Most people in the United States know of Trinidad as the land of asphalt, if they know nothing else about it. The first paving ever put down in Nebraska, aside from a few blocks of macadam, was on Douglas street between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets, in Omaha. This was in the early '80s, and the material was Trinidad asphalt. It was put down by the Barber Asphalt Co., which on Feb. 1, 1888, obtained the exclusive concession to take asphalt from the island for a period of forty-two years. It had previously, however, been obtaining the asphalt under another contract. This later franchise was just expiring when we visited the island and the question of renewing it was causing a great deal of discussion. The island government has received a tremendous revenue from the concession.

The Asphalt Lake.

We left our ship at LaBrea, at which point the so-called pitch lake is located, about a mile from the coast. As a matter of fact it isn't a lake at all, more resembling the bed of a shallow pond or swamp, which has dried up. It is about 110 acres in extent, and the surface is just as solid as the asphalt paving on which one walks in the city. A tiny railway runs out over the surface and in cars about the size of those used in coal mines the asphalt is placed when dug up, being then run into the "factory." Most of the two or three hundred workmen are negroes and they dig up the pitch with picks. It comes up easily in large hunks and these are carried and dumped into the cars. The employes make from 60 cents to $1 a day.

For sixty years asphalt has been taken from this lake and the surface has been lowered very slightly. It is believed that there is a sufficient supply, used at the same rate as in the past, to last for hundreds of years. Another and larger lake exists not far from the coast in Venezuela, but not a great deal has been taken from it as yet.

The asphalt, as it comes from the lake, is one-third water, and it is accordingly taken to the mill, where it is subjected to great heat, which drives off the moisture and leaves the material in about the same condition it is when it is spread for paving. It is then placed in barrels, in which it is shipped to all parts of the world. The barrels are sent to the dock on a cable tram. Formerly the asphalt was loaded loose in the holds of the ships, but this system has been almost entirely done away with. The barrels are put together at the factory.

A Prosperous Island.

Trinidad is apparently the most prosperous of the West Indies, and of course the revenue derived from the asphalt concession has much to do with this. There are also many highly productive oil wells, from which the government obtains an income, while its planters are as progressive and enlightened as those of any country, north or south. The highway from LaBrea to Port of Spain, the capital, is entirely paved with asphalt, the distance being sixty miles, and on either side may be seen extensive plantations of cane, coccanut and cacao.

The area of the island is 1,852 square miles and the population is 366,000 one-third of these being East Indians. These, in their picturesque costumes, may be seen along the highways in any part of the island, and in fact there are whole villages of them. For their industry they are much esteemed by the whites, but the negroes have little use for them, and for the same reason that workers of this country insist upon the exclusion of Orientals.

After the abolition of slavery it was found to be impossible to get the negroes to work on the sugar plantations, where they had been previously employed, so it was found necessary to bring in the East Indian coolies or abandon sugar culture. The importation was begun in 1839, the coolies being first indentured for three years and later the time being fixed at five years.

Orientals Indentured.

The men bound themselves to work seven and a half hours daily, six days each week, in return for which they received food, clothing, lodging, medical attendance and about thirteen cents a day each. When the period of indenture was lengthened to five years it was provided that those serving that length of time should have free passage home if they desired it. In 1917 the government of India refused to allow any more of the people of that country to go to the West Indies, but these people still constitute one-third of the population ,and, as many of the immigrants were women, their number is not decreasing, notwithstanding the fact that many have returned to their native land.

The entrance into Port of Spain from the interior is more impressive than from the sea, for as the city is located upon an almost level plain, little above the surface of the harbor, little of it can be seen from the ship except the foliage of the trees, with which the streets are lined, and an occasional church spire. Coming in from the land side, however, one passes the governor's mansion, set back in the wonderful botanical garden, one of the most gorgeously beautiful places that imagination could picture. Across the highway from the garden is Queens park, a tract of 200 acres, in which every evening hosts of men and bays may be seen engaged in games of cricket, polo and other sports. At either end of the park are fine residences and clubs, in grounds of rarest beauty, and on the side nearest the business section is the Queens Park hotel, one of the finest hostelries in the West Indies.

Finding A New Dish.

It was at this hotel that we had our first introduction to "cho cho." As it lay on the plate it had the appearance of a black piece of leather, about an inch and a half wide, a half inch thick and four inches long. Not knowing what it was, it was our intention to pass it up, but the negro waiter inquired if we were not going to try our cho cho.

"What is it?" we asked.

"Oh, it is very nice," he assured us, then instructed us in removing the wrapper with our fork. This wrapper, we discerned, was some sort of leaf. That of the banana or some such plant. The wrapper removed, we tasted.

"Why, it's tamala," we exclaimed.

With a grin the waiter admitted that that was what the Spanish called it. And he was right; it was fine tamala, and we ate all of it.

Port of Spain is one of the finest cities in the West Indies. With a population of 65,000, it is the shipping point for the entire island, as well as for the Orinoco region of Venezuela. It has an air of prosperity encountered in few cities in this part of the world, for the streets are wide and regular. They are clean, paved and well lighted, and the excellent trolley service adds to the metropolitan atmosphere. The business houses have an up to date appearance, for many of them are large and well stocked.

Two Daily Newspapers.

There are two daily newspapers in the city, and one of them, the Gazette, was founded in 1825. Its owner believes that it has been published continuously longer than any other in the western hemisphere.

Port of Spain has had two disastrous fires, the first in March, 1808, and the other in March, 1895. Following each the city was rebuilt more beautifully and substantially than before. At the time of the first conflagration all of the buildings were of the most flimsy construction, and practically all of them were destroyed, entailing a great deal of distress. When the second occurred, however, it was confined to the business section, and as those whose property was consumed were reasonable well insured, there was no suffering. Marines and sailors from a United States warship in the harbor assisted in subduing this blaze, and even better buildings than those that had been destroyed, took their places.

Near to the capital is the coolie village of St. James, in no way resembling the Chinatowns of San Francisco or New York. It is like a section from Ceylon, except that racial mixture is discernible. As a matter of fact, it is not believed that a wider conglomeration of races is to be found anywhere in the world than right here on this island. There are the East Indian Hindus, the Chinese, the African negroes, the Spaniards, who originally colonized the island, many Venezuelans, who found it convenient to come here on account of revolutionary activities in their homeland; Portuguese, French and lastly the English, who have ruled since 1797. There are also a few of the aboriginal Indians.

Racial Mixtures.

There are of course mulattoes and octoroons, and these, as well as the full blooded negroes have mated to a certain extent with the East Indians and the Chinese. But to attempt to describe the racial combinations one may run across would be absolutely futile. Harry Franck was down here a few years ago and he tells of sitting next to a woman who was apparently half Hindu and half English, who spoke Spanish, and who carried a quadroon baby with straw colored hair and almond shaped eyes. Such a combination is rather unusual, but by no means unique.

As may be imagined, religious bodies on this island are numerous, though the Church of England and the Roman Catholic church have the greatest memberships. There are many Hindu mosques. On our drive from LaBrea to Port of Spain we detoured to visit the Catholic church at the hill village of Tortuga, whose little Catholic church contains a black Virgin, symbolical of the fact that Christianity applies to all races. We also passed through St. Joseph, first capital of the island, and San Fernando, the second largest city in Trinidad.

Raleigh Adventure.

The old capital was burned to the ground by that swaggering adventurer and buccaneer, Sir Walter Raleigh, who put every member of the small garrison to the sword, because, as he said, he did not want to leave an enemy in the rear, when he went across to the mainland to ascend the Orinoco river in quest of the fabled city of Manoa, whose streets were said to be paved with gold, and where precious stones were reputed to be as plentiful as pebbles in the bed of a mountain brook. This was in 1595, and Raleigh left his ships at Trinidad, crossing the gulf in small boats, in which he ascended the mighty river. He was entranced with the colorful beauty of the country, and around every bend of the stream he expected the golden city to burst into view; but only disappointment was his lot, and when, at length his men could go no farther, he was forced to turn back and steer for England and death on the block.

But St. Joseph was rebuilt, and there years later, Charles Kingsley reveled in its wondrous beauty and was thrilled at its charm. It is a small and quiet place, and in its center is a pretty little green, shaded by giant trees. It is as restful as it is charming.

An Oriental City.

San Fernando, with a population of over 10,000, straggles over a group of wooded knolls, its main street winding along the valley at their base. High up on one of these knolls stands the Paramount hotel, English, where of course every traveler stops for refreshment, just as we did. The town is overwhelmingly East Indian, all of the shop keepers, workmen and even the magistrate being Oriental. The sight is intensely interesting. Men with their heads wound in yards of white or colored muslin and clad in the same material, wander about the streets, while women in picturesque costumes, their arms and ankles loaded with bracelets of silver, may be seen in the shops or their homes. The married ones wear great ornamental rings in their noses, while in the side of each nose is a golden button.

One of the principal products or Trinidad is cacao, and great groves of the trees which bear the pods may be seen wherever one drives. These trees do not grow to a great height, and like the coffee bush they are very sensitive. So taller and more hardy ones must be planted to shade them. The one most frequently used for this purpose is the Bois Immortel, which grows rapidly and tall. In cooler weather it drops all of its leaves, and suddenly its topmost boughs burst into blooms of the most gorgeous coral red or deep orange. And there stand the great bare, gaunt branches, holding this wondrously beautifully umbrella over the world's chocolate cup.

Source of Chocolate.

As we pass along through the grove we behold the cacao trees laden with pods about four inches long and of the circumference of a large banana. Some of them are red, some yellow and still others green. These are full of beans, or seeds, about the size of a lima bean, and when the fruit is ripe these are removed. They are allowed to sweat or ferment for a few days in boxes, and then poured out onto a floor. The pulp, known as "muck," adheres to them, and to remove this through the beans in their bare feet.. This has the desired effect, and thereafter the beans are put out into the sun to dry.

After they have been thoroughly dried they are shipped to all parts of the world and ground into the cocoa and chocolate of commerce. The natives grind the beans themselves and say that their product is much richer than that which can be purchased in the shops.

The government of Trindad is progressive in every way. Near San Fernando is located the College of Tropical Agriculture, which is carrying on a work of great interest to all that part of the world. It was founded in 1921, and has on its staff professors of entomology, mycology, bacteriology, botany, genetics, chemistry, agronomy, economics and sugar technology.

It receives some assistance from the British government, but is supported mainly by the West Indian colonies, who asked that they might be taxed for its support. Of course the Yankees could not be kept out of such an enterprise, so the Rockefeller foundation contributed $5,000 a year for five years toward the establishment of a chair of sanitation and hygiene and the Carnegie corporation gave $5,000 toward the equipment of a library.

Trinidad is a rich and beautiful island, and the English who have lived there for generations love it and have faith in it. They would not exchange their lot for that of any other people on earth. Though the Spaniards had possession from the time of the discovery in 1498, until 1797, they accomplished nothing. French refugees had flocked from the other islands, many of these establishing permanent residence and being the founders of French families now to be found there in considerable numbers.

On February 16, 1797, Admiral Harvey and Sir Ralph Abercromby sailed into the Gulf of Paria, and during that night the Spanish admiral, Don Sebastian Ruiz de Apodaca, burned his own ships to the water's edge. Two days later, without offering any serious resistance, Governor Chacon surrendered the island, which has ever since belonged to England. Nelson came into the Gulf of Paria in 1805 in pursuit of the French and Spanish fleet, but learned that he had been sent on a bad trail, so he tore back across the Atlantic, overtaking his quarry at Trafalgar, with what results all the world knows.

Farewell Trinidad.

One hates to tear oneself away from Trinidad. It comes nearer to having an American air than any other place in the south, yet it is different. All of the signs are printed in English, but it seems rather odd to see on the dead walls and elsewhere, notices to "Stick no bills." Then, all of the streets have English names, such as Piccadilly and others, and the people play cricket and drink much tea. So, after all, it is probably just the enterprise and optimism of the whites which remind the visitor of North America.

So we bid farewell to the Land of the Humming Bird, sail out through the bocas, and off for the Spanish Main.

Nebraska Pioneer Woman Wins National Prominence As Temperance Leader

A Nebraska pioneer of covered wagon days, later a teacher in the Lincoln public schools, Mrs. Louise Jones Taft of Calusa, Cal., has won national prominence by her brilliant success in temperance work on the Pacific coast. Field secretary of the National W. C. T. U. on the coast, state director of scientific temperance instruction, and vice president of the W. C. T. U. of California north, Mrs. Taft still finds time to assist largely in the management of a forty-acre fruit ranch.

Mrs. Taft, whose maiden name was Louise Elizabeth Jones, was born on a farm near Monmouth, Ill., and with her family moved to Chillicothe, Mo. In 1872, they removed to Butler county, Nebraska, in a covered wagon. The family homesteaded west of David City. A rural school education supplemented by two years in the David City schools and a year at Oskaloosa, Ia., college, during which time she made all her own expenses, enabled her at the age of eighteen to become teacher of a rural school near Rising City.

In the early nineties she entered the university at Lincoln. Her university course was shortened by the care of the elderly couple with whom she lived. Their deaths left her in poor health. During the next ten years, Mrs. Taft was subjected to five major operations.

Despite the handicap of poor health, Mrs. Taft resumed her teaching, this time in the Lincoln schools. She was at different times principal of the Whittier and Randolph schools. In 1907 she was married to William E. Taft of Kansas City. During this period she also took special courses in the university, and was active in the work of the First Christian church.

After their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Taft removed to Alameda, Cal., and while there, Mrs. Taft took religious study courses in Berkeley Bible seminary and in Pacific Theological seminary. For five years she was first state superintendent of Sunday schools for the Christian churches of California. In this period, her church ordained her into the ministry.

In 1910 the Tafts moved onto their fruit ranch near Calusa. It was here that Mrs. Taft became active in temperance work. For many years she was president of the Calusa W. C. T. U. and also the county organization. In 1923 she was elected state director of scientific temperance instruction by the W. C. T. U. of California north. In 1926 she was made national field secretary of the W. C. T. U. with special work on the Pacific coast.

In these different capacities, Mrs. Taft has had opportunity to present her work before many county, district and state conventions and institutes in the interest of the teaching profession. She has lectured in Washington, Nevada, and Oregon, and was the National W. C. T. U.'s special representative to the N. E. A. in Seattle in 1927.

Lincoln Boys Anxiously Waiting for Opening of Camp Strader on June 12

One of the most important improvements that the boys will find when Camp Strader opens next month will be the new headquarters building shown above. It was donated by the Lincoln Optimist club, and was built at a cost of about $1,000. It includes office space, hospital unit, quarters for the staff, and the store. It is equipped with electricity, telephone, modern toilets, and hot and cold running water.

"Andy" and his boys are just about ready to hit the trail again. The call of the wild, vigorous out-of-doors, the thrill of the old swimmin' hole, and all the adventure and beauty of life next to nature are beckoning them, and they've set their eyes on Camp Strader.

On June 12, the Y. M. C. A. will open its eighteenth camp in as many years. The old site, bigger and better, at Crete has been prepared, and the program is all drawn. Recent floods from the Blue river covered the grounds for a short time, but have receded, leaving the rough spots evened up and doing no damage.

Andy's Sixteenth Year..

O. B. Anderson, just "Andy" if you please, will be in charge of his sixteenth consecutive year. He recalls vividly how, in those early years, he and a handful of daring youngsters would brave mud and genuine wilderness, not to mention mosquitos and the like. Today, the camp has ten cabins accommodating 80 boys and leaders, and a headquarters building in which about five of the staff have their bunks.

The season has been divided into eight sections this year as follows:

June 12-21—Section I.
June 24-July 3—Section II.
July 3-12—Section III.
July 15-24—Section IV.
July 24-Aug. 2—Section V.
Aug. 4-9—Junior camp.
Aug. 11-16—Junior camp.
Aug. 18-23—County camp.

The first group is to be made up largely of the older boys, in order to give them a chance to get in a little fun before taking a summer job in the city. Only youngsters over 12 to be permitted in any of the first five sections. The two following periods will accommodate kids under that limit, and the last five days will be devoted particularly to boys in Lancaster county outside of the city. However, boys outside of the city may also attend as many of the other sections as they please.

Three New Cabins.

Camp Strader is a different place this year. There are three new cabins which were only in the process of construction last year, three new tennis courts, and a headquarters building that the local Optimist club has donated. The latter structure contains the office, store, hospital unit and sleeping quarters for the staff and visitors. It was built at a cost of about $1,000. It is complete with hot and cold running water, elecricity and telephone.

Besides Andy, Robert Hill, Bill Crooks, James Dille and Bill Bockes will be among the camp leaders. Hill, who is being graduated from the university this spring, will have charge of the store and other business details. Crooks, also a university man, will teach handicraft; Dille, a letterman in swimming at the university, will supervse his specialty; and Bockes will be among the several junior leaders who remain yet to be picked. And, of course, Charles Smith, will return as chef.

All Boys Welcome.

Hervey Smith, secretary of boys' work at the "Y," will handle the local promotion activities, and Paul Lamb will rule over registration and transportation.

The camp is open to all boys, regardless of membership in the "Y" or race. Their applications will be received at the Y. M. C. A. building at Thirteenth and P streets, where they will receive all the necessary information regarding the camp.

In preparation for the camp, a three-day conference of lay and ministerial leaders will discuss "Character Values in Camping" June 3, 4 and 5. The meeting is being sponsored by the Lincoln Ministerial association, and the Y. M. C. A. is co-operating in the work. John Fuhrer of St. Louis, formerly physical director of the local "Y," will lead the symposium.

Only one more preliminary will be necessary before the boys "leave it all behind." The purpose of the camp is to promote health. Therefore, the directors must know in what condition the young fellows are when they reach Strader Each one will be submitted to a physical examination before leaving the city.

But once on the virgin forty-acre tract that will temporarily be their home, here's the kind of a day of fun and education that the boys will have:

6:45—Reveille, exercises and dip.
7:30—Flag raising and breakfast.
8:00—Camp duties.
8:45—Cabin inspection.
9:00—Bible study and discussion.
9:30—Athletic sports and campcraft.
11:00—Swimming.
12:00—Dinner.
1:00—Rest hour, reading, letter writing, leaders' meeting.
2:00—Projects in camp craft, hiking, archery, nature study, etc.
3:00—Athletics, games.
4:30—Swimming and aquatics.
6:00—Flag lowering and supper.
7:00—Canoeing, games.
8:15—Campfire program.
9:45—Taps. All quiet for 9 hours sleep.

The "Singing Camp."

Seven boys and one junior leader will occupy a cabin. Thorough provision has been made for their health and entertainment. The camp has a modern water system with toilets and showers, the dining hall is fly-proof, electric refrigeration insures safety for all food, and a sheltered wigwam defies the elements when the witching campfire hour nears.

Camp wouldn't be worthy of the name without the evening fire. Music and stories and games hold sway, and a "feller" hates to leave when the embers begin to die. "Strader has come to be known as a singing camp," says Hervey Smith. Nearly all of the songs used have been written at one of the previous sessions here. Gold, silver and bronze medals are given to the honor campers at each period by Charles W. Fleming.

The boys will be strictly under the honor system when it comes to behavior. No one will be permitted to leave the camp without permission, swimming will be confined to the supervised periods, and use of tobacco or firearms is prohibited.

The camping committee of the Y. M. C. A. is composed of Charles Strader, chairman, Fred Groth, Rev. F. F. Travis, John Agee, Charles N. Cadwallader, Alex Keriakades, George A. Kurk, K. B. Cary, Earl Middlekauff and L. J. Davis.

How Homeseekers Viewed East Nebraska In Seventies

asylum, state university. Hotels, banks, stores, shops, churches, school houses and dwellings, spring up simultaneously. The business places further west will naturally be branches from central establishments in Lincoln. The growth of Lincoln is natural and healthy."

'Outpost of Lincoln.'

After this glowing tribute to Lincoln it is not surprising to read that Crete "is a sort of western outpost of Lincoln." It is stated, however, that "though the birth of Crete may be said to date from 1871, it is already quite an important distributing point for lumber, coal and other staple supplies."

The view at Crete shows a few frame buildings planked down in the middle of practically nothing with the Blue river in the background. The most pretentious building is an academy, "the corner stone of which was laid in June, 1871, by a delegation from the Congregational convention, then sitting in Lincoln, and who came to Crete in the first passenger train thither." The residence of Colonel Doane, railroad superintendent for whom this academy was named later, also is shown in the background.

There are numerous views of scenes near Crete. In one, "Looking Down the Big Blue," a train is shown and the text explains "Less than a year ago the locomotive first swept along there, but it has already started villages for a hundred miles further west.

Indians To Disband.

"The Beatrice branch was completed near the end of the year 1871, and so was the best of Christmas gifts to that village, which had long sat isolated, watching for the pioneer locomotive. This branch will grow southward, striking through the Otoe reservation; for, as those Indians become more civilized, they will petition congress to abolish their tribal organization, as some Wisconsin tribes did last year."

Elsewhere a reference is made to the native Americans as follows: "Nearly eight years ago, one day in August, 1864, the valley of the West Blue, and every hamlet north and south of it in all that broad region between the Platte river and the Republican, were the scenes of Indian ambush and massacre. Many solitary individuals, and even small parties were killed, others were carried captive. The Red Men were emboldened to this attack by the Civil war then raging, and provoked to it by the spread of white settlements. But before the sun set on that day, convinced that their attempt was all in vain, they fled, and have never since made any organized assault in Nebraska. With the Indian has gone his giant game, the buffalo, and the buffalo grass. The vanishing of the grass some attribute to the increasing rain, as the buffalo variety thrives best in the most arid regions. But others say that buffalo grass, growing in patches, is crowded out by the tame grasses, self-sown between and overshadowing them."

Seward, the writer declares, was much talked of for the seat of the capital of Nebraska. Of a view looking northwest from Seward he writes, "Notice the uplands in thick folded ranges dove-tailed into one another. In the rank herbage the cattle either stand despairing of making any impression on it, or lie down unable to bear the weight of their own fat. The more the river winds, the longer are the lines of wood, and the more 'ox-bows,' where, when fences are deemed necessary, a rod of fence will enclose an acre of land."

Well Sweep Pictured.

"Sod House and Prairie, With Cattle, Near Waverly," is another view. Besides the sod house, an unusual article in this drawing is the New England well-sweep, which it is admitted was not the common Nebraska style. The writer also tells that emigrants do not ordinarily have camp fires as depicted but instead "build their fires in a hole cut through the greensward and hang their kettles on a bar stretched from sod to sod, unless their fuel is buffalo chips."

The most thriving village depicted in the pamphlet is Pleasant Hill in Saline county. It is described as "one of those magic villages which the extension of the railroad causes to grow up as it were in a night. Here are five and twenty roofs where there were lately none —not even the dug-out, which is a hole in the ground with a roof over it."

Describing Salt creek at Ashland the pamphlet says that the village is such as you would expect from the $15,000 school house which is shown in the illustration. "Two churches are in building, and the court house, newspaper, and bank are more than a year old. The mill, near which the artist sketched obtains never failing water power by a short and low dam. None of the Nebraska views are better worth painting than those here, and no lands are more fertile. In some fields last year the yield of corn was nearer a hundred than ninety bushels on a single acre, while more than 1100 kernels grew on a single ear."

Herd Law Praised.

The "Wauhoo valley" north of Ashland is depicted in another illustration. Explaining the fence portrayed there the writer says it was built before the herd-law era.

"It has often been proved to be cheaper to fence cattle in than out —or to fence cattle with dogs and boys, by day, and corrals by night, than to fence stock by sawed boards and live hedges," the pamphlet declares in telling of the benefits of the herd law. "It was shown some years ago, in a report to the legislature of Illinois, that fences in that state had cost more than houses. Yet change is difficult. A new country is the place to realize a new idea. Hence Nebraska is the first state to fence cattle in instead of out, on a grand scale. The experiment is carried out by the herd law which makes every man liable for the damage done by his cattle, even in unfenced fields, and allows the cattle to be seized as security for indemnity."

"A life-like presentative of a farmer breaking new prairie 10 miles east of Lincoln" is pictured and in describing farming conditions to the Easterners who were being urged to come to the west, the pamphlet reads, "The sods turn such a somersault that they lie flat as a plank walk, and black as a pitch pavement. Some plowmen prefer to see them kink. The wave of the prairie, sweeping off in more billows than we can count is true to nature. Corn is dropped and covered by every third furrow, or in holes made with an axe or spade in the turned sod, or in harrowed soil, with a corn planter."

Told of Huge Profit.

Possibility of huge returns are held out. "Between Turkey creek and the neighboring station, Dorchester, is the farm of Edward Jones, which, he boasts, paid for itself by its produce the first year," the pamphlet points out. "His crop of corn in 1871, according to his estimate, amounted to forty-three bushels per acre, worth, even at 25 cents a bushel, $10.75, which is thirty cents more than the cash price of his land."

The railroad gave the following information about the quantity of land it had for sale and the price per acre:

County—	No. acres	Price per A.
Lancaster	140,000	$4 to $20
Cass	37,000	$8 to $12
Saline	105,000	$4 to $18
Gage	20,000	$5 to $ 9
Otoe	12,000	$7 to $10
Seward	130,000	$4 to $10
Jefferson	30,000	$5 to $ 8
Saunders	28,000	$3 to $ 8
Fillmore	117,000	$5 to $11
York	140,000	$4 to $10
Polk	3,000	$4 to $ 6
Clay	90,000	$4 to $10
Nuckolls	6,000	$4 to $ 9
Adams	55,000	$2 to $ 8
Hamilton	20,000	$4 to $ 8
Kearney	37,000	$2 to $ 6

Something of what this cheap land meant to the nation—opportunity to those from the east to gain a home of their home and to those in the west the means of building an empire—is gleaned in the following description which accompanies the drawing of a prairie schooner on the West Blue, west of Camden.

"The nearest view of a 'prairie schooner—its canvas top a shelter alike from sun by day and from dews by night for wife and wee ones, while the stalwart husband, with his dog, travels on foot. His horses are headed up the river along which he will find the poor man's paradise, in the form of a homestead, which all who pass that way after him will wish they had come soon enough to make their own.

"Few people realize how fast the desirable lands of the nation are being absorbed, either by homesteaders or pre-emptors. The number in these classes who, before 1872, had filed their claims in the United States land office at Lincoln alone, which is one of five in Nebraska, was 22,181, namely: 9,822 homesteaders and 12,359 pre-emptors. But their claims averaging about 120 acres apiece, or in the aggregation two and two-thirds millions, equal the whole arable acreage of Scotland, and about half that of Egypt when it was the granary of imperial Rome."

Doane College Notes

The annual spring picnic of the Doane chapter (Gamma) of Pi Kappa Delta, the national forensic fraternity, was held up the river near Oakwood lodge on Tuesday evening, May 20. The new president of the chapter is Kenneth W. Heyboe, '31.

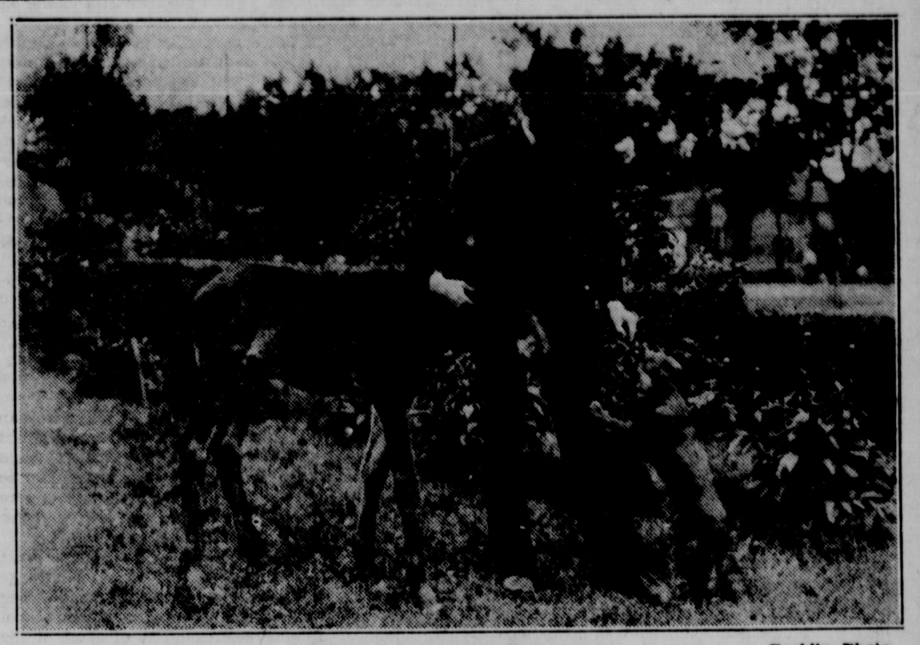

Dean A. G. Heyhoe gave the baccalaureate sermon before the graduating class of the Rokeby high school at Rokeby, Sunday evening, May 18.

Among the Doane graduates who have been teaching the past year and are changing their location for next year are Miss Lorna Davis, '29, Grand Island, who is leaving Randolph, Ia., to take the position of instructor in public school music at Fairmont; Miss Leone Westover, '28, Grand Island, who is leaving Dwight to take a position as instructor in English at Sterling; and G. W. Baldwin, '28, who goes from Newman Grove to Schuyler as director of athletics for men.

Carl J. Wardow, '28 who has been teaching in the high school at Naperville, Ill., has been promoted to the position of dean of boys in the Naperville junior high school for the coming year, with a considerable increase of salary. Mr. Warkow will be studying this summer at the University of Iowa in preparation for the administrative work of his new position.

Regular advanced work of the college courses was practically completed the past week. The coming week, May 26 to 30, will be devoted to semester examinations, and exercises of commencement week will begin at 9:30 Friday morning, May 30. All indications point to a large attendance of both the Gates and Doane alumni.

Father O'Connor Gives Protection to Two Friendly Orphans, Pup and Colt

—Bucklin Photo.

It's a strange assortment of orphans that Father D. B. O'Connor of St. Patrick's church in Havelock, has in his charge, and this is the way it happened.

About a year ago, or perhaps not quite that long, a dog belonging to Father O'Connor died, and left seven little puppies. Six of the little fellows died leaving one very warbly and lonely little dog. Father O'Connor took charge and fed the pup a combination of sweetened milk and water every hour or so until the dog was able to lap up a little milk on his own accord.

Being successful with Fancy, as the dog is called, Father O'Connor wasn't so disheartened as he might have been when a colt's mother died, and left with him another orphan. The same food formula was tried on the colt with equal success.

So far the colt hasn't a name. That's a distinction that will come when race track training begins. However she must be called something and so Father O'Connor has dubbed her "Neny," just a sort of makeshift until the colt is old enough to carry around a name worth of her aristocracy.

And so, Fancy, the dog, and Neny, the colt, are fast friends, although they may be rivals for Father O'Connor's affection. He tries to be impartial, and no doubt he is, judging from the picture.

PIRATES AHOY! - - By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

THE PIRATE CITY IS ENGULFED

Port Royal, Jamaica, was one of the wealthiest and wickedest cities in history. Thomas Babington Macaulay called it "the richest city in the world." It was, for generations, the capital of the buccaneers of the western world. Thence sailed most of the great expeditions of organized pirates for the sack of the rich cities of the Spanish Main, and thither returned the spoilers, laden with spoil.

The loot brought in by the pirates was spent with wanton prodigality in the shops and bazaars of Port Royal. The scale of living predominating was marked by the utmost extravagance. The streets and taverns of the city were constantly filled with swaggering pirates, recently back from the Main or just in from a cruise, tossing golden doubloons and pieces of eight on the tables in payment for drinks. The women who prey upon such hard livers and loose spenders were more numerous in Port Royal than they ever were in ancient Rome.

The government that centered at Port Royal was corrupt beyond any modern conception of corruption. The governors of Jamaica were representatives of the British Crown, yet they openly sold protection of their batteries and harbor to pirates who were legally subject to hanging by any government anywhere. These Jamaica governors shared the spoil the pirates brought in, and there was no secret about any of their corrupt transactions. Port Royal was rolling in stolen gold.

And one day, in the height of the city's shameful prosperity, it was swallowed up by the sea.

I am surprised that the story is not more widely used by evangelists and reformers.

There are only a few disasters in history that compare in extent and tragedy with the destruction of Port Royal. The Tokio earthquake and the burial of Pompeii and Herculaneum by Vesuvius perhaps come closest to matching the Port Royal disaster, yet neither of these quite measures up in horror and completeness to the Port Royal catastrophe. Tokio was shaken down and Pompeii was covered up, but in both cases there were many survivors. Port Royal slid into the sea, with practically no survivors. Hardly a trace of the city remained.

It happened on June 7, 1692. That was eleven years after Morgan had sailed from Port Royal to sack Panama.

Sir Hans Sloane, a great naturalist, witnessed the destruction of the city, and wrote an account of what he saw. Sloane had made an intensive study of the plants of Jamaica. He was living in Jamaica temporarily, and was one of the few citizens of the town not interested, directly or indirectly, in piracy.

The day, according to those who survived the disaster, was very hot and very calm. The customary morning coolness was lacking at dawn. There seemed to be no breath of air stirring. The ocean was smooth as glass.

It was noticed by many that the noises of insects, always loud and strident in Jamaica, were lacking on that day. The quiet was positively oppressive, as was the sultry heat.

There was not a cloud in the sky. Some of the citizens remarked that the sea water, usually so clear, was cloudy.

Sir Hans Sloane was host to a dozen intellectuals, scientists and members of the legislature that morning. Sir Hans was soon to sail for England wtih much new botanical material, and his friends were enjoying talking over matters of mutual interest and asking him to remember them to mutual friends in England. The president of the council was there, and all were drinking punch.

The rector of the council, a minister who served as official chaplain, was passing, and was asked to come inside to take refuge from the beastly weather. The rector replied that he had been invited to dine at Captain Ruden's home. Sir Hans, who liked to converse with the minister, almost dragged the good man in out of the street, and sent a messenger to tell the captain that the rector would not be able to come for dinner.

The scene was one of terror and catastrophe.

The rector, who had his hands full trying to save souls in the wicked city of pirates, joined the jolly company for conversation and punch, and there was much talk of the impending departure of Sir Hans. The party sat about, waiting for a bit of a breeze, smoking and drinking, with long intervals of restful silence between conversations.

The floor began to heave under them, and some of the company felt that they had taken a bit too much wine. There was consternation among the drinkers. The governor said, "It is only an earthquake. I've seen many of them come and go. Don't be frightened. It will be over in a few minutes."

While he yet spoke, the building came crashing down, and a roof timber killed the governor. Several others also were crushed to death. Four or five, including the rector and the scientist, escaped into the street.

The little party saw that the buildings about them were falling, and that many persons were being killed. They set off at a run for Fort Henry Morgan, built by the notorious pirate outside the town. The fort was a very substantial stone structure, and was so far from other buildings that it looked safe. On the way, the rector learned that the Ruden home, where he had promised to dine, had fallen in at the first shock, killing all within.

While the party was running todward the fort they saw a great fissure upon up in front of them, directly across the street, and swallow a running crowd that was also hastening toward the fort. The scientist and the minister made their way at right angles to the fissure, and finally arrived at the fort.

Standing upon the battlements of the fort, which did not budge, the observers watched the disaster develop. The sea was boiling and tossing, covered with foam, and was flooding the base of the fortifications. Toward the city, the scene was one of terror and catastrophe. They saw the cemetery, on a high hill overlooking the harbor, crumble like a stale cake under pressure, and open up in a dozen deep ravines. The turbulent ocean rushed in and washed the whole cemetery out to sea.

The harbor, on which, a half hour previously, these men had seen a

Covered Wagon Centennial Celebration Holds Many Rich Memories for Nebraska

Landmarks on the old Oregon Trail, over which the first wagon started April 10, 1830, and whose one hundredth anniversary is being celebrated this year by the Covered Wagon Centennial, are: 1. Rebecca Winters grave at Scottsbluff. 2. Ezra Meeker at Chimney Rock, south of Bayard. 3. Mitchell Pass monument. 4. Meridian monument, two miles north of Hebron. 5. Grave of Rachel Patterson in cemetery at Ash Hollow, across the river from Lewellen.

To commemorate tse lives and deeds of the heroic pioneers who won and held the West, establishing American civilization across the continent, President Hoover has proclaimed the celebration of a Covered Wagon Centennial. April 10, 1830, marked the start of the first wagon train over the Old Oregon Trail. A hundred years ago the pioneers began leaving their eastern homes to trek across the continent, seeking new homes in the west.

So much has been acomplished in this century of settlement. Nebraska is now a state sixty-three years old and pays due homage to the old trail that brought so many of its settlers. Along this trail, which enters Nebraska at the southeast corner of Jefferson county, some sixty-five markers have been erected in this state. From Jefferson county the trail went west along the Little Blue four miles north of Hebron, near which is erected a stone marker. It followed along to the southwest of Hastings, north of Kenesaw and on to Fort Kearney. The site of this fort has recently been taken over by the state to be made into a park.

Some of the hardest fighting with the Indians took place at Plum Creek. Fort. McPherson, just southeast of the present national cemetery across the river from Maxwell, was another milestone for the great procession. Ash Hollow, across the river and east from Lewellen, also holds historical memories. As one approaches from the north there is, on the right in the little cemetery, the grave of Rachel Patterson, a '49'-er, whose original grave stone now rests beside a beautiful Oregon Trail marker.

A branch of the trail went along the north side of the river, passed Court House and Jail Rocks, south of Bridgeport, where it joined the trail made by those who had gone by way of Ash Hollow. Picturesque Chimmney Rock, so famous in trail days, is just south of Bayard. These great landmarks could be seen for days enroute, for it must be remembered that Oregon Trail caravans moved only about a dozen miles a day.

Scottsbluff was the next great landmark and the old trail here made its way through Mitchell Pass where so many thousands of wheels cut the gulch so deep that only the bare tops of the wagons might be seen by an observer a short distance away. It was at this point that the path left the state and crossed over into Wyoming enroute to Fort Laramie.

An interesting character of these early days was Ezra Meeker who made the long journey in 1852 as a pioneer to Oregon. In 1906 he retraced his steps along the trail with an ox-team, automobile and airplane, and urged the present generation to recognize the historical significance of the old trail, as well as erecting markers himself along the way. His picture is shown above in front of Chimney Rock, taken on his return trip in 1906.

Twenty thousand men, women and children lost their lives along this trail, but only one marked grave has been found. This is the grave of Rebecca Winters at Scottsbluff. It was marked with her name and the date, 1852, on a wagon tire where it remains to this day. In 1899 when a party of engineers were laying out the roadbed for the railroad, they retraced their steps for over a mile in order not to have the road cross the grave. The picture is shown above as the grave has been marke off alongside of the tracks.

So one can follow the trail across Nebraska entering from the southeast, along the Platte river and out of the state near Scottsbluff. Today highways connect all parts of the which are the historical markers, which may be viewed along the road from comfortable touring cars.

"CENSUS BURDENS."

Part of the satisfaction which Lancaster county citizens naturally would derive from the showing in the 1930 census figures of a population in excess of 100,000 people is offset by the knowledge it will furnish the basis for a "salary raid" upon the public treasury.

It is not that the taxpayers object to paying for progress, because they do not. What arouses their indignation is the fact that the special legislation which will saddle additional burdens upon them was intended to apply solely to Douglas county. Now what Lancaster's neighbors to the East want to pay their public servants is strictly their own business. The taxpayers of Douglas county are the ones who must reach down into their jeans for the cash. But when the Douglas county delegation rams through a series of "salary hikes" for the benefit of its over worked officials, the effects of that legislation should have been confined solely to that county.

If the Lancaster county board decides to put the salary schedules for counties with a population of over 100,000 into effect, six officials will draw an additional $5,400 from the public till each year. In addition two new offices will be created—a public defender and a jury commissioner, costing an additional $4,600. So automatically the salary burden for government in Lancaster county is increased $11,000 annually simply because the census reveals we have a few hundred in excess of 100,000 people instead of a few thousand less than that figure. Does anyone pretend to believe that the duties and responsibilities of the public officials have increased sufficiently to justify such action? Would even those who may benefit by reason of it suggest their labors have increased to such a degree in the last twelve months that the raises are merited? Or must they, along with the rest of us conclude that their good fortune must be charged to a big-hearted legislature?

The utter viciousness and incompetency which has characterized legislative action with respect to salary matters can be set forth in another fashion.

Had the Lancaster county population been 140,000, instead of 100,305, we would have had six probation officers upon our hands with nothing for them to do. That is some more of the Douglas county legislation to provide jobs for the deserving. It likewise would discover the salaries of other officials measureably increased. So long as the suffering taxpayers of Douglas county want to send legislators to Lincoln to spend their time in securing legislative approval for the creation of more public jobs no one here or elsewhere in the state should complain. But the taxpayer outside of Douglas does have a right to demand that hereafter such measures shall be so worded that it will not reach into their pocketbooks along with submissive and generous property owners of that county.

Under the terms of the law the Lancaster county surveyor will jump from $2,000 a year to $3,500; the sheriff from $2,500 to $4,000; the assessor from $1,800 to $3,000 and the three members of the county board of commisisoners from $2,100 to $2,500 each. Lancaster county will also be honored with a new officer—a public defender—drawing $3,600 a year, and a second new jobholder—a jury commissioner, entitled to draw $1,000 annually. With reference to the public defender and its need, there is the testimony of the present county attorney that in the four years he has held office, the total outlay for such a purpose—that is legal counsel for those unable to hire attorneys—has not exceeded $1,500. In other words it has been less than half as much in four years as it is now proposed shall be paid annually.

If the Lancaster county board is mindful of the interests of the taxpayers it will proceed slowly in putting these new salary schedules in effect. This is not a time for extravagance. Business and industry are carrying as heavy a load as they can pull. The farmer has had all of the burdens he can shoulder.

Perhaps the work of certain county officials has increased to such an extent that a raise is justified. But it would be far more decent and public spirited if those affected would wait until next January when another legislature will convene before raising the issue of salary matters. There will be time then to go into this problem to work out a program of just and proper compensation. To grab it now, simply because legislation which Douglas county put through enables them to, will not raise them in the estimation and affection of the people they serve.

FIRST AMERICAN HEREDITARY SOCIETY.

The Nebraska Grand Army of the Republic at its annual encampment in McCook adopted a resolution favoring granting permission to the Sons of Union Veterans and members of the Women's Relief corps to wear the bronze button, which is the insignia of the Grand Army, thus to a certain extent making the honor hereditary. Of course there will be none to object to this, but the incident recalls the organization of the Society of the Cincinnati, 157 years ago, on May 13, 1783, and the bitter antagonism which it encountered, because of the fact that membership was made hereditary.

The Cincinnati was made up of officers of the Continental army and membership was to descend to male heirs of those who were originally on its roster. If there should be no male heirs, membership might go to collateral heirs. George Washington was the first president of the society and served until his death, but despite this fact it was unpopular from the beginning and met with strenuous opposition. As conservative as was Benjamin Franklin he questioned the usefulness of the organization, which was bitterly assailed by Samuel Adams, John Adams, Thomas Jefferson and other leaders.

The opponents of the society claimed to see in it the beginning of an hereditary aristocracy and it was also denounced as an armed league to seize all of the military and civic offices of the new republic. Resolutions antagonistic to it were adopted by the legislature of Massachusetts, and it met with opposition on all hands. At length the organization ceased to exist, but after a number of years it was revived when LaFayette visited this country, he having been one of the original members. It was long years, however, before all of the original state organizations were revived, and they never became as active as their antagonists had feared. The Cincinnati still exists, but it is moribund and is seldom heard of.

As the nation has expanded in population, wealth, intelligence, strength and influence, those things which were apt to fright its founders appear as jack-o'lanterns, and we of the present day wonder how anyone ever could have feared them. We now have the Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution, Society of Mayflower Descendants and perhaps others in which eligibility to membership depends upon who one's ancestors might have been, but nobody fears them. In fact their intentions are regarded as wholly patriotic, even though some may disagree with some of them in some matters.

The nation is amply able to take care of itself nowadays, but during the time that those who founded it still lived they could afford to take no chances.

TRAINING SCHOOLS FOR SPEEDERS.

Only a few nights ago an automobile in which two young men and two girls were riding whizzed down South Sixteenth strete at a speed of not less than forty miles an hour. Had the driver been compelled to stop at the intersection to permit traffic to cross it would have been humanly impossible for him to have averted an accident. Fortunately the streets were deserted, although the hour was not late, and the speed-crazed autoist escaped a crash.

Incidents of this character are undoubtedly what Mayor Don L. Love had in mind when he said he was opposed to the arterial highway system. They have in some cases seemingly proved a training school for speeders. Innumerable examples of abuse of the privileges of arterial streets are to be seen by anyone who take the trouble to study automobile traffic.

Yet the supreme court of Nebraska has definitely decided an arterial highway confers no special privileges upon an automobile driver. He is under the same necessities for caution, prudence and care that he is when driving along the unmarked street. When approaching an intersection he must exercise the same discretion he is expected to show on any street. The trouble has been that he has thought he had an absolute right of way and those seeking to enter or to cross an arterial did so at their peril.

If all people could be depended upon to use ordinary horse sense the speed limit on arterial highways could be safely increased. There are times when a higher speed than the law permits would not be dangerous. But experience has demonstrated a certain portion of the public will take advantage of any higher speed concession and endanger lives. Mayor Love is on sound ground when he voices disapproval of raising the maximum. It is high enough to enable people to reach their destinations in a short time. No situation has arisen to require a change. It should be the objective of all traffic regulations to safeguard life.

ALONG THE CHISHOLM TRAIL.

There is a concession to the romantic side of the American people in the proposal to perpetuate the famous Chisholm trail through the construction of a broad paved highway from South Texas to Abilene, Kansas. Already a portion of the highway has been built and it seems probable that the remaining links will receive approval. For markers the highway commissions will erect the painted head of a longhorn steer.

Slightly more than a half century ago the Chisholm trail echoed to the hoofbeats of thousands of head of longhorns. When the Union Pacific built stockyards at Abilene Kansas, it contracted with Jesse Chisholm to plow a furrow across a part of Kansas and part of Indian territory to serve as a marker for the cowboys who brought thousands of head of cattle northward to the market. From all parts of the Texas range these cattle converged upon Chisholm trail, lifting mighty clouds of dust to the skies as they slowly moved forward. It was a dramatic spectacle which thrilled the spectator and which furnished the theme for some of the epic stories of the old West.

In later years the Chisholm trail led into Nebraska when the sandhill range opened up. From Abilene it wound north and west to Ogallala, and then on to the Yellowstone and finally to Canada.

Only the autoist gifted with facile imagination, whirling along that broad pavement, calls to mind the old scenes which were a part of the Chisholm trail.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS.

A reader of this newspaper sends it a group of camera views in support of his criticism that highways and outlying stretches of land near Lincoln are being disfigured because people persist in dumping garbage upon them.

Unfortunately the charge is all too true. Several of the roads leading into Lincoln present an unsightly appearance because tin cans and other refuse have been thrown upon them. This unlicensed dumping of garbage occurs outside the city limits so that it cannot be reached through ordinance. Unless civic pride can be appealed to there seems to be no way to prevent the highways from being marred.

But it should be remembered by those who have utilized a part of the highway for garbage disposal that their actions place the entire community in an unfavorable light. First impressions of the stranger visiting a new city are lasting and it cannot fail to react upon a community when the first sight to greet the eyes are piles of rubbish. The city has provided dumping grounds advantageously located where garbage can be hauled and unloaded. There is no reason why thoughtless and indifferent people should advertise Lincoln unfavorably.

GROWING LINCOLN.

The first of the cities in the same agricultural region as Lincoln to report its figures on population is Topeka. There is a large degree of similarity between the two communities. Topeka reports a gain of 13,983 for a total of 64,005 or an increase of 28 per cent in ten years. Including suburban territory Topeka, can claim a population of 70,048.

Lincoln steps ahead of her sister capitol, with 75,919 for the incorporated city, and a total of 79,572 for the greater city including Havelock, which has already approved annexation, but action for which was taken too late to be counted in the census. That is an increase of 20,971 in the 10 year period, or 38 per cent, the greatest development which has taken place in the history of Lincoln, and 10 per cent larger than in a neighboring community of very similar characteristics.

It is a foregone conclusion that within the next decade Lincoln has an excellent chance to realize her objective of 100,000 people. The figures for 1930 do not represent her real population for the major portion of the year because several thousand students attending the state university, Wesleyan, Cotner, and Union colleges are not included in the compilations although they spend nine months of the year here.

Lincoln is blessed with excellent transportation facilities. She has splendid highways, and ample railroads. There are few communities in the United States where the appeal of education is stronger. Her public school system is one of the best. The state university has passed through an era of remarkable development and will continue to expand. She has four other colleges which have been going ahead. In a larger sense the beautiful residential features of Lincoln have a strong appeal to the home builder.

Examining into the factors which have contributed to Lincoln's growth in recent years there is every reason to anticipate continuance of it.

Red Cagle Has Deceived Us!

BY WILL ROGERS

He was thinking of that schoolman.

Well all I know is what I read in the papers. The last week or so we did have some outside devilment to take our minds off the usual routine. The most diverting instance was the secret service discovering the fact years after it had happened that our great football player, Red (Christian) Cagle had grabbed a wife under his arm and streaked through the whole army regulations for a justice of the peace. This event took place years ago, in fact the year that Dewey entered Manila, but the army has been all this time finding it out. In fact they dident want to find it out till after the football season was over. Because with Red off their football team, they would have looked about like Harvard, or Yale or Princeton, or some of those other second division teams. Notre Dame would have sent in Saint Mary's against 'em.

Seems that Red was down home on a vacation one time, and he run onto a might pretty girl. He had his cape thrown back so the red lining showed, and to this southern bell it looked like General Lee. Red figured out there wasent much else to do on a vacation, so he thought he better marry her. He dident want to go away and leave her at the perils of those other old boys down in the cane breaks. He dident know that when you went to West Point you wasent supposed to be accompanied by a marriage certificate.

Headed For the Wife.

But the army dont want you to have any entangling alliances. They figure it gets your mind off football if you have a wife to worry about. They dont care how much you worry about single girls. You can keep your mind on some little dame down the Hudson that makes the "Hops" every time the gates are left open, but they dont want you to have your mind as far away as Louisana.

Well this marriage seemed to just practically ruin him. Up to then he had been a substitute on the plebes team, and had never been between the goal post in his life. But after he came back from that vactation why he went plum loco. There just wasent any controlling him. He would no more than get his fists on a football than he would light out, and run plum off with it. Every time they would hand him the ball he would start for Louisana to show it to his wife.

The army hadent seen any such foolishness as this. It was against all army regulations. They do everything by orders. You breathe by manual, you sleep by tactics, and eat by regulations. Well they knew there was something the matter with this fellow because he was so different from other inmates. Instead of making just a gain, he would make a touchdown.

Then they commenced advertising him. They said here is a guy that will get us some money at the gate. He was Red headed; that made him pick up where Red Grange left off. So the first thing we knew he was better known than the whole general staff. The army had a war college, but nobody knew where it was. But every ten year old child could tell you where Red Cagle was playing every Saturday. Why when the Army played Notre Dame in New York as many people come to see Red, as did to see Notre Dame play football.

A Drawing Card.

The Army had a drawing card. Nobody knew who the secretary of war was, but immigrants could tell you what Red did against Harvard. You could have left it to a vote of the entire U. S., who they wanted to see carry the ball, Cagle or Coolidge, and Red would have won. The navy quit playing the army until Red was outlawed by the statue of limitations. They said "We will play the army but we wont play Cagle." It looked like for awhile it would be Civil war between the two branches of our service. They was going to quit playing football and go to fighting. It looked bad. Congressmen and senators were losing their tickets they were cadging for the game.

Even the president says boys will you please play. But the navy says, "No, not while that fellow is going against all the formula's of military and naval tactics."

You see they knew there was something the matter with him but they dident know what it was. They dident know that it was matrimony that was spurring him on to these great deeds. And the thousands and thousands of people that were paying and fighting to get to see him, neither did they know that they were being deceived. They were paying their good hard earned money to see fine young unattached manhood battle it out on the field of educational finance with no undue advantages taken by any one. They looked on it as a fair fight, with no one having an advantage. Little did they know that this hero that they were cheering at that very moment dident have his mind on the army and its great and glorious tradition, but that he was sneakingly thinking of this little schoolmam away down south under the shade of the old old turpentine trees. They dident know that he was deceiving not only the great government but the poor taxpayers who had used their influence with Washington to get tickets to get into the game. Had they known that this boy had a wife of many years standing they would have risen up in writious wrath and maby tore the grandstand down.

Rank Deception.

And what of all the thousands of fair young things with roughe, and lip stick, what of them? Hadent they come with palpitating hearts to see this hero grab a Harvard man and throw him not only for a loss, but out of the park? Here was rank deception being practiced before their young gin-clouded eyes. Who would pay money to see an old married man do something? It was taking the romance out of the great game. How could you make ant idol out of a husband? Wasent college based on football? And wasent football based on finance and romance? What does a hundred thousand people care what happens to a married man? And besides hadent he cheated the government? Hadent he got an education all the time making them think he was a fine worthy upstanding single man, when at heart he knew that he was married and unworthy of government support? Did he think the government was going to go round trying to educate married men? Their marriage was their education. So it just looked like the case of Benedict Arnold. I dont know what they will do with him. I suppose they will lynch him. He has just simply spoiled football for a lot of us. We will never see a man make a touchdown now, that we wont wonder if his wife is watching.

Here and There

Martland, My Maryland!
(Milwaukee Sentinel)

Maryland gave the world fried chicken and the redoubtable Barbara Frietchie; yet Maryland is unwilling to rest upon her fame. She must strain out beyond credibility and nominate herself the "Maryland Free State.''

The citizens who vaunt this proud epithet are keenly conscious of the several senators and representatives whom they have sent to Washington to bedevil the minions of righteousness (prohibition) and of Henry Mencken whom they suffer to bedevil the world in general and of the fact that they have no state prohibition enforcement ordinances.

These earnests of the condition of Maryland freedom are impressive; but they stand incongruously in a welter of blue laws such as must give Bishop Cannon poignant titillations of pious triumph.

Last Sunday in Baltimore four aviation officials were arrested for "commercializing the Sabbath by carrying passengers for hire." The chambers of commerce, in the interests of honesty and fair representation, should revise the slogan to read the "Maryland Free (Six Days a Week) State''

Jericho's Tower Is Found.
(Popular Science Magazine.)

Sir Charles Marston's expedition to Jericho, the Canaanite city in the Jordan valley, excavated an ancient tower which, it is believed, dates from the middle Bronze Age, about 2000 B. C. The citadel was unearthed by John Garstang, formerly director of the department of antiquities in Palestine and now in charge of the Marston expedition. He reports that it resembles the defensive tower depicted in Egyptian representations of Canaanite cities. The walls of the tower, well preserved, rise twenty-seven feet above the foundations. Clues to its history may be found among relics of houses built against its side.

Just Folks

THOUGHTS WHILE WAITINING FOR THE DENTIST.

Three years ago it left the press
A ten-cent magazine,
Still radiant is its outer dress,
Its pages still are clean.

Of course the jests are out of date,
The pictures out of style,
But, purchased at so low a rate,
They've lasted quite a while.

I'm sure for this old magazine
My dentist's love is strong,
Or otherwise 'twould not have been
Securely kept so long.

In those three years four teeth I've lost
And suffered cruel pains,
While here, though but a dime it cost,
This magazine remains.

That bridge he made three years ago
When first this book was born,
Though fitted where it doesn't show
No longer can be worn.

All things have changed since first I sat
And conned these pages o'er,
Except this magazine, and that Looks good for ten years more!

Let Your Light Shine.
Lincoln, Neb., May 22.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: It is too bad that the editorial entitled "Far Too Honest," dealing with Grundy, defeated for his seat in the senate of the United States, could not be heralded to the world. It was a masterpiece, and worthy the admiration and commendation of every citizen of the United States who love justice. And while I read it the second time there seems to sink into my mind the enormity of some of the sins of these great politicians. It seems that an honest man has no chance. The great arm of this class of politicians generally sway the multitude.

While, perhaps, the opposing elements against Mr. Grundy might possibly coincide with some of his views, yet the dictatorship has to come from those who "killed" him, and want it brought about as under their hands and through their own channels which will best subserve their own individual interests.

It would be wise, if once in a while, a general cleaning out of the forces in power could be brought about, for we read and also note that "a new broom sweeps clean."

"God give us men, a time like this demands—
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith and ready hands;
Men whom the lust of office does not kill;
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;
Men who possess opinions and a will;
Men who have honor, will not lie;
Men who can sit before a demagogue,
And damn his treacherous flattering without winking;
Tall men—sun-crowned, who live above the fog,
In public duty and in private thinking."

HENRY ALLEN BRAINERD.

Two Necessary Features.
Lincoln, Neb., May 23.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: I hope the senate of the United States will not consent to leave the export debenture and the flexible clause stricken from the present tariff bill in congress at the present time. If the voters of Nebraska, as well as of many other states, would calculate the advantage it will give them to have these two features remain in the tariff bill, it will surprise many no doubt to learn that these two clauses will do more to put the agriculturalists on a parity with eastern financiers than anything we can do at the present

Everyday Questions

Answered By
DR. S. PARKES CADMAN
(Copyright, 1930, New York Tribune, Inc.)

Questions from Lincoln Star readers are answered daily by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of the Federated Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

QUESTION.
Charleston, W. Va.

Do you base your beliefs as a religious teacher on any particular theology? If so, which?

ANSWER.

I regard theoology as a growing science. How can it be reckoned otherwise? If it does not grow it is dead. Nothing having vitality fails to expand, to take on new forms and cover fresh areas. The same is true of the physical sciences. The two doctrinal fundamentals I accept are (-) the revelation of God's Being and Nature in Jesus Christ, and (2) Christ's lordship in the church and in the world.

Because I thus believe, I feel obligated to emphasize the love of the Father through service for all men and loyal obedience to Christ's rule. That position is as enduring as God and Christ are, and yet sufficiently flexible to meet the constantly changing conditions of human life. Any theology, ancient or modern, which sustains it is to that extent my theology.

I care not whether it be Hebrew, Catholic or Pretestant. The ever question is: Does this particular method of interpreting religion confirm one in his determination to live for the well being and ennoblement of his fellow men and women. It is perhaps needless to add that an embracing attitude toward every servant of God enriches one's concepts of Him and strengthens one's faith in His redemptive purposes as expressed in Jesus Christ.

QUESTION.
Augusta, Ga.

I am the mother of two sons. How can I get my children to read the Bible? They do not seem to care for it, and I know what they are missing, for I was brought up on its teachings.

ANSWER.

I suggest that you read "Father and Son," by the late Edmund Gosse. His father was meticulously pious, but he killed all chances of piety in his brilliant boy by approaching him on religion from an impossible angle. After you have read that book, study your youngsters from the psychological viewpoint. As you are doubtless aware, they are themselves to the limit, individually different, full of questionings, and perhaps rebelliously inclined.

Your mother wit will tell you what to do for John and what for Sam, and that though they have common needs they have very diversified dispositions. All love's strategic arts and peculiar wisdom are required by you. Do not insist that the Bible shall be received by the children on dogmatic authority. It has a preeminent authority of its own, to which they can be gradually introduced. Let them begin with its fascinating histories, its gentle persuasiveness, its stirring pleading, its fine exhortations, and its resonant passages of heroism, courage and adventure.

Secure the aid of numerous reprintings of Biblical narratives, episodes and teachings. It is regetable that we do not have an edition of the Bible which throws into bold relief those parts most suitable and attractive for children and young folk. The solid mass of black type in the Book is in itself a deterrent to its reading by children.

Do not overcrowd the matter of family religion. Enough is as good as a feast. Many middle aged men and women state with some show of reason that in their early days they were surfeited with church, Bible school, and the home's pious demands on them. Of course infinitely more adults gratefully acknowledge their obligations to the family altar. But even the best things can be marred by incessant emphasis.

Atmosphere is the important factor, the subtle, indefinable, yet all pervading atmosphere generated by a good mother who embodies in her daily life the typical virtues of the Bible. A devoted son never forgets his mother, and always reverses the source from which she received her spiritual inspiration and strength.

QUESTION.
Oklahoma City, Okla.

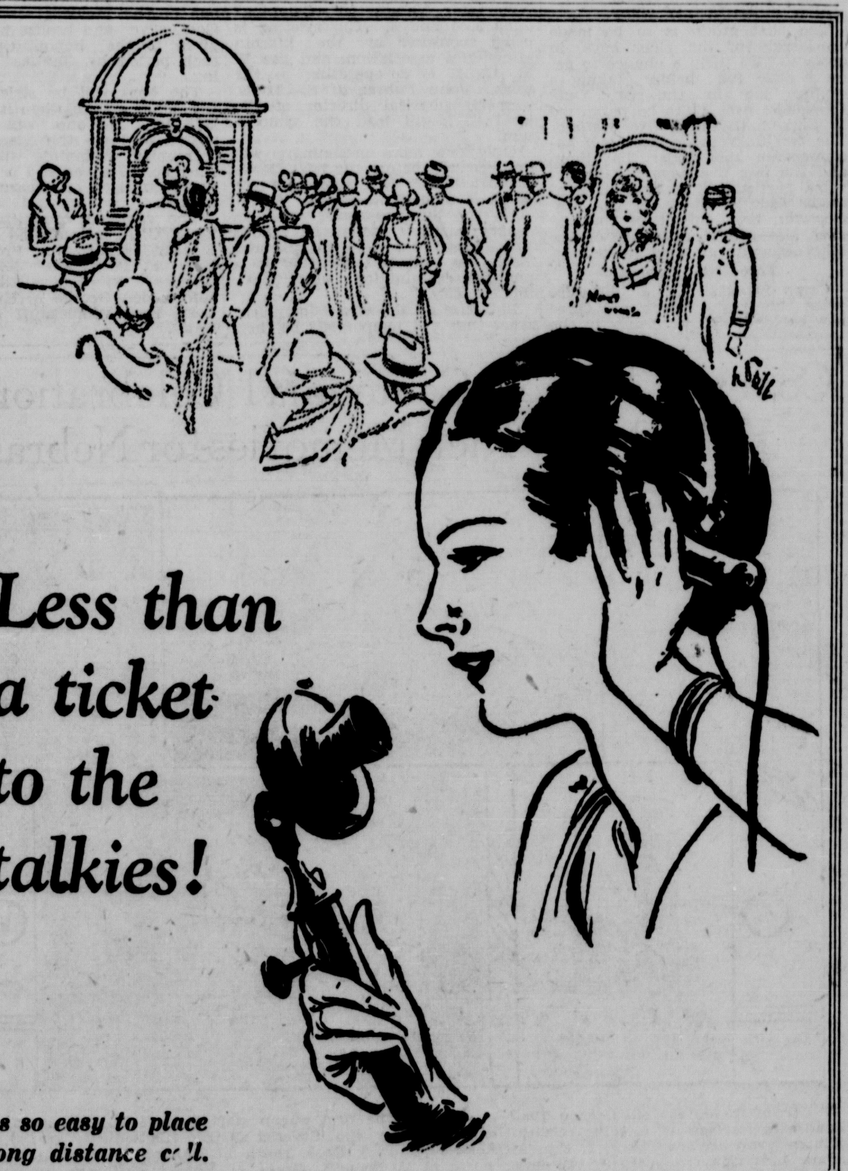

Is it a correct interpretation of Christ's life and work to say that He simply revealed God as Father and made no claim for Himself?

ANSWER.

The centrality of Jesus as the Christ of God pervades the New Testament and is its distinctive feature in comparison with the Old Testament. To be sure He manifested Himself in the gospels with directness and urgency.

You may recall that He commissioned His disciples, and constantly stressed the fact that union with Himself generated in them a spiritual authority which should overcome the world. Devotion to Christ, faith in His message and in the redemeption which His death effected for mankind, are repeatedly

It is so easy to place a long distance call. Just call "Long Distance," and give her the distant number. If you do not know the number, "Information" will look it up. Calling by number speeds up the service.

Mrs. Mills was thrifty!

She would dearly like to talk to her mother back home, as her friend told her she was doing every week, but think of the expense—

She was astonished when she learned that a call for the distant number during the day would cost only 60 cents, and after 7 p. m. only half a dollar.

She actually made her call for 8:30 and it cost her only 35 cents—the night rate!

Now the weekly 3-minute talk with her mother is a regular thing. And what a joy it is both to Mrs. Mills and her mother. Both declare it is almost as good as a visit! Many people are like Mrs. Mills—they think long distance expensive!

We will be glad to furnish you with the telephone numbers and rates to out-of-town points called frequently. The low cost—especially station-to-station—after 8:30 in the evening will convince you.

PAY TRIBUTE TO VICTOR HERBERT

Programs Commemorate Death of Beloved Composer.

Songs which endeared Victor Herbert to the world during his lifetime will be broadcast on the sixth anniversary of his death by former friends and associates in a special memorial program on WJZ's network Sunday evening from 7:45 to 8:45 o'clock, central standard time.

The A. K. concert hour, broadcast on WEAF and chain Sunday night from 7:15 to 7:45 o'clock, central time, also will be devoted entirely to the works of Herbert. Elliott Shaw, baritone of the Revellers' quartet, will be guest soloist and Josef Pasternack will direct the orchestra.

Many Celebrities.

Among celebrities who will gather for the gala memorial program will be Fritzi Scheff, the original "Mademoiselle Modiste;" Sigmund Romberg and Henry Hadley, whose careers brought them in close contact with the Irish-American composer; Harold Sanford, NBC director who once led Herbert's orchestra as his principal assistant; S. L. Rothafel, better known as "Roxy;" Augustus Thomas, playwright, and Gene Buck president of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, which is sponsoring the broadcast jointly with the National Broadcasting company. John Philip Sousa has promised tentatively to attend, although a previous concert engagement may interfere.

Members of the younger generation which will participate include Yascha Bunchuk, conductor of the Capitol theater orchestra, Louise Bave and Westell Gordon, members of Major Bowes' "Family," and Herbert Watrous, member of the "Sweet Adeline" musical comedy cast.

Fritzi Scheff to Sing.

With Raymond Hubbell, composer of "Poor Butterfly," leading the orchestra, Fritzi Scheff again will sing "Kiss Me Again," the waltz song with which she captivated American audiences when "Mademoiselle Modiste" had its debut. With Buck as master of ceremonies, the directors will take turns on the stand while other vocalists sing Herbert's musical gems. Augustus Thomas will close the program with a eulogy.

Arrange Program Of DeKoven-Kern Music

Works of two American composers reginald DeKoven and Jerome Kern whoe music has been played around the world, will be broadcast over WEAF's network Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, central standard time. Nathaniel Shilkret's concert orchestra, a group of well-known singers and a specially assembled chorus, will present the compositions.

DeKoven, who died in 1920, is noted for his operettas, "Robin Hood" and "Rob Roy" and his most famous single composition, "Oh, Promise Me." Kern is still active in the field of composition, some of his musical plays including "Sunny," "Sally," "Sweet Adeline," "Very Good, Eddie," "Stepping Stones' 'and "Show Boat." "Old Man River" from the latter promises to be an American classic.

Hugh Walpole Speaks In London Broadcast

Hugh Walpole, noted English novelist, speaking at a microphone in London, will discuss "Cultural Activities in America" in a broadcast arranged by the National Broadcasting company, Monday afternoon from 2:25 to 2:45 o'clock.

The trans-oceanic talk is one in a series of broadcasts arranged by the NBC and British Broadcasting corporation under the general title of "International Viewpoints." Political, economic and cultural leaders of thought representing both Europe and America are heard in the series.

Engineers Laugh At Census Man's Query

NEW YORK, May 24—Columbia broadcasting engineers had their biggest laugh of the week when the census taker visited the transmitting station of WABC, where they reside. Amid the tumultous roar of the generators and the racket of receivers turned to the 600 meter watch and broadcast wave-lengths, the census man queried:

"Do you have a radio?"

Rasely Is Member of Boys' Club Quartet

George Raseiy, noted tenor, is a member of the Boys' club quartet which will occupy the spotlight with Eugene Ormandy's orchestra on the Quality network of WOR, WLW and WMAQ Sunday night at 6 o'clock, central standard time.

RADIO AUDITION SET FOR JUNE 2

Entries in Lancaster County Contest Must File By May 29.

Over twenty have entered the Lancaster county division of the Atwater Kent radio audition which will be held over KFOR the evening of June 2. All other entries must fill out blanks, sign them before notary publics, and file them at 411 Liberty theater building not later than Thursday evening, May 29.

The contest is restricted to amateur singers, between the ages of 18 and 25, and no competitor may enter more than one county audition in the same year. One male and one female voice will be selected to compete in the state contest in Omaha in October.

Each entry will be required to be prepared to sing three songs. The judges, to be brought here from outside the county, will first hear each singer give the solo of his preference. In case of conflict in the decision, the competitors may be asked to sing their second and third numbers.

Contestants may receive additional information from Edith Lucille Robbins, chairman for the county.

Through The Microphone

President Hoover will address the microphone twice during the coming week. He will greet delegates to the National Street and Highway Safety convention in Washington Tuesday morning between 9:15 and 9:45 o'clock in a broadcast on both WEAF and WJZ networks. Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont will be principal speaker in the program. Friday the president will be heard in a nation-wide Memorial day broadcast, when he speaks from the rostrum of the National cemetery at Gettysburg in tribute to America's war dead. The program will be broadcast from 12:45 to 2:15 p. m. on WEAF and WJZ and from 1 to 3 p. m. on WABC.

Amos 'n' Andy, blackface pair, are expected in Hollywood July 15 to begin work on their motion picture, "Check and Double Check," a sentimental musical comedy drama, which will require about a month to produce. They will receive about $1,000,000 in salaries and royalties for their film work.

A medley of "In a Monastery Garden," "Moonlight and Roses" and "Wedding of the Painted Dolls" will feature Jesse Crawford's organ recital on WABC and chain Sunday night. Hans Hanke, concert pianist, will be guest artist with Mr. Crawford in his Monday night broadcast over the same network.

Alfio Tedesco, Metropolitan Opera company tenor, will be guest artist of the Family Party on WEAF's network Monday evening. He will sing four songs from operas including "Siciliana" from "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Questo E. Quella" from "Rigoletto," "Aubade" from "Le Roi d'Ys" and "M'Appari" (Like a Dream) from "Martha." The famous waltz from Tschaikowsky's "Sleeping Beauty" will be among the orchestra's presentations.

Sir George Hubert Wilkins, explorer, will tell the story of the Antarctic as guest speaker in the Nathaniel Shilkret concert period on WEAF's system Wednesday at 6:30 p. m.

A novelty number, "I Dance with a Mosquito," will be one of eight Russia folk songs to be broadcast by Howard Barlow's symphony orchestra on WABC and chain Wednesday at 8 p. m. The song ends with a loud slap, which also ends the mosquito.

Robert L. "Dink" Templeton, track coach of Leland Stanford university, will be interviewed by Grantland Rice during the Top-notchers program on WEAF's network Wednesday night at 8:30 o'clock. Templeton, whose teams have invaded the east and for the past three years won the annual I. C. 4-A championships, will tell of his squad's prospects in the 1930 contest scheduled Friday and Saturday at Harvard stadium, Cambridge, Mass.

All that happens during the last stirring hour of the eighteenth international 500-mile automobile race at the Indianapolis motor speedway Friday afternoon will be portrayed for radio fans by Graham McNamee on the NBC network beginning at 2:15 o'clock.

"Mr. and Mrs."— Joe and Vi of the Columbia network—have decided to write a book entitled "Matrimonial Dilemnas." Partly serious, partly humorous, it will be a discussion of basic marital problems which enter into their weekly radio skits.

Radio listeners who saw the Chicago Civic Opera company's presentation of "Carmen" in Lincoln in March may hear a burlesque of the melodious Bizet opera, when it is presented by the Nitwits on WABC and chain Friday night.

When the R-100, Great Britain's giant dirigible, arrives in Canada on her projected trans-Atlantic flight, a word picture of the journey's end will be broadcast through the United States and the Dominion on the NBC network.

An account of the landing of tarpon by contestants in the national tarpon tournament at Sarasota, Fla., will be carried over WLW sometime in June.

America's most beautiful radio artist, Olive Shea of the Columbia network, has just completed her second talking picture. They're calling it "Kiss Me." And maybe someone won't take advantage of that title.

Billy Sunday To Be Heard During Week

Billy Sunday, noted evangelist who has guided thousands up the "sawdust trail," will be guest speaker on WJZ and chain Sunday night at 6:15 o'clock, central standard time. Sunday also will appear with Paul Rader's Breakfast Brigade on the Columbia network during the coming week. This program is broadcast from 6 to 7 a. m., central time, and may be heard locally through KMOX, St. Louis.

Vivienne Segal In Film Radio Version

Vivienne Segal, formerly a "glorifield" Ziegfeld beauty and now a star of the talkies, will head a cast from the motion picture, "Bride of the Regiment" in a radio version of the romance to be broadcast over the NBC network Saturday night.

"Bride of the Regiment" is a new sound adaption of the silent screen play, "Lady in Ermine," in which Corinne Griffith starred. The plot concerns a mythical kingdom near old Austria.

Radio Digest

Lightning Arrester for A. C. Set.

While there is more protection offered in an A. C. set, due to the power company protecting their lines with lightning arresters, additional precaution should be taken by including one for the outside aerial. There is still the possibility of picking up a static charge on the antenna and a lighting arrester should conseqtently be used.

Worth Remembering.

Only those tubes for which the set is designed should be used in A. C. receivers. These power sets are carefully designed to see that the proper values of filament voltage, plate and grid voltage are impressed on the tubes. Making a change of different tubes would not only cause improper values of voltage, but would also throw the values out on the remainder of the tubes. It is entirely impracticable to attempt to modify the set to accommodate different types of tubes.

Power Sets Need Good Antenna and Ground System.

Most modern sets are extremely sensitive. They are able to bring in local stations without antenna or ground with good volume, often with as much volume as if the antenna and ground were connected. In many cases this is because the antenna or ground, or both, are not as good as they should be. With a perfect antenna and ground system this would not be likely to happen. Also if an attempt is made to tune in on distant stations under these freak conditions, the attempt is usually unsuccessful.

Experience Necessary for Successful Repair Work.

For the person who is ambitious to repair or improve the operation of modern sets, it is absolutely necessary that he has a general working knowledge of what part each unit plays in the process of reception. This is just as important as his kit of tools and soldering iron. If the modern receiver is dissected in this fashion it is seen to consist of the pickup—comprising the antenna and ground—a multi-stage radio frequency amplifier, detector, audio amplifier, reproducing unit or loud speaker and the "A," "B", and "C" supply units. Thus it becomes obvious that there are eight distinct units which go to make up what the fan ordinarily knows as a receiver. It should be recognized next that each one of these units has a definite duty to perform, a distinct design and hookup, and particular ailments for the repairman to locate and remedy.

For the Notebook.

The fading of reception is due to a loose connection, defective tube, or a neighbor's set "stealing" the music.

Parts of the radio circuit are grounded to eliminate noises and hum. If the ground is not employed these noises are likely to mix with the music.

The effectiveness of the charger as a sound radiator can be materially reduced by setting it on a rubber or felt pad and perhaps placing it in a box of some sort.

When troubled with outside disturbance, such as noises caused by electrical apparatus, the annoyance should be eliminated at the source, and not by devices at the receiver.

Fine tone quality is the first demand of a buyer of a receiving set. Price is the second important factor, with selectivity third. Appearance, reputation, and the possession of screen-grid tubes follow in the order named.

MANY ORCHESTRAS PLAY IN C. B. S. DANCE CARNIVAL

A dance carnival, presenting five to seven orchestras in one hour, will be broadcast over the Columbia coast-to-coast network from Monday to Saturday inclusive during the coming week. All time is central standard in the programs which have been tentatively announced as follows:

MONDAY—9:30 p. m., Orchestras of Paramount hotel, Will Osborne, Duke Ellington and Anson Weeks.

TUESDAY—5:30 p. m., Orchestras of Paramount hotel and Bernhard Levitow; 10 p. m., Orchestras of Anson Weeks, Bert Lown and Will Osborne.

WEDNESDAY—4:30 p. m., Orchestras of Yoeng's restaurant, Huston Ray, Paramount hotel and Ben Pollack; 9 p. m., Anson Weeks' orchestra; 9:30 p. m., Orchestras of Bert Lown, Will Osborne, Ben Pollack and Duke Ellington.

THURSDAY—9:30 p. m., Orchestras of Duke Ellington, Will Osborne, Ben Pollack, Bart Lown, Anson Weeks and Paramount hotel.

FRIDAY—4:30 p.m.—Orchestras of Yoeng's restaurant, Huston Ray and Paramount hotel; 5 p. m., Bernhard Levitow's ensemble; 9 p. m., Bert Lown's orchestra; 9:30 p. m., Orchestras of Ben Pollack, Anson Weeks, Paramount hotel, Will Osborne and Duke Ellington.

SATURDAY—9 p. m. Anson Weeks' orchestra; 9:30, Orchestras of Paramount hotel, Will Osborne, Bert Lown and Duke Ellington.

Minute On Radio Nets Will Rogers More Than He Once Earned Monthly

Will Rogers, America's favorite humorist, once broke horses for the British army in Africa for $10 a month.

Will, who is reputed to be the highest paid star on the radio, now makes more in a minute than he did in a month in those exciting days. He receives about $5,000 or $500 a minute for his Sunday night broadcasts, which are heard over the Columbia network at 8 o'clock, central standard time.

The little-known story of Rogers' adventures in the dark continent came to light only recently. He was 21 when the desire to roam overwhelmed him. Even at that age he had made money, since the cattle raising business in Oklahoma had prospered.

Having accumulated about $12,000 in cattle deals, Rogers planned with one of his chums to go to South America, settle in Argentina and pioneer. They traveled to New New Orleans, where Rogers looked over the first big city he had ever seen. They found a boat and decided to go to Argentina via London. They had heard of London and thought it might be bigger even than New Orleans.

Rogers and his chum started to see the sights and their $12,000 dwindled fast. The prince of Wales, who grew up to be one of Rogers' friends, wasn't there to greet him and laugh at him that time. In fact, few in London were laughing then. The Boer war was on.

South Africa sounded as good as South America to Will and besides, there wasn't much left of the $12,000. Rogers shipped to South Africa in the British army.

The experience he gained in Africa changed the whole course of his life. Rope handling was novel in South Africa and it later secured for him a position with Wirth's circus. Working with horses and doing his rope stunts, he traveled to New Zealand, Australia and finally reached San Francisco—broke.

But the experience learned at the humble salary of $10 a month, Rogers later turned to real advantage to climb to the very top of the ladder.

President Hoover Has Addressed Microphone Nearly Fifty Times

Radio, the instrument of communication which President Hoover as secretary of commerce did much to promote during its infancy, has brought the president's voice to almost every citizen of the United States.

Records of the National Broadcasting company in Washington disclose that President Hoover has addressed the radio audience twenty-two times in the fourteen months he has headed the nation. President Coolidge, in his entire seven years in office, spoke over the radio but thirty-seven times.

Speech making over the radio was not new to Mr. Hoover when he became president. He made his first radio talk in 1924. From 1924 until he became president, Mr. Hoover made twenty-three radio speeches. In all, he made forty-five appearances before the microphone.

President Coolidge made many of his radio addresses from the study in the white house. However, President Hoover has only spoken over the radio twice from the executive mansion. Most of Mr. Hoover's radio talks have been picked up from various points in Washington, while half a dozen of the addresses were made outside of Washington.

President Hoover's addresses are always read from manuscript. On occasions when he is addressing two audiences, a group of people in front of him and the radio audience, a special speaker's stand is used. This stand, designed by an engineer of the National Broadcasting company, is so constructed that the president's manuscript is placed almost on a level with his eyes. Thus, it is not necessary for him to look down while talking.

Whenever a president of the United States talks over the radio, special precautions are taken to eliminate interference. Broadcasting equipment at the point where the president talks is installed in duplicate. Telephone lines which carry his voice to broadcasting studios are installed in triplicate. His voice is sent over two wires and in the event trouble develops, on one, a switch to the other wire can be made in a second or two. The third wire is for emergency use.

President Hoover has never been late for a broadcast. Several times he has been ahead of time, but in these instances he has graciously consented to wait until the time the network was ready. If the white house states the president will talk ten, twenty or thirty minutes, the broadcasters know this will be the length of his talk within fifteen or thirty seconds.

Except for the words, "Ladies and gentlemen, the president of the United States," no other introduction is usually given when President Hoover speaks.

Radio Digest

Value of Line Filter.

Filtering devices connected between the light socket and the set are designed to eliminate interference that may be introduced into the receiver through the lighting circuit. A disturbance may be set up by some device and the intensity of the disturbance and its location might be such that the set would not pick it up directly. However, the disturbance could easily be transmitted to the set through the lighting circuit. Also, switching motors on and off and other apparatus of this sort sets up line disturbances of varying intensities, and if the set happens to be connected to the same circuit, the disturbance may be heard in the set.

As a means of communication, the Egyptian government plans to erect in the very near future four new wireless stations in the desert.

Short wave radio phone connection was recently established between Buenos Aires and Batavia, a distance of 14,400 miles, by way of Berlin, Germany.

Lessons in French, Spanish, Italian, German, and English are to be put on the air by Station WLW, Cincinnati, O., every afternoon except Saturday and Sunday. The feature is part of the Ohio School of the Air, sponsored by the Ohio State department of education.

Pope To Broadcast Over Radio In June

VATICAN CITY, May 24—(I. N. S.)—Every wireless amateur on June 29 will be able to get a message from His Holiness Pius XI. It will be a brief communication in which the Pope launches throughout the spaces an appeal for peace and international love between all nations.

The message will be sent by the new wireless plant of Vatican City, which it is hoped will be in working order before the end of June. The opening of the new station has been scheduled tentatively for June 29, that being the St. Peter and St. Paul day.

After the pope's message to the whole world, the station will send out messages to all sovereigns and chiefs of state having diplomatic relations with the Holy See. Afterwards well wishing messages will be addressed to all wireless stations operated by missionaries in Alaska, Tokio and other parts of the world.

Many Improvements at Y. W. C. A. Camp Ready for Opening of Season June 9

Left: Boating at Oakwood lodge is a recreation all camp guests enjoy. Besides the pleasure of the lake, the girls learn how to handle a boat successfully.
Right: A crib for beginning swimmers at Oakwood lodge.

Oakwood Lodge, Lincoln Y. W. C. A. summer camp on the Blue river near Crete, will open its 1930 season, June 9 and close officially August 10, although a number of groups of young business women may visit the camp later in August. Oakwood is one of the oldest summer camps for girls in the state and is one of five camps maintained by character-training agencies in the Lincoln community chest.

A number of new improvements have been made at Oakwood for the present season, according to Miss Ruth Pratt, Y. W. C. A. physical director, who will have charge of the camp. Two new cabins have been added, giving the camp accommodations for forty girls. The main lodge in which it was necessary to quarter some of the girls last year, will be devoted entirely this season to handcraft, social activities and eating.

A new "crib" has been provided in the Blue river where every girl who visits Oakwood this season will be given swimming lessons by a Red Cross licensed instructor. The new crib makes it impossible for beginning swimmers to get out into the river. Health certificates will be required of all campers, and these may be secured at the Y. W. C. A. at the time of registration.

Improve Tennis Courts.

The tennis court has been improved and will be one of the main secenes of activity during the coming season. Two new canoes have also been provided. Activities will include swimming, boating and canoeing, gypsy hikes, tennis, golf, archery, handcraft, nature lore and similar pursuits. Experienced instructors will be provided. A feature of Oakwood's personnel this year will be a registered nurse.

Oakwood Lodge is situated on a high bluff overlooking the Blue river and is in the midst of wooded farm country. Deep sheltered woodland paths and country roads afford opportunity for long hikes and rambles. The campers sleep in dry airy cottages provided with single beds. The rustic lodge, with its fireplace and broad screened porches, is the center of camp life. The living room is frequently the scene for stunt parties, guest-night programs, evening sings and rainy day activities. A counsellor is in charge of each group of eight girls. Counsellors are not only trained in swimming, sports, handcroft, dramatics, music, campcraft and nature lore, but also girl psychology and new educational methods.

Life guards are always on the dock and patrolling in row boats during the swimming hours. The girls are allowed in the water only with swimming counsellors in charge and only at regular swimming periods. Girls may use canoes only after they have passed the necessary tests. All campers learn correct form in the various strokes and in life saving methods. Advanced swimmers take up diving and race strokes, and Red Cross life saving emblems are presented to swimmers who complete the requirements and pass the test of the examiner.

Weekend Camps.

All Lincoln girls, regarless of their affiliations, are invited to Oakwood, according to Miss Pratt, as the camp is maintained primarily to provide summer vacation outings to girls and young women who could not otherwise afford them. Three periods of eleven days and three periods of five days have been arranged for grade, junior high and high school groups. At 8:45 on Monday morning of each period, a counsellor will meet the girls at the Burlington bus depot.

Weekends have been provided for senior campers. These outings are between periods for junior campers and are devoted to business and college girls and to groups of women who wish to enjoy the out of doors at a minimum of expense. The entire camp may be reserved by club or business groups, whose membership is thirty or more. The swimming staff and cooks are retained for this service.

Although the regular schedule for the day at Oakwood is frequently set aside for all-day canoe trips, gypsy hikes, or over-night camping trips, the following program has arranged for the 1930 season:

7 a. m.—Reveille.
7:10—set-ups.
7:20—Morning dip.
7:50—Flag raising.
8:00—Breakfast.
8:45—Assembly.
9:15—Inspection.
9:30—Nature and camp lore.
10:45—Swimming instruction.
12:00—Dinner.
12:30 p. m.—Store.
1:00—Rest hour.
2:00—Swim and sun bath.
4:00—Handcraft.
5:30—Supper.
6:00—Boating and sports.
7:30—Evening program, star lore, campfire

Answers To Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—I have written to you once before, so I won't introduce myself but just write as an old friend.

Woman or man? You puzzle me. So, far, I have made no conclusions as to your identity.

I have seen several good shows lately. Among them are "Flight," "Sunny Side Up" and "Rio Rita." Who were the leadeing characters in "Flight?" I liked him, but she wasn't so hot. Who was she? Will you give me some information as to height, weight, age, color of hair and eyes, birthday, if married and so forth, of him?

Will you please tell me the same about Janet Gaynor and the girl who played as her sister or chum, also including a little about their lives.

"Rio Rita" was certainly a fine show. Can you tell me something about Dorothy Lee and the man who played opposite her?

I saw Greta Garbo in "Anna Christie" and surely can't say anything good about it. I certainly find her unattractive, and if she's classed as one of the most beautiful blondes—poor blonde girls. The show seemed too monotonous. Does she take the same role in every show she stars in? I hope not. I should like to hear what other fans think of "Anna Christie."

Who played opposite Miss Garbo in the picture? Was it John Boles? If so, I'm surprised he has so many ardent fans, as I didn't care for him. His voice is too coarse. Well, so much for that.

How does Anita Page rank as a beauty of blondes? She certainly is one of the wonders of the world. I just love her, probably it's because I'm blonde, too.

Gladys of Fairbury, Nebr., writes quite often. I hope she keeps it up as I enjoy her letters, also all of the Fans.

Thanking you for all the nerves you had to quiet while I ripped into Greta Garbo, I remain, THE CUBAN GIRL OF KANSAS.

You did get a little "hot under the collar" over Greta, didn't you, but fortunately I'm impartial so far as the players are concerned. Some of Greta's particular friends may be out after you with bricks, however. She has a great many of them, too, because she is not only a very brilliant actress, but has a certain distinctive personality that wins her admirers. Miss Garbo makes no pretense so far as beauty is concerned, and she is entirely indifferent as to whether she is considered attractive or not.

Anita Page is an attractive youngster, but not especially classed as a beauty. Anita's is more the type of beauty that may be seen many times a day on any Hollywood street.

Before we get too far away from the subject of Greta Garbo and her first talking film, "Anna Christie," that was not John Boles, but Charles Bickford who played opposite her in the picture. Miss Garbo has played in much more romantic type films, but she did some exceptionally clever work in the sordid story, "Anna Christie." Her voice was a sensation, and her accent particularly suited to the role.

Jack Holt was the man, and Lila Lee the girl in "Flight." Miss Lee is an old time player in pictures, and prior to her screen career had made quite a name for herself on the vaudeville stage as the 'Cuddles' of Gus Edwards' Revue.

Mr. Holt celebrated his forty-first birthday April 13. He was born in Winchtser, Va., and graduate from college as a civil engineer. After his graduation Mr. Holt went to Oregon wth a friend and from there to Alaska, where he surveyed mining claims. When he finally reached California in his travels, he found himself down to $25.

He happened to meet a friend who was working in a motion picture studio, and because Jack could ride, he was able to get work in the same studio doing stunt riding. That started him on his way to success, and he eventually became a Paramount star. He held that position for some time, and then decided to free-lance. He is back on the Paramount lot now, doing more Zane Grey stories. Mr. Holt is six feet tall, weighs 173, has brown hair and eyes and is married.

Janet Gaynor claims Germantown, Pa., as her birthplace. The event happened on October 6, 1906. Janet owes her start in pictures to her step-father, Harry Jones, a mining promoter from the west. He thought Janet could act, so he took her to Hollywood to see if she could not get a chance on the screen. She soon got extra work, and in less than six months time had risen to leading roles.

Janet made her first big hit as "Diane" in "Seventh Heaven." She has brown eyes and red hair. She's only five feet tall and weighs less than a hundred. In private life, Janet is Mrs. Lydell Peck.

Marjorie White made her most popular appeal in "Sunny Side Up." She was born in Winnipeg, Canada, about twenty-some odd years ago. She made her stage debut when she was only four years old, as a singer and travelled over the country on various routes. During the war, she entertained the Canadian soldiers in their camps. Later Miss White appeared in the Broadway production of "Lady Fingers," where Fox saw her and signed her for motion pictures. She is a blonde, five feee two inches tall and 110 in weight.

Dorothy Lee, who is eighteen, is a graduate of the Los Angeles high school. She held a record for high jumping and as champion lacrosse player, but wanted a screen career. However, it isn't so easy to get in, even for a home town girl, so Dorothy eventually accepted a stage role in New York.

And after that, she was signed by R. K. O. for pictures. "Rio Rita" was a lucky picture for Dorothy, and you will see her next in "Babes in Toyland."

Don Alvarado was originally known as Joe Page. He is part English and part Spanish, and when he went into pictures, Warner Brothers suggested that he become Don Alvarado instead of plain Jose Page. Don is dark complexioned like he conventional romantic hero, but he has the acting ability to go with his good looks. He is free-lancing at present, but was originally under contract to United Artists. There is a Mrs. Alvarado.

Dear Movie Editor—This is our first venture to your department, so we are kind of bashful, but note that you always welcome newcomers.

Our favorites are Janet Gaynor, Charles Farrell, Nancy Carroll, Buddy Rogers, Joan Crawford, Robert Montgomery and Standley Smith.

Would you please give us the cast for "The Desert Song" and "High Society Blues?"

We have heard that Nancy Carroll is divorced from Jack Kirkland. Is that true? What is her daughter's name?

Is it also true that Colleen Moore has quit the movies?

Would you please give us the names of movie stars whose birthdays are in September, November or April?

Thanking you in advance, we remain "TWO LINCOLNITES."

Give the new Fans a hand, Members, and make them feel at home. We are always happy to enlarge our family of Fans.

The cast for "The Desert Song" is: "The Red Shadow," John Boles; "Margot," Carlotta King; "Susan," Louise Fazenda; "Benny Kid," Johnny Arthur; "General Birbeau," Edward Martindel; "Pasha," Jack Pratt; "Sid El Kar," Robert E. Guzman; "Hasse," Otto Hoffman; "Clementine," Marie Wells; "Captain Fontaine," John Miljan; "Rebel," Del Elliott; "Azuri," Myrna Loy.

The Granger family in "High Society Blues" consisted of Lucien Littlefield, Louise Fazenda, Joyce Compton, and Charles Farrell; "The Divines" were portrayed by William Collier, sr., Hedda Hopper and Janet Gaynor. Gregory Gaye appeared as the French count that Mamma Divine wanted her daughter to marry.

I hadn't heard that Nancy and her husband had separated. I think you must have her confused with Sue Carol, who was divorced from her first husband. "Patsy" is the four year old Kirkland daughter.

Colleen Moore has severed her connections with First National, but she may appear in other productions later. Just now Colleen and her husband are having a little difficulty.

Players with birthdays in September are Donald Keith, September 15; Neil Hamilton, September 6; Mattie Kemp, September 10; Johnny Mack Brown, September 4; Fay Wray, September 15; David Rollins, September 2, and Dorothy Gulliver, September 6. Quite an imposing list, isn't it?

The November list includes Nancy Carroll, November 19; Lewis Stone, November 15; Jack Oakie, November 12; Edna Murphy, November 17; Gertrude Olmstead, November 10; Laura La Plante, November 1.

In April you may celebrate your birthday with Jack Holt, April 13; Charlie Chaplin, April 16; Tim McCoy, April 10; Mary Pickford, April 8, or Lina Basquette, April 17.

Dear Movie Editor—This is my first visit to you. Please excuse me if I ask too many questions. Ready? Alright, here I go!

My favorites are Nancy Carroll, Sue Carol, Janet Gaynor, Clara Bow, Colleen Moore, Billie Dove, Buddy Rogers, Charles Farrell, Richard Barthelmess and Bob Steel. Please give me the age, birth, weight and real names and addresses.

You never see Bob Steele any more. What has happened to him?

I think Davey Lee and Jean Darling are so cute. What are their ages, and birthdays? Tell me something about each, also the color of hair and eyes.

Tell all you can about Sally Blane. Is she married and if so to whom?

Will you tell me how much a picture of a movie star costs?

I must ring off. W. P. MAHASKA, Kansas.

Another stranger in our midst today! Come often so you will get acquainted.

Nancy Carroll's real name is LaHiff, and Sue's is Evelyn Lederer. Nancy was born in New York in 1907 with red hair and blue eyes. She is five feet four in height and weighs 118. Address her at the Paramount Studio, 5451 Marathon, Hollywood, California.

Sue is from Chicago. She has dark hair and eyes, and was born in 1907. She is five feet two in height and weighs 105. Address Sue in care of Fox, 1401 N. Western avenue, Hollywood.

Germantown, Pa., claims Janet as a native daughter. That's her own name, and she was born October 6, 1906. Janet is five feet tall and weighs under 100. Address her also at the Fox studio.

Clara Bow's real name is that. Clara was born in Brooklyn, July 29, 1905. She weighs from 110 to 115 and is five feet three inches tall.

Colleen Moore's real name was Kathleen Morrison. Colleen was born in 1901 and has grown to be five feet three inches tall and 110 in weight. Address Clara at the Paramount Studio, and Colleen at the First National Studio, Burbank, Calif. Billie Dove also gets her mail at the First National studio, and so does Richard Barthelmess.

Buddy works under the same banner as Clara.

Billie's real name is Bohny. She is five feet five inches tall and weighs 115. Billie was born in 1903.

Richard is five feet seven inches tall and weighs 135. He claims New York City as his birthplace in 1895.

Buddy Rogers is lacking an inch of being a six footer. He weighs 150 and is going to be twenty-six, August 13. He was named Charles.

Charles Farrell was born at Onset Bay, Mass., in 1902. Charles is a big boy, six feet two in height and 170 in weight. You will reach him at the Fox studio, and Bod Steel at the R. K. O. studio, 780 Gower street, Hollywood. Bob is still working in pictures, but not so many as formerly on account of the talkies. He is the son of R. N. Bradbury, and was born in 1903. Bob is six feet tall and weighs 175.

Davey Lee was five years old December 29, and has been a full fledged star for the past year. Davey was "discovered" by Al Jolson when he accompanied his mother to the Warner Brothers lot to take a screen test for Mr. Jolson's picture, "The Singing Fool." As soon as Al saw Davey, he decided that the quest for a boy was ended.

Davey is the young brother of the Frankie Lee of "The Miracle Man" fame. Davey's hair and eyes are brown, and he has the same bright future before him that Jackie Coogan had when Charlie Chaplin gave him his running jump up the ladder of fame.

Jean Darling is a member of "Our Gang" comedies, but I haven't been able to get much information concerning her that you haven't observed from seeing her on the screen.

Sally Blane is the sister of Loretta Young and Polly Ann Young. Sally comes in between. She was born in Salidad, Colo., July 11, 1910. Her hair and eyes are brown, and she is five feet four inches tall. Sally tries to keep her weight at about 117. When Sally was six, she moved with her family to Hollywood, where her uncle was business manager for George Melford, so it was only natural that the Young girls should have a film career. You will see Sally next in "Little Accident." She is single.

Twenty-five cents is the customary postage the stars expect you to enclose with a request for their photographs. They do not charge for their pictures, but it takes that much to pay for the stamps and mailing folder. If you want a more elaborate picture, send more money.

Dear Movie Editor—I can only stay away about so long, it seems. My curiosity is insatiable.

Of course you know by now that my favorite is Robert Armstrong, but I can't ever find out all I want to know about him. I saw "Oh, Yeah" and was crazy about it. It was the first time I had heard his voice, and can he sing! You told me one time that his age was twenty-six, but he is surely older than that considering all his stage experience with the Gleasons, etc. Will you look it up again, please, for me? James Gleason must be getting rather along in years. What is his age?

I enjoyed "Hit the Deck" far more than "Rio Rita" and they didn't write it up at all the way "Rio Rita" was written. Isn't there something queer about the write-ups in some of the magazines? I mean, don't the companies pay for good criticism? I like the movie page in some magazines better than in others, because they seem more sincere.

What on earth has become of Victor Varconi? I haven't heard of him since "The Divine Lady." And wasn't that a wonderful show? I suppose Victor cannot speak good English and therefore is out of the race.

Is Claudette Colbert making "Young Man of Manhattan?" If so, when will it be ready? Sometimes I wish I were casting these shows. They ruin the character so carefully created by the authors with one snap of the fingers. Disgusting!

Please tell me all about Guinn Williams—the unusual data.

Thank you a lot, Movie Enthusiast, York, Neb.

We like curious Fans.

You surely don't think Robert looks over twenty-six, do you?

And the fact that he played in both London and America with the Gleasons would not necessarily make him any older. If he is—well, somebody's kidding the Movie Editor. You can squeeze a lot of experience in twenty-six years.

Robert, who is the nephew of Paul Armstrong, made his first real stage hit in "Is Zat So," It was while he was resting, at the completion of his run of the comedy in Los Angeles, that Robert got his first chance to make pictures. He has made about three dozen in all, with "The Leatherneck," "The Racketeer' and "Oh Yeah" as his most popular. Robert is married to Jeanne Kent.

Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Gleason are very close friends, although Mr. Gleason is along in his forties, and the father of a grown-up young son.

There's a great difference, as you say, in the way the various critics see the pictures. It all depends upon the point of view, and perhaps in some cases an extra bit of money might influence the point of view. The average dependable motion picture critic, however, would not stoop to such unethical proceedings, and the write-ups are their own unbiased conception of the pictures, distorted as they may appear at times.

The last I heard of Mr. Varconi, he had returned to his native land for a visit. A player who can speak a foreign language is much in demand now that most of the companies are making two or three version of each important picture, so Victor may have a place in the talkies yet.

Yes, Miss Colbert made "Young Man of Manhattan," which is about ready for release. She is working in Hollywood at the Paramount Studio on "Manslaughter" at present.

Mr. Williams, "Big Boy" Williams as he is called, has been in pictuers for several years, but he'sc one of these fellows that's shy about giving out all the intimate details of his life. Some of the pictures in which he has appeared are "The Jack Rider," "The Vengeance Trail," "Western Firebrands," "Across the Border," "The Ropin' Fool" and "The Trail of Hate."

Dear Editor—Would you please give me the requirements and how to get into the movies?

If it is not too much out of your work, I would be very thankful if you would take an extra minute or two of your time to answer this.

Thanking you for your consideration of this letter and for an answer soon I remain, respectfully yours, H. P., Virginia, Nebraska.

The requirements of a movie actor are higher now than they have been in the past, as most of the players are required to sing, dance, talk and play some kind of a musical instrument as well as act. A knowledge of more than one language is an asset, since many of the companies, are filming their higher-classed productions in two or three languages. A great many of the foreign actors who were thought "out" with the talkies, are coming back with a bang.

The usual routine of "breaking in" is to register at the casting bureau, giving all of your qualifications, age, description, etc., and await your chance to get in as an "extra." If you are lucky, you may have two or three days' work during a month. Some do and others do not. If you are thinking of Hollywood, be sure to have plenty of money to run you until you get a chance on the screen. It's a long uphill business just at present.

Star Gazing

SIDNEY BLACKMER

By Central Press.

Introducing Lenore Ulric's favorite actor Sidney Alderman Blackmer, A. B., LL. B., of Salsbury, N. C.

Started out to be a lawyer—an old Blackmer custom. Left the University of North Carolina beclause he wanted to go places and see things. Had some wild notion of going to Patagonia to raise sheep but at the last moment decided becoming an actor was even wilder.

Sold old family revolver and pawned all his worldly possessions to buy a one-way ticket to Broadway. Arrived in New York with no funds and no friends to borrow any from. Didn't inform family of his whereabouts for three months. Wanted to succeed on his own and was afraid he might be tempted to ask for money.

Fibbed outrageously about parts he had played all over country. Kidded no one, but himself. Finally given small role in Richard Bennett play.

Preparation.

Had to make his first appearance "in a breathless manner." To prepare himself for the event, ran up and down the stairs for an hour before his cue. When he came on the stage was so breathless he couldn't say a single word! Was terribly mortified because just before the curtain a friend from home had sent him a message on the back of her seat stub saying: "I predict great things for you." Several years after when he was leading man for Maxine Elliott received another message from same friend. This one read: "A wish and a prophesy fulfilled."

During a performance of "Not So Long Ago" was so excited when he learned that Lenore Ulric was in the audience could hardly go on with the show. Exactly ten years later was so excited when Miss Ulric became Mrs. Sidney Blackmer gave the best performance of a bridegroom ever given.

Had played extras and bits in "Perils of Pauline" and "Million Dollar Mystery" under an assumed name. Never took pictures seriously until advent of talkies.

Went to California last summer on vacation with his wife. Was met at train by agent and rushed off to First National Studios for a screen test. The next day was Leatrice Joy's leading man in "A Most Immoral Lady." Has been in Hollywood ever since.

Claims that the most gratifying moment of his life was when he returned to his home town as "Local Boy Makes Good."

Will always harbor the desire to play the role of the "Minister" in "Romance." And will never be completely happy until he has brought "The Mountain Man" to the screen.

Screen Siftings

Building Old Town—The largest western town ever built is under construction on location for "Billy, the Kid," which King Vidor is filming with Johnny Mack Brown in the title role. The town is a duplicate of the old Lincoln, New Mexico in the late 70's. Lucille Powers plays opposite Mr. Brown in the pitcure, and Wallace Beery, Karl Dane, Russell Simpson and Wyndham Standing make up the supporting cast.

Reaches Stardom—Everett Marshall, the young singer and actor who is now playing the lead with Bebe Daniels in "Dixianna," will hereafter star in his own right under the R. K. O. banner. His first story will be as a member of the northwest mounted police. Many of the sequences for the picture, which is as yet untitled, will be filmed in technicolor.

Clara Will Sing—Clara Bow is branching out as a singer. She not only sings in her latest picture, "True to the Navy," but she will also be heard in "Paramount On Parade." In "True to the Navy," the title of Miss Bow's song will be "There's Only One Who Matters To Me." Frederic March is the leading man in the picture.

Gets Long Contract.—Rose Hobart, who is now playing the lead with Phillip Merrivale in "Death Takes a Holiday," on the New York stage, has been signed to a long term contract by Universal. She is expected in Universal City to begin her picture activities when the play closes in June.

A POWERFUL, VIBRATING FOX MOVIETONE DRAMA OF GANGLAND.

His school was the gutter, his degree plain "gangster". He learned the underworld's stringent code — then broke it when gangdom threatened his loved ones.

THE ROBBINS STUDIO.

Mrs. Floyd Robbins, contralto, has been engaged as a member of the quartet for the First Presbyterian church for the coming year, the music work to begin in September.

Floyd Robbins appears as pianist in the program to be presented by University Spanish club in the recital hall of the Robbins studios this afternoon. The program is made up of compositions from the modern Spanish school. Attendance is by invitation of the Spanish club.

Registration has begun for the special summer class work offered by Edith Lucille Robbins and Floyd Robbins in "How to Teach and How to Study Voice and Piano. What to Sing. What to Play." Outlines to be had at the studios feature two special courses in the above. Enrollment is being received for the twenty lessons in two weeks courses, two lessons daily, beginning Pune 2, or for the longer term of ten weeks, two lessons per week. Over one thousand teaching pieces will be discussed.

The Bel Canto Oratorio society will present the dramatic oratorio "Eli," by Costa on next Sunday afternoon at four o'clock at the Cornhusker ballroom. The program is open to the public. Special entrance cards, admission free, are to be had from the members of the oratorio society or at the studios. These admit to seats before the opening of the doors to the public. Doors will be open to public admission at 3:45 o'clock. Soloists: sopranos, Eva Phillips, Ruth Randall, Irene Schultz, Bernice Geiger; contraltos, Gladys Loetterle, Nina Wakelin, Etta Blasdel; tenors, Wesley Clark, J. Miller Richey; baritones, J. L. Veterans Confer Degree at Liberty Lodge Services

Veterans from five branches of the service who have participated in five wars conferred the Master Mason degree on Ed Westervelt, commander of Lincoln Post No. 3 of the American Legion, Thursday evening at the Charter day services of Liberty lodge No. 300, A. F. & A. M.

Third row: Alfred Weston, Arthur King, Frank McKinstry, Fred Angelo, Otto Nelson, James D. Baker, Charles Glenger, Burt Polsky, Ralph Fell.

Lower row: Dale Babcock, Elmer Spahr, Homer Kyle, Oscar E. Sincebaugh, Ed. Westervelt, John O. Moore, Glen E. Carpenter, H. A. Osborne and Louis Jensen.

Homer Kyle and Marcus Poteet served as worshipful master during various parts of the ceremony when the degree was conferred on Westervelt. Oscar E. Sincebaugh was captain of the team.

John Curtiss, the speaker, commented on the appropriateness of holding the special Charter day and ex-service men's services at the same time due to the fact that the lodge was named "Liberty" and since its first meeting was held July 4, 1918.

Another feature of the evening was that a group of charter members of the lodge served as the team to confer the degree on J. Merle Yowell. These charter members included: H. V. Mattley, Dr. D. L. Redfern, James Tyler, jr., James F. Thompson, George Sprecher, Earnest, H. Holmes, Dr. C. M. Corrington, Dr. G. A. Des Jardien, Clarence D. Earle, Dr. Paul Sinclair, J. Lloyd McMaster, Dr. Joseph M. Smith.

On two other candidates, Ernie Luckenbihl and Gilbert C. Burhmann, the degree was conferred by the regular officers of the lodge, who are: Marcus Poteet, worshipful master; Lloyd Morris, senior warden; R. L. Armstrong, junior warden; O. E. Jerner, senior deacon; Homer Kyle, junior deacon; Claude Caskey, senior steward; Charles Bartz, junior steward; Dr. L. L. Owen, captain, James F. Thompson, treasurer, and Ralph Mosely, secretary.

Screen Siftings

Buy Best Seller—Kathleen Norris' latest best seller, "The Passion Flower" has already been purchased by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for screen purposes. The story is a discussion of modern romance and married life, and Martin Flavin, author of "Criminal Code," will do the dialogue and screen adaptation. The picture will be made under the direction of William C. De Mille.

Have Feature Leads—Claudette Colbert and Frederic March are playing the feature leads in Paramount's production of "Manslaughter." The picture was filmed in silent form several years ago with Leatrice Joy in the title role. It is a story of reckless automobile driving. George Abbott has charge of the action.

Leads in Height—June Collyer, who is playing opposite Gary Cooper in his latest picture as yet untitled, is the tallest leading lady Gary has had to date. Miss Collyer measures five feet five, to Gary's six feet two.

Radio Star in Cast—Donald Novis who two years ago won the Atwater-Kent Foundation Award over a field of 10,000 singers in a nation-wide contest, has been added to the cast of "Eyes of the World" which Inspiration Pictures is production from Harold Bell Wright's story. The famous tenor will sing a new ballad in the garden fete scenes of the picture.

Returns To Screen—Ruth Hiatt, who will be remembered by fans for her work with Lloyd Hamilton in comedies, is returning to the screen in one of the Pathe talking comedies titled "Beauties."

Chosen For Lead—Lew Ayres, the young man who won his spurs on the screen in the Universal production, "All Quiet on the Western Front," has been chosen by Warner Brothers to play the lead in "A Handful of Clouds." The story is an original by Roland Brown, and deals with life in the underworld. Dorothy Matthews, who was noticed for her exceptional ability in a "bit role" in "The Son of the Gods," will play opposite Mr. Ayres.

Linguist Valuable—A knowledge of two or three languages is a very valuable asset on the screen these days with all of the companies doing three of four foreign versions of every story. Warner Brothers have announced that even Vitaphone Varieties, the short subjects, will be made in French, Spanish and German. Twenty-five varieties are listed for the new production season.

Actress Is Writer—Loretta Young spends her "between picture" hours in writing scenarios. She has written one that may be used as a starring vehicle in her next First National Production, but the title and subject have not yet been announced. Miss Young is now playing the leading feminine role in "When We Were Twenty-one." David Manners and Conway Tearle are featured in the supporting cast.

Smith Has Lead—Stanley Smith, the young man who became popular over night for his work opposite Nancy Carroll in "Sweetie," is to be Clara Bow's leading man in "Love Among Millionaires." Stuart Erwin, also of "Sweetie" fame, will add laughs to "Love Among Millionaires." Miss Bow is to appear as a singing waitress in the picture, which will be made under the direction of Frank Tuttle.

Poor Broadway!—Warner Brothers seem to be snapping up these Broadway stars as soon as they step off the train in Hollywood. Charles Butterworth, who trekked westward after closing a successful season in "Sweet Adeline" is the latest addition to the Warner Brother fold. He will play one of the leading male roles in "Life of the Party" in which Winnie Lightner, and John Davidson will be featured.

Show Hollywood Life—Life in Hollywood as it really exists will be depicted in "Show Girl in Hollywood." Alice White, who takes the role of Dixie Dugan in the picture, visits the famous tourists' mecca, Cafe Montmartre, and thus gives the whole world a glimpse of the inside of the restaurant. Jack Mulhall and Blanche Sweet are among the celebrities in the cast of the picture.

Pirates Ahoy!

buccaneer fleet outfitting for another raid upon the Spanish Main, was covered with corpses and wreckage. The watchers saw houses sink into yawning chasms that opened in the ground near the ocean front, and saw some of these houses, with their inmates, almost immediately thrust up and out again by the inrush of sea water from underneath.

In Jamaica, near the town of Green Bay, you may see at this day the tombstone of Lewis Galdy, who was a very young man at the time of the destruction of Port Royal. The story on the stone relates how Galdy was swallowed up in one of the great cracks in the earth, and spewed up again in the manner just described. He lived to be eighty years old.

The Rector, in letters to his friends in England, described how many persons fell into the cracks in the earth up to their necks, and were there squeezed to death by the closing up of the fissures in the following tremors.

A few ships that remained afloat in the harbor became refuges for for persons who found themselves swimming about in the water. Some of these vessels were sent far inland by the tidal waves that followed upon the prinicpal shocks of the quake.

Two mountains on the outskirts of the city, divided from one another by a narrow valley along which ran one of the roads leading to Port Royal from the countryside, toppled toward each other. Together they filled up the valley.

There was a great house nestling against the foot of a precipice, on the edge of the city. It was occupied by a notorious villain who kept many slaves and was known for his debauchery. The great face of the cliff bowed forward, broke and a veritable mountain of rock buried house, master, slaves and guest, far yond the possibility of ever being dug out. Oh, there were plenty of sermons in the stones that fell at Port Royal.

Suddenly the watchers saw the slopping bayside rent asunder, and the whole fair city of Port Royal slipped into the rising waters of the harbor.

This operation lasted but a few minutes. When it was over, the ocean lay where the city had been.

Later investigations showed that the town had stood upon a triangular bank of sand which was laid up against and upon the shelving rock. When the great shocks shook the solid foundations of the island, the little delta upon which the city had stood was loosened from the shelf, and easily and rapidly slid into the water.

The lives lost were estimated at three thousand. Many a piratical enterprise was sadly crippled by the disaster.

When the weather is clear, tourists are taken out in boats to look down through the clear water of the Caribbean upon the ruins of the Pirate City. The walls of many of the houses that were engulfed still stand, covered by supporting encrustations of coral.

A few efforts to recover the treasure of the lost town by diving have been made, but without results considered at all satisfactory. Recent improvements in machinery for recovering sunken cargoes have revived the interest of treasure-seekers in the old town of Port Royal. It is probable that much work will be required to bring up whatever gold and silver were in the town. Coarl covers everything, hiding treasure while protecting it. There is a good field for work for an enterprising submarine engineer at this place.

There is only a small cluster of little houses on the peninsula now extending into the sea, close to the site of the ancient Port Royal. People are afraid to live there.

Port Royal was shaken down by an earthquake once, in 1602, long before the final disaster. A little town was built beside the submerged wreck of a city after the catastrophe of 1692, but it was destroyed by fire in 1702, and, when rebuilt, was washed away by a tidal wave in 1722. Rebuilt, it was laid flat by a hurricane in 1774. While the site was again occupied by a small town, the customs and other official establishments were removed to Kingston. The new Port Royal was again burned in 1750, and was wiped out by another hurricane in 1784. Once more the village that grew up was burned in 1815, and in 1850 almost the whole population of the renewed town was killed by cholera. Since then the place has been almost deserted. It would take a rather persistent town-builder to start a boom there now.

New First Methodist Church at Beatrice, One of The Finest in State, to Be Dedicated Next Sunday

Dedication of the new $200,000 First Methodist church at Beatrice will be held during the week of June 1. The new church follows old English Gothic style of architecture both in the interior and the exterior. The main auditorium which will seat 700 persons contains a pipe organ presented by the Kilpatrick Bros. in memory of their father and mother. The organ is one of the largest in the state. The tower as shown in the picture above stands ninety-two feet above the surface of the earth. The arrangement of the interior provides for separate assembly rooms for all departments of the church school which will make it possible for the auditorium to be reserved for worship. Dedication services will start Sunday, June 1 with services in the morning, afternoon and evening. A reception for church and Sunday school members will be held Monday evening. An organ recital will be given Tuesday evening and a general reception for the public will be held Thursday evening.

Sunday June 1 will mark the opening of one of Nebraska's finest new churches. The new building which will be occupied by the First Methodist church of Beatrice has been erected at a total cost of nearly $200,000. The old English Gothic style of architecture has been carried out htroughout the whole design of the church.

The edifice stands on the corner of Sixth and Elk streets, the location of the two Methodist churches which stood there before the present one was erected. Standing well back from both streets entirely surrounded by beautiful hedges and trees the structure commands the attention of every passerby.

The main body of the church is made of Silverdale limestone with alternating smooth-cut and rough-finish stone in irregular order. The window casements on the exterior are trimmed in Bedford limestone as is the tower which rises ninety-tow feet above the ground.

The roof is of gray slate which sets off the beauty of the limestone walls and the large colored windows. A large floodlight has been placed opposite the large window at the front of the building which may be lighted so as to bring out the beauty of the glass masterpiece.

Use Old Cornestone.

As one enters the building through the main entrance only a slight change is noticeable from the outdoors. The ceiling of the entrance room carries out a sky effect with oak paneling and oak beams. To the left of the entry way is the cornerstone of the first church ever built in Beatrice and one of the oldest in the state.

Due to the wearing winds and rains of time the carving on the old corner stone has nearly been erased but the outline of the year can be faintly traced. This old cornerstone was in the original stone church and was also used as a cornerstone for the building which was used by the congregation previous to the building of the present structure.

The entry way leads to the narthex which runs the full width of the auditorium. The narthex has a domed ceiling with paneled walls and arches leading to the auditorium proper and the parlors on either side. To the north of the tower entrance and immediately to the west of the nathex is the auditorium. Over the doors leading to the auditorium are emblems representing the Trinity. Over one door is The Hand, God; over the middle door is The Lamb, Christ and over the third door is The Dove, The Holy Spirit.

Seats Seven Hundred.

The main auditorium faces west and seats approximately 700 people including the balcony which is at the extreme back and which has a seating capacity of about 100. As one enters the auditorium the main window medallions are noticed at the extreme opposite end. This window is the one upon which the floodlight is thrown from the outside.

On the main window are three panels. On the south panel is represented the Nativity showing inf Christ blessing children. The ing Christ blessing children. The ion with Christ in The Garden. The north panel depicts the Resurrection and the Ascension.

The side windows also depict various characters of the Bible. In the south alcove are represented the four evangelists. In the north alcove are windows depicting four prominent women of The Bible, Miriam, Ruth, Elizabeth and Mary. The side windows which are on either side of the main auditorium show six of the apostles on each side and near the back on each side are Moses, Isaiah, John the Baptist and Paul.

The light fixures in the main auditorium are of solid cast bronze. There are six of the fixtures on each side and one over the choir loft and pulpit. These light fixtures are seven feet in height. Great arches of Gothic design run parallel with the walls on each side of the auditorium with connecting arches between the large arches and the walls.

Pipe Organ a Gift.

The pipe organ which is a gift of the Kilpatrick brothers in memory of their father and mother, Samuel and Rachel Kilpatrick, is one of the largest in the state. Mr. and Mrs. Kilpatrick, in whose memory the organ was dedicated, were pioneer residents of Nebraska and charter members of the First Methodist chruch of Beatrice.

At the north of the console is the swell organ chambers and the choir organ chambers. On the south is the pedal organ and the great organ. The large harp is also located to the north of the console. South of the balcony is the echo organ and the chimes.

The altar furtniture of the church is of white oak stained to a dark color. The pews and other furniture in the auditorium are of the same wood. The choir rooms are located at the back and underneath the choir loft which houses the console.

Leaving the auditorium one may pass through the narthex to the church parlor. The parlor is furnished with deep, rich rugs and original oil paintings by art masters. At the south end of the parlor is a huge fireplace. A small kitchenette for teas and light refreshments is located to the south of the parlor.

South of the kitchenette is the office of the Sunday school superintendent, the secretary and the school treasurer. South of the narthex is a large assembly room which wil be used for the senior Sunday school assembly, the Epworth League, prayer meetings, official board meetings, ladies' aid, and with the narthex and the parlor, may be converted into one large room for large social gatherings.

Large Class Rooms.

Southeast of the assembly room is a large Sunday school class room which will be used for one of the larger classes of the school. Southwest of the assembly and in the extreme southwest corner of the church is the pastor's study and the church offices.

On the ground floor, which is reached by entrances at the west, south and east, is located Sunday school rooms and the dining rooms. To the left of the main entrance are the cradle roll and nursery rooms and the beginners room. The nursery room is furnished in blue and the beginners room is furnished in pink.

On the right side of the entrance is the primary room and the men's rest room. Going down the steps to the right is the coat room beyond which is the ladies rest room. Going down the steps to the right is the kitchen which is fully equipped for large banquets or small dinners.

To the north of the kitchen is the boiler room and the fan room.

The fan room controls the circulation of air throughout the building. West of the kitchen is the serving room and west of the serving room is the dining room which is also used for the adult department of the Sunday school. At the west end of the dining room is a stage with footlight, dressing rooms, etc, for plays and entertainments. To the west of the main entrance to the dining room is the passage to the Tower room and a room used for the storing of tables.

The third floor may be reached through the main entrance or by the south entrance. As one ascends the stairs to the south class rooms for the senior and intermediate departments are located around an open balcony which looks down on the main assembly room. North of the class rooms is the Intermediate assembly, and to the north of the assembly are found the junior assembly, and class rooms.

All departments of the church school have separate assembly rooms. On special occasions the entire school will meet in the auditorium. To the west of the junior assembly is the church balcony and the echo organ, south of the echo organ is the stairway to the tower. In the town is the Tower Sunday school class room.

Plan Formal Opening.

Formal opening of the new church will be held during the week of June 1. On Sunday June 1 at 10:30 o'clock Dr. H. J. Burgstahler, president of Cornell college located at Mount Vernon, Ia. will deliver the opening sermon of the day. In the afternoon a huge rally service will be held at which Dr. J. Franklin Haas of Tacoma, Wash., a former pastor of the Beatrice church, and Dr. B. F. Gaither, district superintendent of the Fort Wayne, Kas. district will speak.

In the evening at 8 o'clock Bishop Frederick D. Leete, resident bishop of the Omaha area will deliver the dedicatory sermon followed by formal dedication of the church.

Monday from 7:30 to 10 o'clock a reception and home gathering of all members of the church and their families and all members of the Sunday school and their families will be held. A short program will be given during the evening.

On Tuesday evening at 10 o'clock an organ recital will be given by Miss Lucile Hillers, the church organist. Miss Hillers has studied organ in Boston, Chicago, New York and at the present time is a student of Palmer Christian, one of the outstanding organists in the country. Following the recital the organ will be formally dedicated.

On Thursday evening from 7:30 to 10 o'clock a reception for hte geenral public will be held. All persons living in Beatrice and surrounding towns have been invited and a large delegation from Lincoln is expected to attend the function.

Do you suppose that if St. Peter, St. Paul and St. John reappeared on earth, they would change their attitude toward the Evangel which Christ thus authorized? I think not. No minister, orthodox or otherwise, who accepts the New Testament as his guide, can say that the work of Jesus was confined to His revelation of the Father. He added to that glorious unveiling the remarkable saying: "I am the way, the truth and the life." This statement was typical of many others dealing with His conception of Himself, and those who wholeheartedly believe and act upon it are spiritually transformed by its active application.

time. Give the farmers a 100 per cent dollar and we will all prosper and be happy. Then business will be good, laborers will be busy and debts will decrease. Business will not pick up if the prices of grain do not go higher. It seems to me that some of the congressmen who are voting against the interests of their constituents do not even say why they vote that way. I think that a lot of these congressmen will get orders to stay at home after the next election. My motto is, "Get the debenture and flexible provision or no tariff." We have had a one-sided tariff long enough and practically all of it going to one part of the country into a few hands. Give us a square deal.

Wesleyan Notes

Professor Gregg gave the commencement address for the graduation exercises at Loup City on Wednesday, May 21, at Crofton on Thursday, and at Bertrand on Friday. He is putting on an institute of religious education at Cambridge in a series of five addresses on Saturday and Sunday.

Upsilon chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota held a formal initiation Saturday afternoon May 24. The initiates were: Alma Ludwig, Arlington; Elma May Crane, North Platte; Mildred Gaddis, Lincoln; Helen Trombla, Lincoln; and Marjorie Pettett, Sidney. On May 25 the sorority gave a breakfast at the Hotel Lincoln in honor of the newly initiated members and the seniors of the organization.

Coach Bryan Harrell, athletic coach at Lexington, was given a banquet in honor of his re-election as coach for another year. Information comes that he has refused to accept, but his future plans are unknown. The banquet was given by the L club of that city and 104 members were present at the occasion. Coach Harrell was presented with a wrist watch to show the high esteem held for him by Lexington citizens. Maurice Levick, a former student at Wesleyan, reviewed Harrell's record as coach for the past six years. In this time Coach Harrell has coached and put on the field of athletics some remarkable teams. Bryan Harrell is a Wesleyan graduate of the class of 1923 with an A. B. degree.

Dr. Walter Aitken, pastor of St. Paul M. E. church addressed convocation Monday morning. He chose as his subject "Optimism versus Pessimism." He illustrated his theme with quotations from the works of various authors. Swift and Carlyle, Dr. Aitken stated, were of a more pessimistic nature, whereas Irving Shakespeare, Dickens and Trackery were of optimistic type. The audience was impressed with the variety and profuseness of his poetical quotations.

Miss Rose Clark, professor of elementary education in the Teachers college, will spend the summer in New York city as a special investigator for the American Historical society. This body recently appointed a commission to investigate the teaching of history and geography in the American public schools. The work is being financed by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. Among the prominent educators on this commission are Dr. Charles Beard, the historian, Dr. Ada Comstock, president of Radcliff college. The commission wished to have the time of Miss Clark for a year in order that the investigation might be extended to Europe as well. Miss Clark found that her other studies made this impossible. She is to spend the summer in New York city, collecting data. Her report will be compiled after her return to Lincoln. Her work will be mainly in the offices of the American Geographical society in New York. On her way east she will stop at the University of Chicago for conferences.

An art exhibit under the direction of Professor Gladys Marie Lux of the school of art will be one of the attractions of the close of the year and of commencement week. This exhibit will feature the work of Nebraska artists. Miss Mary La Barre of Omaha will contribute two aquatints, "Doorway—The Riviera" and "Marigolds." She is art instructor in the Omaha Central high school. Ben Albert Benson, instructor in art in the University of Nebraska, will be represented by three woodcuts, "Deer," "Young Deer," and "Flight." Lyman Byxbe of Omaha will exhibit a drypoint "Cheyenne," two etchings, "Early Morning," and "Cottonwood," and a drypoint, "Autumn Tree." Miss Alice R. Edmiston of Lincoln will have three woodcuts, "Spring Flowers," "Sunny Day—Provincetown," and "The Old Homstead." Miss Charlotte Kizer, supervisor of art in Lincoln, will contribute a woodcut, "Roofs of New York." Mark M. Levings, architect of Omaha, will exhibit two dry points, "The Ledges" and "St. Williams Gate," and an aquatint, "Snow." Professor Gladys Marie Lux will be represented by two woodcuts, "Crocus" and "Capitol Nears Completion." This exhibit will be opened on May 26 and will continue to June 6. The hours are from 9 a. m., to 4 p. m. The public is invited to visit this display in room 412, main building.

Membes who were newly elected to Pi Kappa Delta are Warren Gutherie, president and Thelma James, secretary and treasurer.

John Brooks, is a new member of the executive board.

Pi Gamma Mu, social science fraternity, held a picnic in Antelope park Wednesday evening.

Alpha Gamma Deltas held their annual spring picnic at Beatrice Friday evening.

Mrs. Barringer and Mrs. Shirk entertained the Everett seniors as a dinner Wednesday evening, May 21.

Dean Gossard delivered commencement addresses at Endicott, Cedar Rapids and Belvidere during the week.

The training school pupils will present an operetta "Rose Dream" Friday evening May 23.

Dean McProud was the commencement speaker at Pleasantdale and North Loup May 21-22.

The following Wesleyan students have been elected to teaching positions for next year: Mildred Barrett; Dawson; Amy Hedell, Upland; Berdine Koch, Deshle; Helen Moon, Newpost, Grace Riley, Benkleman; Iris Tower, Oxford; Naomi Woodward, Oxford.

The Alpha Gamma Delta seniors were entertained at a breakfast at the chapter house Saturday, May 17. Covers were set for fifty. Small May poles were placed in the center of each table with streamers leading to each plate. Place cards consisted of miniature girl graduates holding diplomas. The chapter gave the seniors oriental vases. Following the breakfast a farewell address was given by Betty Woods, then a few of the undergraduate girls presented a very interesting skit which portrayed college life. At the close of the breakfast the chapter was presented with the tapestry fire screen from the Mother's club.

The Alpha Gamma Delta girls entertained their parents at the chapter house Sunday, May 18. Dinner was served at 1:30 p. m. After dinner a program was given which consisted of vocal solos by Vaunden Steele, and Ellenore Spivey, and readings by Harriet Hoehne and Marjorie Beans.

Dr. H. P. Fox, pastor of the First M. E. church, spoke Thursday morning at convocation. This appearance of Dr. Fox was postponed from the previous week, due to the press of other matters.

McCook College

The Women's self-governing organization of the college entertained their mothers at a buffet supper in the junior high school banquet room, May 21. The mothers were introduced to the faculty of the college and were shown around the college buildings.

Thomas Colfer was elected president of the men's organiation for next year, at a meeting on May 20. Robezrt Brown will serve as vice-president, and Ted Welch as secretary-treasurer. All three boys are from McCook.

The freshman class entertained the sophomore class at the final all-college part yof the year, May 19. The party was held in the banquet room of the Keystone hotel.

The glee clubs and the college players give their road show at McCook junior high school auditorium May 22. They put on their final performance at Red Willlow, May 23.

The baccalaureate sermon will be preached by Rev. M. C. Bullock of the First Congregational church at the Methodist Memorial church May 26. The college graduating exercises are to be held in Methodist Memorial church, also. Senator Kenneth F. Wherry of Pawnee City will speak.

The college girl's glee club sang at the district bankers convention, May 20.

Monument On Site Of Indian Battle

The battle which ended for all time strife between the Sioux and Pawnee Indians, was fought in Nebraska on August 5, 1873. The scene was down a canyon and over the hills along the Republican river, east of Trenton. Now, fifty-seven years later, a memorial commemorating the event as one of the historic affairs of the plains, is to be erected. It is to be on the highest point of what was the battlefield. From the monument it will be possible to look miles up the canyon down which the Indians battled. From there one also will be able to look along the slopes up and down which the two tribes swarmed in their quest for victory. In fact, the site is said to command a view of virtually all of the ground on which the struggle was fought.

The memorial is being erected by the government, and bids for its making have been asked by Superintendent Davis of the Indian school at Genoa. An artists' drawing of the monument, from a blueprint loaned by the Nebraska State Historical society, is shown above. The monument will be 25 feet tall. The cost is $7,500.

SO IS THE ELEPHANT'S!

ARE THEY BOTH IN GOOD SHAPE, DOC?

NOTHING WRONG WITH THEM, SI

IT'S ALL VERY WELL FOR HIM TO SAY THEY ARE ALL RIGHT, BUT WILL HE SEND ME A BILL FOR EXAMINING THEM?! THAT'S WHAT I'D LIKE TO KNOW!

HELLO! IS THIS HEMLICK 7556?
CHESTER!

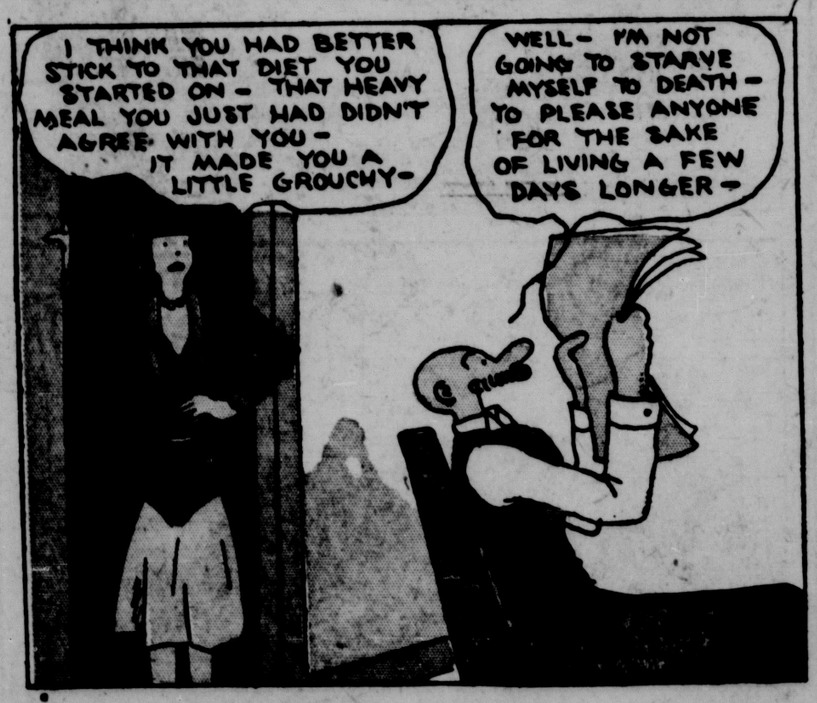

DON'T YOU DARE CALL THE LINKS UP- DON'T YOU KNOW THEY HAVE THE MEASLES? COME AWAY FROM THAT PHONE!
I WANT TO TALK TO DONALD-WHAT FORE SIGHT- WHAT A THOUGHT-

I WAS SPEAKING TO CHESTER-
CAN YOU IMAGINE - WHAT ARE YOU AFRAID OF? DO YOU THINK ONE OF THOSE GERMS IS GOING TO CRAWL ALONG THE TELEPHONE WIRE AND BITE YOU? SINCE WHEN DID THEY START BROADCASTING SICKNESS? CATCH THE MEASLES OVER THE TELEPHONE?

I DIDN'T INTEND THIS FOR AN ARGUMENT- I SAID- DON'T CALL THE LINKS- I'M A WOMAN OF FEW WORDS-
HAW! HAW! YOU ARE A WOMAN OF A FEW WORDS- ALL RIGHT-

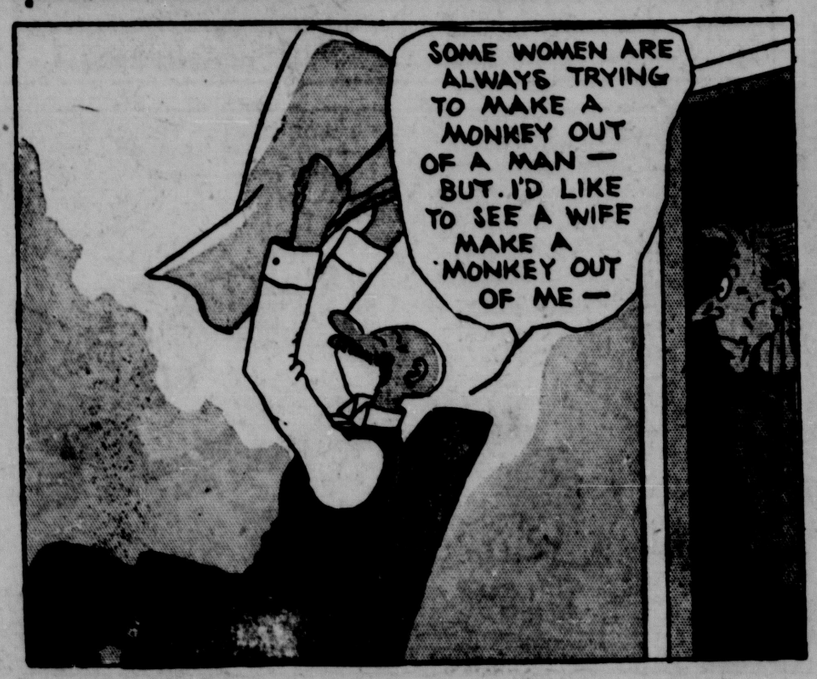

BUT HOW YOU DO WORK THEM OVERTIME- THOSE POOR, LITTLE, ABUSED, UNDERPAID, IMPOVERISHED HALF STARVED WORDS- THEY'LL BE FORMING A UNION ONE OF THESE DAYS- AND GO ON A STRIKE-

I'M LISTENING- GO ON! GO ON!
AND I'M SAYING NOTHING-

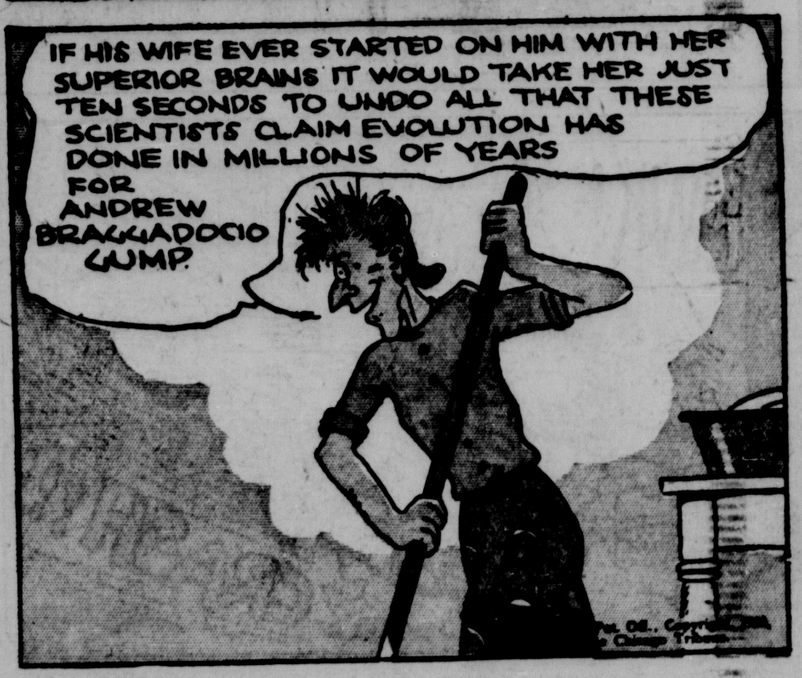

I THINK YOU HAD BETTER STICK TO THAT DIET YOU STARTED ON- THAT HEAVY MEAL YOU JUST HAD DIDN'T AGREE WITH YOU- IT MADE YOU A LITTLE GROUCHY-
WELL- I'M NOT GOING TO STARVE MYSELF TO DEATH- TO PLEASE ANYONE FOR THE SAKE OF LIVING A FEW DAYS LONGER-

YOU WOULD- ALWAYS TRYING TO MAKE A CHUMP OUT OF A FELLOW- HAS TO GET IN THE LAST WORD- ALWAYS-

LIKE THAT POOR OLD HENPECKED NEIGHBOR OF OURS WHO DIED LAST WEEK- SOMEBODY ASKED- WHAT WERE HIS LAST WORDS? TEN TO ONE- THAT BIRD NEVER HAD ANY LAST WORDS- HIS WIFE WAS WITH HIM TILL THE LAST-

SOME WOMEN ARE ALWAYS TRYING TO MAKE A MONKEY OUT OF A MAN- BUT. I'D LIKE TO SEE A WIFE MAKE A MONKEY OUT OF ME-

WELL, IF IT WERE TRUE THAT IT TOOK MILLIONS OF YEARS OF EVOLUTION TO MAKE A MAN OUT OF A MONKEY AS SOME SCIENTISTS TRY TO MAKE US BELIEVE-

IF HIS WIFE EVER STARTED ON HIM WITH HER SUPERIOR BRAINS IT WOULD TAKE HER JUST TEN SECONDS TO UNDO ALL THAT THESE SCIENTISTS CLAIM EVOLUTION HAS DONE IN MILLIONS OF YEARS
